Special Cables to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Friday, Oct. 18.—The Matin publishes an Athens telegram, dispatched at 1 o'clock this morning, stating that the Greek Government has ordered the Greek Minister at Constantinople to deliver this morning a declaration of war against Turkey.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 18.—Turkey's declaration of war against Bulgaria and Servia was speedily followed by the proclamation of hostilities by King Peter, while King Ferdinand has also declared war and has left Sofia to join the headquarters of his army.

Turkey refrained from declaring war on Greece, who, it was hoped at the Sublime Porte, might, even at the last moment, dissociate herself from nationalities with which she had no common racial, religious, or economic ties. Turkish hopes in this particular were belied, for Greece has opened hostilities.

Thus five States are at war, three Kings at the front, and a million men in arms. The greatest conflict that Europe has known since the Franco-Prussian war has opened under conditions which make the struggle likely to be one of the blood-thirstiest and bitterest in modern history.

The area of conflict is enormous. Fighting is already in progress on four frontiers. There was a tendency to believe that so far in the fighting on the Montenegrin frontier the Turks had not displayed the qualities with which in past wars they had showed themselves endowed, particularly in stubborn defense behind intrenchments, and the Montenegrins' capture of Berana was hailed as a great feat of arms.

Last night, however, a Vienna dispatch stated that a report had just been received there that the Montenegrins had suffered a decisive defeat near Podgoritza, by Essad Pasha's division, reinforced by several thousand Mohammedan Albanians. The Montenegrin advance on Scutari is thus declared to be checked.

Operations in that district in any case are of relatively little importance. Scutari is only worth winning for prestige. Its strategical value as a factor in an advance on Uskub is small. That the Montenegrins allowed the defenders of Berana to escape means that its capture was more spectacular than useful, militarily speaking.

Big Battles Expected Soon.

On the other frontiers hostilities as yet are of no great military importance. Turkish regulars and Albanians crossed the Servian frontier at Prepolatz, but, allowing for the usual process of exaggeration at Belgrade, the encounter which followed was of little consequence.

On the Greek frontier mobilization is well advanced, and Capt. Butler, a British army officer acting as The Daily Mail's correspondent with the Greek forces, telegraphs from Larissa that the Greeks, fighting in the region where they were so easily defeated by the Turks in 1897, are likely to give a much better account of themselves now.

From Bulgaria no news beyond reports of continued concentration of troops is yet to hand. It cannot now be long before big battalions come into contact. A military writer in The Daily Mail says:

"To Greece and Servia will fall the artistry of the campaign, to Bulgaria the bludgeon work, and, were history to recall from the shadows her masters for every post in the field, she would place this morning Napoleon himself at Nish, having under him Lee at Vrania and Nogi at Mustapha-Pasha, while Wellington, at first at Salonika, would handle Murat and Craufurd at Uskub, Massena at Monastir, and, in his own Adrianople, Osman Pasha."

War Forced on Us, Says Sultan.

LUNN ARRESTED AGAIN.

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Mayor George R. Lunn, Alderman Harvey N. Simmons, Robert A. Bakeman and Louis Riordi De Guerere, of Schenectady, and Louis Lesnicki of this city, were committed to Herkimer jail by Judge Collins to-night on a charge of rioting.

The men refused to take advantage of any opportunity to provide bail, which was fixed at $1,000. They will be brought here to-morrow for examination. All of the prisoners are Socialists.

Mayor Lunn's wife, who started to read an editorial from a newspaper to a crowd in Clinton Park, was escorted from the park by Sheriff Moon, but no charges were made against her.

Mayor Lunn and a party of Schenectady Socialists started to hold a meeting in the park, this being their third attempt. The local and county officers interfered and told them that there must be no meeting.

Mrs. Lunn started to read, and an animated discussion arose, leading to several arrests by the police and the leading of Mrs. Lunn from the park. An angry crowd followed the officers, but dispersed when Sheriff Moon read the Riot act.

Shortly after the first attempt to call a meeting Robert A. Bakeman, a former Schenectady clergyman, started to read from the Bible to a crowd, but was immediately placed under arrest. Mayor Lunn harangued the crowd on the way to Police Headquarters, claiming that he was being denied his rights as an American citizen.

He insists that he has the right to address a crowd anywhere in the city.

"Good-bye, boys; I will be down later and talk to you," Mayor Lunn called out to the crowd as he was being taken to jail.

An indignation meeting was held tonight as a result of the arrest of Mayor George R. Lunn, and plans were made to visit Little Falls to-morrow or Saturday in a special train to compel the city officials of that city to allow speechmaking in the city's streets.

$10,000 A YEAR FROM WIFE.

Ante-Nuptial Agreement of Baroness Leigh in Surrogates' Court.

A copy of the ante-nuptial agreement entered into before the marriage of Baron Leigh of England and Helene Beckwith, daughter of Nelson Marvin Beckwith, was filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court. The agreement was dated Nov. 28, 1890. At that time the present Baron was the eldest son of William Henry, Lord Leigh, and his heir apparent.

The agreement provided that an enumerated list of American railroad and other securities, $175,000 in bonds and $100,000 in stocks, attached to the agreement, should be turned over to trustees, one representing the baronial house of Leigh and one representing the Beckwith family. The consideration for turning over these stocks and bonds was the approaching marriage of the heir apparent of the Leigh title.

By the terms of the agreement, the future Lord was to receive an annual income of £2,000 during his wife's life and £1,000 a year after her death, should he survive her. This income was to be paid in quarterly installments. The agreement made provision for children, but Lady Leigh, who died April 28, 1909, was childless.

Under the will of the Baroness, made March 30, 1898, she directed that all her property, including that set apart for her husband's income, should go to him. He took possession of the property in this country through the law firm of Evarts, Choate & Sherman of this city. It amounted in all to $1,518,210, of which about $120,000 was taxable in New York State, according to the official appraisal published in THE TIMES on Tuesday.

The ante-nuptial agreement filed yesterday in connection with the transfer tax proceedings shows that at the time it was signed Miss Beckwith was then residing temporarily at Spencer House, St. James's Place, London. When she became Baroness through the succession of her husband to his father's title she took up her residence at Stoneleigh Abbey, Kenilworth, County of Warwick.

AEROPLANE DUCK SHOOTING.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Duck shooting was added to the list of aviation sports to-day. Lincoln Beachey, the airman, and Lieut. L. H. Brereton of the army had the experience, and they declared to-night, as they picked the bones to toothsome redheads, that the thing was easy and exhilarating.

Beachey and Brereton started out from the Army Aviation School at the War College in a Curtis hydro-aeroplane for a spin along the Potomac. They had not gone very far when they fairly ran into a flock of wild ducks. Beachey had the wheel. As the ducks rose, Brereton pulled an army automatic revolver from its holster at his side and blazed away at the flock. One of the ducks tumbled.

This was too much for Beachey. He had an automatic revolver, too. Getting a firm grasp on the wheel with his left hand, he drew his weapon and began firing at the panic-stricken ducks and brought down two. Then he put on more power, and the machine, flying through the air, got fairly into the flock. The two aviators blazed away again, and one of them dropped another duck. The presence of the big white-winged machine among them caused the ducks to put on an extra burst of speed, and Beachey was unable to keep pace with them. When the flock had disappeared Beachey turned the hydro-aeroplane, and, skimming along the water, picked up the four ducks that had dropped.

Beachey and Brereton were a little worried, though, over the thought that they had violated the game laws. The Potomac forms the boundary between Maryland and Virginia, but the aviators were unable to say in which State they did the shooting.

SOCIALIST GROUP INDICTED.

They Admit Their Responsibility for Aspersions on Roosevelt.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 17.—It became known to-day that indictments had been returned by the Multnomah County Grand Jury against the group of alleged Socialists admitting responsibility for having written, printed, and circulated a pamphlet attacking Theodore Roosevelt and his family while he was in Portland recently on his Western campaign.

All the men who signed the pamphlet have been embraced in the indictment, and two others who did not join in this committee's work, but are charged with complicity, are named by the Grand Jury. Arrests are being made.

DEFENSE PLANS TO CALL BECKER

Decides to Let Him Tell of Plot to Get Rid of Himself as Well as Rosenthal.

GRAFT EVIDENCE IS BARRED

PROSECUTION RESTS CASE

The prosecution closed its case against Lieut. Charles Becker, accused of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler who once accused Becker of having been his "silent partner," at 4:25 yesterday afternoon when Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss announced: "The State rests its case."

John W. Hart, associate counsel for the accused Lieutenant, will begin the opening address of the defense at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and, contrary to the general belief, John F. McIntyre, Becker's chief counsel, will immediately call witnesses to substantiate his contention that Becker is guiltless of Rosenthal's death and that the charge against him is the outcome of a conspiracy by Rosenthal's actual murderers to pin the blame on Lieut. Becker and by one stroke thus rid themselves at once of two enemies.

Mr. McIntyre will contend that Rosenthal came to his death as the result of a gambler's feud and the result of his "double-crossing" of "Billiard Ball" Jack Rose. He will try to show that more than a year ago, before Becker ever could have had a motive to plot the gambler's death, Jack Rose and "Bridgey" Webber did so plot it, and that within a few weeks of Rosenthal's death he increased the hatred which Rose bore to him by depriving the bald-headed gambler of his just share of $2,500, the result of a "killing" made in Rosenthal's gambling house, and thus spurred the man whom the State calls Becker's collector, to the commission of murder at which he had been balked twelve months before.

Becker to Go on Stand.

And to prove all this, to counteract the testimony which District Attorney Whitman and his associates have brought out in the last two weeks, Lieut. Becker will take the stand in his own behalf. He will take the stand also as have all other witnesses called so far in the case, and as will all other witnesses whom Mr. McIntyre may call on or whom the State may examine in rebuttal of the defense's testimony. In other words, he will be sworn, and when his story has been told he will be turned over to Mr. Whitman for cross-examination.

It had been suggested to Mr. McIntyre that he might avail himself of an old axiom of law and introduce into evidence a statement from his client without laying Becker open to cross-examination. Such a procedure, it was called to Mr. McIntyre's attention, had been followed when the law was first changed to allow an accused man to testify at all in his own defense.

In the case of Becker such procedure would solve at once one of the greatest difficulties which Mr. McIntyre faces, for it would prevent Mr. Whitman or his associates from questioning Becker on the subject of his bank accounts, the wealth which he is said to have acquired since he became leader of one of the Strong Arm Squads.

The elimination of just this testimony was the first signal victory which Mr. McIntyre has won in the present trial, and it came yesterday only after an argument by the lawyer of nearly half an hour. At its conclusion Justice Goff ruled that no testimony concerning Becker's bank accounts was competent testimony, and unless Mr. McIntyre himself should open the way for questions along this line, the State lost yesterday its last opportunity to question Becker regarding his bank deposits, or to introduce into the trial any reference to the fortune which the prosecution maintains he possesses.

Graft Evidence Excluded.

Mr. McIntyre's successful objection came after Mr. Moss had called to the stand Daniel A. Ventien, a clerk in charge of the signature cards of the Franklin Savings Bank. The assistant prosecutor's first question was:

"Did the defendant, Charles Becker, open an account with you in April, 1912?"

Before Ventien could answer Mr. McIntyre was on his feet with the objection that Becker was being tried for murder, not extortion or bribery, and that the introduction of such testimony would tend simply to "bias, inflame, and impassion the minds of the jury." Mr. Moss insisted that this testimony was competent, and of extreme value in the light which it threw on Becker's probable motive for instigating the murder, and Mr. McIntyre retorted with the declaration that there was no occasion to establish a motive; that the State's charge, were it to be proved at all, could be proved by direct testimony, the testimony of men who declared they had received instructions from Becker to murder Rosenthal. This testimony, he asserted, had been given, and no right remained to the prosecution to introduce such testimony as it was proposed to draw from Ventien.

"There are other accounts than these bank accounts which may be established," he said, angrily but earnestly. "You can see, your Honor, how this testimony would carry the jury from the original issue for which Becker has been

MRS. PANKHURST FOR MORE VIOLENCE

TOO MUCH FOR LAWRENCES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—It is now announced that Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence's withdrawal from the Women's Social and Political Union was at Mrs. Pankhurst's request, because they disagreed with her on the nature of the new fighting tactics, which are too militant for them.

The suffragette organ, Votes for Women, publishes a statement, signed by the Lawrences and Pankhursts, showing that the split arose at the first reunion of the leaders after their enforced holiday in prison. The Pankhursts outlined a new militant policy, which the Lawrences were unable to approve, whereupon the Pankhursts, who were unprepared to modify their intentions, recommended that the Lawrences should leave the union.

Rather than make a schism in the ranks of the union, the Lawrences consented to this course.

Mrs. Pankhurst, interviewed regarding the proposed new militant methods, said they would be stronger and more violent than before, adding:

"We have been grossly betrayed by the Government, and that warrants militancy. It is our only weapon. Alarmist rumors are afloat to the effect that we intend to make attacks upon human life. To that we give an absolute and uncompromising denial. Our militancy consists in defiance of legal enactments and in attacks upon property. The only limit set is that human life shall be respected.

"We accept responsibility for all that we intend to do. I do not foresee any split in the ranks. I know of no rival organization that is to be set up. All that has happened is a change in the officers of the Women's Social and Political Union. I succeed Mrs. Pethick Lawrence as Treasurer of the union, and all the fighting funds remain with us."

At a Suffragette demonstration in the Albert Hall this evening Mrs. Pankhurst made it clear that the new militancy would be another wholesale war on the public. "Smash everything" was the essence of her inciting speech. After paying a tribute to the "incalculable services," rendered by the Lawrences, she said:

"It is through property that we shall attack the enemy, and what sacrifice of and injury to property accrues will not be our fault, but that of the Government.

"I incite this meeting to rebellion," proceeded Mrs. Pankhurst, with fiery vehemence. "Those of you who want to go to the House of Commons and refuse to be sent away, do so. Those who will face party mobs at Cabinet Ministers' meetings, do so. Those who can break windows, break them. Those of you who can still further attack the sacred idol of property, so as to make the Government realize that property is as greatly endangered as it was in the days of the Chartists, do so."

A collection was then taken. Mrs. Pankhurst announced that although the union had $50,000 in hand, $40,000 of it was earmarked. Donations of about $15,000 were announced in half an hour.

Christabel Pankhurst telegraphed to the meeting from Paris:

"We must fight as never before, and give no quarter to the enemy."

In the first issue of the union's new organ, Christabel Pankhurst declares war on the Labor Party. She says every official Labor candidate for Parliament must be opposed.

Pethick Lawrence in an interview said that although he disagreed with the Pankhursts' policy, he would continue through Votes for Women, which remained his property, to advocate a strong militant campaign against the Government.

The Lawrences' secession will be a big loss to the union. Apart from their influence on the suffragettes' policy, they were always easily their most generous financial supporters. The balance sheets show that they contributed about $35,000 to the Union's funds. The costs of the recent prosecution of the leaders, which was adjudged against Mr. Lawrence, amounts to another $5,000 or more, to satisfy which the sale of his house in Surrey, where bailiffs are now in possession, is expected shortly. Writs amounting to several thousand dollars more are out against him.

PATIENT'S CONDITION GOOD

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, Oct. 17.—William Marconi has lost his right eye, which was removed to-day by Dr. Fuchs of Vienna and Dr. Bayardi, a well-known surgeon of Turin. The following bulletin was afterward issued at the Naval Hospital at Spezia, where Mr. Marconi has been lying since he was injured in a motorcar accident on Sept. 25:

> Prof. Fuchs of Vienna University and Prof. Bayardi of Turin were called in to-day for a consultation, and, having recognized the necessity of performing the operation of enucleation of the eyeball in order to avoid sympathetic ophthalmia, carried out the operation successfully. The condition of the patient is good and his morale is excellent.

ROME, Oct. 17.—The severe contusions and swelling around Mr. Marconi's injured eye prevented a thorough examination until recently, when it was found that the optic nerve had been affected.

Since Oct. 10 Mr. Marconi's condition had not been satisfactory. He suffered from neuralgic pains, and the visual power of the injured eye showed rapid diminution.

Dr. Bayardi had a final consultation today with Dr. Fuchs, after which the operation, which had been practically decided upon three days ago was performed.

Mr. Marconi was injured in an automobile accident on Sept. 25. Accompanied by his wife, secretary, and chauffeur, he was traveling from Spezia to Genoa when at a sharp corner the Marconi automobile collided with another automobile coming from Genoa. The two cars were overturned, and Mr. Marconi, who at the time of the accident was driving the machine, was thrown to the road. Mrs. Marconi was unhurt, and the secretary and the chauffeur were only slightly injured. Signor Beltrami, owner of the colliding automobile, was also slightly hurt.

Mr. Marconi did not lose consciousness, and was hurried to the Naval Hospital at Spezia. At the hospital it was found that his right eyeball was badly bruised and that he had a bad wound in the head. For a time the inventor's condition improved so rapidly that it was thought by the doctors who were attending him that he would not lose the sight of the eye.

Mr. Marconi was in Italy to inspect the wireless station at Coltano, which was recently visited by King Victor Emmanuel, who invited Mr. Marconi and his wife to dinner at the Royal Palace at Racconigi. When the King heard of the accident he wired to Spezia wishing Mr. Marconi a speedy recovery and requesting the hospital authorities to telegraph news of the patient's progress to him twice daily.

DIAZ STRONG, SAYS WILSON.

Our Envoy Thinks His Revolt Creates New Elements in Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 17.—Henry Lane Wilson, American Ambassador to Mexico, who is in this city visiting Mrs. Wilson's sister, said to-day of the Diaz revolt in Mexico:

"The uprising contributes a new element to the revolutionary situation, and a not inconsiderable one.

"Gen. Diaz, who is leading this revolution, is a man of great prestige, both with the army and with the public in general. In his uncle's Government he was Chief of Police of the City of Mexico, which is one of the most important places in the republic, because he not only has charge of public order in the capital, but he is the custodian of the Government; for whoever gets Mexico City gets the Government.

"Felix Diaz is a man of strong character, well educated, and possesses many of the strong characteristics which, for more than thirty years, enabled his uncle to dominate Mexico.

"But I have no doubt the Government of Madero will exert itself with the greatest activity and endeavor to meet the new conditions confronting it."

BARS FANCY HOSIERY.

Bayonne Teacher Names Black or Tan for High School Girls.

That the girls in the high school of Bayonne, N. J., use altogether too much paint to beautify their complexions was the assertion made yesterday by Miss Oldham, who has charge of the girl students.

"You girls are too prolific in the use of paint and rouge, and you will have to stop the practice at once," said Miss Oldham. "We do not care to be treated to moving pictures in this school; neither do we want any Galateas or living oil paintings around here. This is a public school and not an art gallery. Besides, I think the complexion of the average American girl is such that it is harmed instead of improved by artificial devices."

In addition to the lecture on make-up Miss Oldham spoke plainly to the girls about their clothing. She said many of the girls had the habit of wearing hose of too loud a color, and announced that in the future hosiery and shoes must be confined to black and tan colors.

The lecture of Miss Oldham created quite a sensation, especially the limiting to black and tan hose, and a number of the girls announced their intention of taking the matter up with the Board of Education in an effort to have this ruling set aside.

CHILD CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Daniel Curtain Caught in an Ash Elevator at Gouverneur Hospital.

Daniel Curtain, 6 years old, of 286 Monroe Street, was killed when his body was caught and crushed between an ash elevator and the sidewalk on the Gouverneur Slip side of the Gouverneur Hospital building last night. The hospital authorities said they sent employes out frequently to warn the boys away.

Last night Curtain climbed down an iron ladder in the elevator well and pulled a chain that started the elevator upward. When near the top the little boy fell against the side of the car and was unable to pick himself up before his body became wedged between the floor of the car and the sidewalk.

Dr. Brunette ran out of the hospital, but the child was dead before he could release him.

THREAT TO SHOOT WILSON

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 17.—A threat made by an Italian to shoot Gov. Wilson resulted in a strong police guard at the meeting in the Opera House when the Governor spoke here to-night.

Chief of Police Black this morning received word from Mrs. Sarah Hudson of 800 Lombard Street that her sister, Mrs. Hattie Whitson had heard the threat. She did not know the man's name, but gave his description. He said: "Wilson is coming here, and he will get a bullet through him the same as Roosevelt did. I will put one in him."

The police are said to know the name of the Italian, but they refuse to give it.

ANTI-CHRISTIAN RIOTING.

AMOY, Oct. 17.—Strong anti-Christian feeling is reported to be developing in the Cha-San district of Southwestern Fu-Kien.

Many disturbances have occurred, and the Government forces have been defeated in their attempts to restore order.

AMERICAN CONSUL A SUICIDE.

TENERIFFE, Oct. 17.—William Whitney Kitchen, United States Consul here, committed suicide last night by shooting himself with a revolver. He was a sufferer from chronic heart disease.

He was a Canadian by birth, having been born in Toronto on April 6, 1875, but he was naturalized in Buffalo in 1908. He was appointed to his post in Teneriffe on March 2, 1911.

MILITARY AIRMAN KILLED.

Lieutenant Blanc of the French Army 201st Aviation Victim.

CHALONS, France, Oct. 17.—Another French military aviator, Lieut. Blanc, was killed to-day. He was flying in his monoplane over the entrenched camp here, when one of the wings broke and he was thrown from a height of 1,200 feet.

Lieut. Blanc is the tenth person killed in an aeroplane accident this month, and the two hundred and first since aviation began in 1908. He figured in an accident three years ago, when on Oct. 18, 1909, he fell among the spectators at Juvisy, and mortally wounded a woman and injured a dozen other persons.

STAIRS TURNED INTO NIAGARA

A practical joker is held responsible for the flooding last night of Hartley Hall, Amsterdam Avenue, near 116th Street, one of the undergraduates' dormitories of Columbia University. Some one turned on the water at a fire hose on the fifth floor of the building about 11 o'clock, and a cascade of water came rushing down the stairs for fifteen minutes until the janitor had located the trouble.

The 200 students who lived in the building all turned out, many of them in pajamas, and assisted in putting things to rights. The water was ankle deep in the office and lobby.

BLOW KILLS BOY PUGILIST.

Special to The New York Times.

SUNBURY, Penn., Oct. 17.—Clyde Lincoln, a seventeen-year-old pugilist of Williamsport, Penn., died in the local hospital this morning from a blow on the jaw received in a boxing contest.

Lincoln essayed to fight ten rounds at Williamsport last night with Reno Tyson, a colored boxer from Harrisburg. In the fourth round Tyson caught his opponent on the jaw with a right swing. Lincoln fell and was carried out of the ring by his seconds to the hospital after they had worked for several hours to revive him, but he never regained consciousness.

Tyson was arrested and is held to await the action of the Coroner. He will probably be released, as physicians who examined Lincoln declare that he was not physically fit to go into the ring. They assert that the blow, under ordinary circumstances, would not have been more than a knockout.

BARS INDIANA BETTING.

Will Oust State Officials Who Allow Track Gambling, Says Gov. Marshall.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—"I shall not permit betting in Indiana. I have given instructions to proper officials to this effect. If they fail to carry out my instructions, I shall displace them."

This was Gov. Marshall's declaration today after hearing of betting at yesterday's opening of the fifteen days' race meeting of the Mineral Springs Jockey Club at Porter, Ind., as he passed through Chicago en route West on a speaking tour.

"I left the duty of enforcing the law in the hands of the Attorney General, Thomas M. Honan," Gov. Marshall said. "My instructions were positive—'search for all evidence, take advantage of every excuse for prosecution, and wipe gambling out.'

"I want it understood that I am not backing down. Mr. Honan is at work, and there is no doubt we will put the gamblers out of business."

Accounts of the first day's racing indicate that while the betting was not "open," there was opportunity to place bets with bookmakers "on the nod."

MARTIAL LAW IN ELY.

Warrants Out for Mine Officers Over Murder of Two Greek Strikers.

ELY, Nevada, Oct. 17.—Martial law was proclaimed in this district late to-day by Gov. Oddie, but the State police cannot reach here until to-morrow. In the meantime a force of Deputy Sheriffs will preserve order, which has been maintained since the two Greeks were shot and killed in a riot growing out of the strike against the Nevada Consolidated Mining Company at the Steptoe Smelter at McGill to-day.

Warrants issued for C. B. Lakenan, general manager of the company, and C. V. Jenkins, business manager of the Steptoe smelter, charging them with complicity in the alleged murder of the strikers by men said to have been hired as company guards, were not served by Sheriff Crain. He was not sure as to the effect of the proclamation of martial law upon his jurisdiction as Sheriff, and he came here to consult with Gov. Oddie before taking further action.

The bodies of Nick Pappas and George Barnosas, the dead strikers, were removed to Ely and an inquest was begun, but Coroner Cartwright adjourned the inquiry until to-morrow. Pappas and Barnosas were leaders of their countrymen here.

Colonel Better and Cheerful.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—This bulletin was issued at 6:30 P. M. to-night by Col. Roosevelt's physicians:

"Highest pulse to-day, 90; highest temperature, 99; highest respiration, 22. Temperature at present, 98.4. Breathing continues to improve. General condition good. Cheerful and confident.

J. B. MURPHY,

SCURRY L. TERRELL.

At 8 o'clock to-night Col. Roosevelt's temperature was 98.4; pulse, 84; respiration, 22. Dr. Golden, commenting on the drop in the pulse count of six beats since 6:30, said that it was not unusual for the pulse to decrease early in the morning and at night.

Pulse, 82; temperature, 98.8; respiration, 20. Col. Roosevelt is resting quietly. He announces that he breathes perceptibly easier. He says that he feels as well as could be expected.

DR. J. B. MURPHY,
DR. A. DEAN BEVAN,
DR. SCURRY L. TERRELL.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Almost back to normal condition, and with Dr. John Murphy declaring his recovery from the wound in his chest beyond doubt, Col. Theodore Roosevelt passed a day of mingled rest and restlessness.

For be it known that the boss of the Progressive Party sat in Room 308 of the Mercy Hospital to-day and ruled it with a firm and unyielding face. All the bosses that had gone before her—Quay, Platt, Hanna, and Hill—were amateurs to her. She was Boss Edith Roosevelt, and she ruled the occasion with an iron hand.

"Gosh!" complained the Colonel, twisting uneasily under his blankets. "I've maintained all along that this was un unbossed campaign and that the people ruled. It's not unbossed and the people don't rule. Nobody rules but Edith."

It was a just criticism. That sedate and determined woman took charge of affairs and reduced the Colonel to pitiable subjection. All day to-day he has not dared to say his soul was his own. Up to her advent he was throwing bombshells into his doctors, telling them that he cared not one continental what they might say and directing his own plan of medical campaign without regard to them.

The moment she arrived a hush fell uon T. R. After that he became as meek as Moses. To-day not even Mrs. Longworth could tease him into a snicker. Miss Ethel Roosevelt went in there as Room 314 and took care of him, but nobody else dared say a word.

Now and then the Colonel would send out secretly for somebody he knew and wanted to talk to, but every time the vigilant Mrs. Roosevelt would swoop down on the emissary as he was on his way to the Colonel's door and drive him away. No such tyrannical sway has ever been seen in the history of American politics.

Mrs. Roosevelt remained in her room and never showed her face outside, but every underling in the Mercy Hospital had orders to bring every card and letter that arrived to her, and not to him. The Colonel, lying two doors away, pleaded vainly for the privilege of passing on the missives handed in. But the Boss was inexorable. One glance at that determined face was enough to scare off a United States Senator.

Rather Likes Being Bossed.

She is the boss, and the best boss any political party has seen for some time. Whether the redoubtable Colonel really belives in women's rights, as Miss Jane Addams thinks, or whether he has been forced into it, as Mrs. Ida Husted Harper says, there is no doubt that there is one household where women's rights is the rule. He has been as meek as a lamb ever since the Boss arrived and began to run the machine in the Mercy Hospital.

For the rest, he is the same kindly soul he has ever been since he took his place there. He does not seem to think of himself at all. If he has a word to say, it is always for "Jim" or "Mike," or some attendant. Their eyes fill with tears when they talk of him. The puncture in his chest is the least of his concerns.

Yet as he tossed on his bed he would say every now and then, "Ethel, I do not see why your mother won't let 'Jack' in, or 'Jim,' or 'Joe,' or whoever might be hammering at the gates at the moment." But it was no use. Mother was inexorable. Ethel would sooth the warrior, and after a while he would grumblingly subside.

At the present moment the Colonel is apparently very grouchy over the way in which he is being bossed, although very fond of his boss.

"This thing about our's being a campaign against boss rule is a fake," he remarked to-day. "I never was so bossed-ruled in my life as I am at this moment."

But he grins fondly at his wife when he gave it, and it is evident that the "great unbossed" likes being bossed for once.

This afternoon he eluded his wife's vigilance long enough to dictate the following statement to John McGrath, his chief stenographer:

"I wish to express my cordial agreement with the manly and proper statement of Mr. Bryan when, in arguing for a continuance of the discussion of the issues at stake in this contest, he said: 'The issues of this campaign should not be determined by the act of an assassin. Neither Col. Roosevelt nor his friends could ask that the discussion should be turned away from the principles that are involved. If he is elected President, it should be because of what he has done in the past and what he proposes to do hereafter.'

"I wish to point out, however, that neither I nor my friends have asked that the discussion be turned away from the principles that are involved. On the contrary, we emphatically demand that the discussion be carried on precisely as if I had not been shot. I shall be sorry if Mr. Wilson does not keep on the stump, and I feel that he owes it to himself and the American people to continue on the stump.

"I wish to make one more comment on Mr. Bryan's statement. It is, of course, perfectly true that in voting for me or against me consideration must be paid to what I have done in the past and to what I proposed to do. But it seems to me far more important that consideration should be paid to what the Progressive Party proposes to do.

"I cannot too strongly emphasize the fact, upon which Progressives insist, that the welfare of any one man in this fight is wholly immaterial compared to the great and fundamental issues involved in the triumph of the principles for which our cause stands. If I had been killed the fight would have gone on exactly the same. Gov. Johnson, Senator Beveridge, Mr. Straus, Senator Bristow, Miss Jane Addams, Gifford Pinchot, Judge Ben Lindsey, Raymond Robbins, Mr. Prendergast, and the hundreds of other men now on the stump are preaching the doctrines that I have been preaching, and stand for and represent just the same cause. They would have continued the fight in exactly the same way if I had been killed, and they are continuing it in just the same way now that I am for the moment laid up.

"So far as my opponents are concerned, whatever could with truth and propriety have been said against me and my cause before I was shot can with equal truth and equal propriety be said against me, and it now should be so said; and the things that cannot be said now are merely the things that ought not to have been said before. This is not a contest about any man; it is a contest concerning principles.

"If my broken rib heals fast enough to relieve my breathing, I shall hope to be able to make one or two speeches in the campaign. In any event, if I am not able to make them, the men I have mentioned above and the hundreds like them will be stating our case right to the end of the campaign, and I trust our opponents will be stating their case also."

This answer to Bryan's statement represents what the Colonel feels about the conduct of the campaign. From now on it is likely to be the forerunner of a lot of similar statements until Mrs. Roosevelt and the doctors can hold him in check. He is panting to get into the campaign again, and is talking about speaking at the big Madison Square Garden meeting, although his doctors tell him he must do nothing of the kind. If he does make that speech it will be in defiance of his physicians, and, anyhow, it will be the only one of the campaign.

Day's Story in Bulletins.

Thanks to the restful day, enforced by the Boss, the Colonel this evening was in excellent physical condition. The story of the day is told by the bulletins as follows:

9:05 A. M.—Pulse 72, temperature 98.8, respiration 18 all night. Wound dressed; looks well. Some oozing. Examination of lungs by Dr. Lambert shows lungs in good condition. General condition splendid. The case progressing so favorably that unless some complications occur, the bullet will not be removed at present.

1 P. M.—Pulse, temperature, and respiration normal. Blood count has dropped to normal. Breathing seems easier.

6:30 P. M.—Highest pulse to-day was 90; highest temperature was 99; highest respiration was 22. Temperature at present is 98.4. Breathing continues to improve. His general condition continues good. He is cheerful and confident.

10:35 P. M.—Pulse, 82; temperature, 98.8; respiration, 20. Col. Roosevelt is resting quietly. He announces that he breathes perceptibly easier. He says that he feels as well as could be expected.

After their last consultation close to midnight to-night Col. Roosevelt's physicians announced late tonight that their patient's condition was improving. The fact that Col. Roosevelt breathed more easily then at any time since Schrank shot him Monday was accepted as a sign that the broken rib had begun to knit.

"Col. Roosevelt is reacting rapidly to a normal temperament," said Dr. John B. Murphy to-night following an examination of the patient. "At first he had to whistle to keep his courage up. Now he does not. At the outset it was necessary for him to force himself to be cheerful, but this condition has passed.

"He is improving rapidly, and I expect a complete recovery in a very short time. All doubt of a lack of recovery, I think, is gone. He feels well, and is happy and cheerful."

"Is he not anxious to leave the hospital?" was asked the physician.

"Very," was the reply. "It has been very hard for him to suddenly stop his campaign and undergo confinement of this kind. His energetic temperament and his active life all make to cause confinement of any kind unpleasant."

"It is said, doctor, that Col. Roosevelt will go to Oyster Bay Saturday."

"That is not advisable," said the physician. "He should remain here as long as he possibly can."

Dr. Alexander Lambert, the Roosevelt family physician, explained that there was no significance in the fact that the morning bulletin said the bullet would not be removed "at present."

The clinical record for the day showed some variations in temperature, pulse, and respiration, but only such changes, the physicians said, as were normal in the case of a person suffering from a bullet wound. The hourly record told of a slight fever in the morning and a subnormal temperature toward the end of the day. The pulse rose to 90 in the morning, and again late in the afternoon, to 92, while in the evening the count fell off.

After inspecting the record for the day, Dr. John F. Golden said that it tallied in every respect with conditions which were normal in Col. Roosevelt's case. The period of possible development of blood poisoning has still two or three days to run, although the physicians said that a change might occur at any time. As the hours go by day after day, they were all more optimistic to-night as to the outcome than at any other time.

Possibility of lockjaw, always to be reckoned with in the case of bullet wounds, has still to be considered, and as the period in which this might develop is six or seven days, Col. Roosevelt will not be regarded as out of danger, even should the next day pass with no signs of blood poisoning.

Although Mrs. Roosevelt is insisting that the patient shall remain in the hospital until Sunday at least, there is still talk of Col. Roosevelt being removed to Oyster Bay earlier. It is known that New York Central officials have been questioned as to the possibility of Col. Roosevelt's car being attached to the Twentieth Century Limited, leaving here Saturday afternoon. Despite this, however, it is generally believed that the Colonel will hardly be allowed to leave here before Tuesday.

After a restful night the Colonel awoke at 6:30 o'clock this morning and demanded his breakfast. The physicians, however, did not permit the Colonel to partake of the meal until they had made an examination. This showed an almost normal condition. He declared he had enjoyed "a bully sleep," and was "as hungry as a hunter."

His breakfast, brought to him at 7 o'clock, consisted of bacon, three soft boiled eggs, fruit, buttered toast, and a pot of tea. Mrs. Roosevelt breakfasted with her husband, sharing a grape fruit and cereal with him.

After breakfast Col. Roosevelt called for the morning papers and read them with interest, including all the reports of his condition and surroundings, editorial comments and the like. After finishing the newspapers he reached for a small mirror, which he usually uses while shaving, and by its use managed to get a glimpse of that part of the city visible from the windows of his room. The Colonel is in a bed with the head toward the window, and therefore cannot see out.

"Is it clear or cloudy to-day?" asked the Colonel, as he looked into his mirror, the sun shining brilliantly. "Why, it's clear! My, but it is great weather—an ideal October day! It's a shame to be tied up here in this way in such weather as this."

He glanced at Mrs. Roosevelt, who was seated near, reading his discarded newspapers, as he said this. She smiled quizzically at him, but said nothing. Evidently expecting an answer, Col. Roosevelt turned to the nurse, and, nodding toward Mrs. Roosevelt, said, "She's boss."

A thumping steam pipe in the anteroom caused a plumber to come during the morning to fix it. The Colonel, noting the elaborate precautions to prevent noise by the workmen and the lack of progress to stop the real noise, exclaimed, "Oh, go right ahead and fix it. I am not afraid of a little noise. I'm used to it."

At noon Mrs. Roosevelt decreed that no visitors were to see Col. Roosevelt, because he had not slept during the morning. Her fiat was accepted without question, and so no one was admitted to the Colonel's room except Miss Ethel Roosevelt, who reached the hospital soon after noon and settled down for the day. Miss Roosevelt had lost the worried look of yesterday and busied herself about the hospital like a Sister of Charity. She took charge of the gifts, principally flowers and books, which have been sent to her father, and visited the wards, distributing them to patients who, in her judgment, were in need of special ministrations.

Each gift came as a present from Col. Roosevelt, and each patient who received one was looked upon by the others as having been especially honored.

The Colonel enjoyed a luncheon of chicken breast, baked potatoes, beans, celery, ice cream, and angel cake. Mrs. Roosevelt dined with him.

As he finished he complained at his inactivity, and reaching for note papers, was engaged in writing for some time.

"If I can't go for a walk, I guess I will read some of these books on social economies and naturalist studies," he said. About him were some French and German books which he read part of the time during the afternoon. Later, the Colonel's face assumed a grim look that plainly told he was finding his confinement irksome.

"By George, I would like to go out for a good twelve-mile walk," he said to Mrs. Roosevelt, who was reading a book nearby. The Colonel wore reading spectacles with large celluloid frames. He lowered his head and looked over these at his wife. She looked up at him, returned his smile, and without a word went on with her reading. The Colonel looked plainly disappointed.

At 3 o'clock he was sleeping soundly, which continued for an hour. Again he said he was "feeling fine." A slight change for the better was noted by the physicians.

Col. Cecil Lyon called early in the afternoon to see the patient, but Mrs. Roosevelt met him at the door.

"You can't see Col. Roosevelt," she said. "He must not talk politics now."

"I won't talk politics," said the Texan.

"Hadn't you rather look at these telegrams?" returned Mrs. Roosevelt, as she handed him a bunch of them. Col. Lyon then invited Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel Roosevelt, Dr. Terrell, and the Colonel's Secretary out for an automobile ride. They accepted with the exception of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Miss Jane Addams called on Col. Roosevelt at 5 o'clock and was allowed to see him. They discussed woman suffrage for some time.

"If I am elected," said Col. Roosevelt, "I propose to submit to Congress a message, asking that an equal suffrage law for the District of Columbia be passed."

Three small girls, 8, 9, and 12 years old, who had put their pennies in one lot and bought a dozen roses and a dozen carnations each as a present to Col. Roosevelt, reached the hospital at 5:30 o'clock. Ushered to the Roosevelt rooms, Mrs. Roosevelt met them and presented them also with bouquets. They were Florence Schubert, Viola Kraft, and Evelyn Appleton.

That Col. Roosevelt had quit "feeling fine" and now felt "bully" was evidenced not only by the bulletins given out by his physicians, but by his own good humor to-night.

Among the Colonel's visitors this evening were two twin babies, who were born in a room adjacent to Mr. Roosevelt's, just as he was entering the hospital on Tuesday morning.

"I would give anything to see the tots," said Col. Roosevelt to-day when told of the incident.

This was conveyed to the proud mother, Mrs. Nellie Walsh.

"I'll let you take them to him," she said to the nurse. So just before 6 o'clock the nurse took the twins, one in each arm, and went to the Roosevelt suite.

Mrs. Roosevelt came out and went back to tell her husband. Through the open door Mr. Roosevelt's hearty laugh was plainly heard, as he was informed that "the twins" were calling on him.

"Bring them right in," he said. "This is fine."

"Hello, there!" he greeted as the nurse [illegible].

Worn out by her long watch, Mrs. Roosevelt left her husband's bedside at 9 o'clock this evening to retire in her room adjoining. It was the first time since her arrival from New York that she had left the patient during the evening hours. Col. Roosevelt insisted that she have a long night of rest, and, reassured by the reports of his physicians, she finally consented. Miss Ethel Roosevelt left at the same time for her temporary home in the neighborhood. The Colonel said he was not sleepy, and after his wife and daughter left he propped himself up in bed to read till he felt sleepy.

Samuel D. Coxa of Montana, an old-time friend of the Colonel, has sent to the hospital a juicy steak, cut from a bull moose, which he killed a few days ago in the mountains of Montana. The steak is now in the hospital refrigerator, while the attending physicians discuss the advisability of allowing the Colonel to enjoy it.

While the physicians were with him late in the evening for the final consultation Dr. Golden remarked that the Colonel was one of his favorite authors.

"Which book do you like best?" the Colonel asked.

"'African Game Trails,'" replied the Doctor.

"The illustrations," the Doctor replied promptly, and Col. Roosevelt had to admit for once that the laugh was on him.

A four-leaf clover was presented to him to-night, and while he declared that he was not superstitious, he added that he thought a good deal of his new token. But when he looked for it again it had vanished. The Colonel called his nurse, and then began a search for the missing leaf. It ended by turning down the bed covers and, looking under and around the Colonel, and it was the patient himself who at last spied it tucked under a corner of a sheet.

FROM EMPERORS AND PORTERS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Of the thousands of messages he has received since the attempt upon his life at Milwaukee, Col. Roosevelt appreciated none more than the letter he got from the three negro employes of the Pullman Company, who served him on his special train, on which he had been making his campaign tour.

The letter was written on the letterhead of the private car Mayflower, and was as follows:

Wednesday morning—Hon. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Mercy Hospital.

Dear Sir: It is with profound regret that we are leaving Chicago to-day for New York City and leaving you behind, since the cars have been released. However, you have our deepest and heartfelt sympathy and greatest desires for a speedy and safe recovery. We sincerely hope to see you on the battlefield (of the common people's rights) again ere long.

May God bless you, Colonel. Good-bye and good luck.

With our deepest sympathy and highest regards, we are yours to serve.

E. HOWELL, Walter.
WILLIAM CARSON, Porter.
J. BLUE, Chef.

During the day Col. Roosevelt answered dispatches from President Taft, Cardinal Gibbons, the Crown Prince and Princess of Germany and several others of those who had sent messages of sympathy.

He carefully reread the dispatch from President Taft and dictated this reply:

"I appreciate your sympathetic inquiry and wish to thank you for it."

"Sign that Theodore Roosevelt," he said to Martin.

To Cardinal Gibbons he sent this:

"I am deeply touched by your kind words."

To Gov. Wilson:

"I wish to thank you for your very warm sympathy."

To William F. McCombs:

"Your kind words and hopes for my recovery deeply appreciated."

Additional messages received to-day were:

LIEUT. CHRISTIAN (Seventh Cavalry.)—Distressed. God save the country.

MRS. F. WHITRIDGE.—Heartfelt thankfulness for safety. Hope all goes well.

"MURIO" (Paris.)—Mme. Roosevelt, Chicago: Loving thoughts.

LORD ROBERTS.—Lady Roberts and I are most concerned to hear of your wound. Best wishes for your speedy recovery.

Unsigned cablegram from Sydney, Australia.—Australian Bull Moose send sympathy and wish you success.

JOHN MITCHELL.—Was pained and shocked on hearing of the dastardly attempt upon your life. Am happy to know the prospects of a speedy recovery are bright.

Vice President DUNCAN, (American Federation of Labor.)—Hearty congratulations on your successful escape from a contemptible assassin's attack. It is assuring and reassuring to your thousands of friends in, as well as out of, the labor movement, to note the tone of the reports of your convalescence. May you long live to lead in and encourage and uplift for the great Progressive and humanitarian movement.

Messages of sympathy have also been received by Col. Roosevelt from European and Asiatic rulers. Both Col. Roosevelt and the leaders of his campaign have refrained from making any of these messages public, although importuned to do so. Among the messages are said to be cablegrams from King George of England, Emperor William of Germany, Czar Nicholas of Russia, the Emperor of Japan, and Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria.

HAIL MARTIN AS HERO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Letters and telegrams from every part of the country hailing him as a hero are being received by Elbert A. Martin, Secretary to Col. Roosevelt, who on Monday night leaped upon the Colonel's assailant and prevented the firing of other shots toward him.

SEES ROOSEVELT LANDSLIDE.

Medill McCormick Declares It Is Now on Its Way.

Direct word from the bedside of Col. Roosevelt was received at Progressive headquarters in the Hotel Manhattan last night through Medill McCormick, Vice Chairman of the National Progressive Committee, who is in charge of the campaign in the West. Mr. McCormick arrived from Chicago on his way to Washington, where he is to testify before the Clapp Committee investigating campaign contributions.

"Unquestionably Col. Roosevelt was savagely wounded," said Mr. McCormick. "If he hadn't been a giant it would have bowled him over. For my part, I do not think he will be up for ten days or a fortnight."

Mr. McCormick said that in all probability it would depend upon Mrs. Roosevelt and the physicians as to whether the Colonel was to appear at the big rally in Madison Square Garden. It was plain that he had heard directly from the physicians that if the Colonel attended he would be in no condition to speak.

"David W. Mulvane, Republican National Committeeman of Kansas," said Mr. McCormick, "and W. R. King, in Oregon, have been giving out statements that Senator Dixon has been trying to make capital out of the shooting.

"If there are a couple of cads, I think it is up to the Taft and Wilson leaders to kick them out of their positions. Marshall, Democratic nominee for Vice President, and Hilles and Harlan, by their reckless language and outrageous falsehoods, have tended to inevitably incite violence. I mention these three men because their campaign has been essentially based on falsehood. They have been simply indulging in plain, old-fashioned campaign lies."

Mr. McCormick said that a Roosevelt landslide was on the way.

"It started three weeks ago," he said. "A fortnight ago we wrote off Washington, Oregon, and California in the Far West as certain for Roosevelt. To this number we have added Idaho, Colorado, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Minnesota, and Illinois. We have reasonable assurances that we will carry Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin. The only doubt is regarding Iowa, where we have not made a campaign."

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, the distinguished writer on hygiene and medical topics, came to Progressive Headquarters yesterday and had a talk with Mr. Perkins. Dr. Hutchinson came from a visit to Col. Roosevelt.

"Col. Roosevelt in all probability will not leave Chicago before Monday," said Dr. Hutchinson. "I don't think the doctors will let him. I do not think the Colonel will suffer any after consequences of the shooting, once the danger of septic poisoning is past and the wound has healed. The bullet, I suppose, he will always carry as a reminder of one of the most thrilling episodes in his eventful life."

Dr. Hutchinson said the Colonel was very cheerful. With Dr. Hutchinson the Colonel discussed the health law programme of the Progressives for about half an hour.

JOHNSON TO SEE COLONEL.

Will Discuss Conduct of the Campaign with Him.

MARION, Ind., Oct. 17.—With a final shot at Indiana political bosses and a criticism of Gov. Marshall for his alleged failure to cause Progressive legislation to be enacted, Gov. Johnson to-night closed his Indiana campaign and hurried to Chicago to confer with Col. Roosevelt to-morrow.

Important developments may come out of the meeting between the two candidates, although just at this time Gov. Johnson does not care to make public what the nature of the discussion will be. The loss of Col. Roosevelt for the present has practically thrown the active leadership of the new party on Gov. Johnson, and he is anxious to get the Colonel's views on certain problems the Progressives are facing.

NO MORE PERSONALITIES.

Republican Chairman Announces Policy—Roosevelt Shooting Not an Issue.

Chairman Hilles of the Republican National Convention, in commenting yesterday on the shooting of Col. Roosevelt, said:

"The deplorable attack upon Col. Roosevelt, arousing, as it did, a natural wave of sympathy and sentiment, in which Presirent Taft and this committee freely shared, should not be and can not be politically considered. This attack seems to have been no different from other fanatical assaults upon public men by those influenced by doctrines that result in poisoning the public mind and leading the unthinking and inexperienced to deeds of violence. We should be very thankful, however, that so far this country has been afflicted with a much smaller element of this sort than almost any other nation in the world, and I hope we shall continue to maintain this distinction."

Mr. Hilles said he welcomed the fact that from now on personalities were to be eliminated from the campaign and issues alone dealt with.

"I am glad to find," he said, "the opinion so generally expressed in the newspapers of the country, following the attempt to assassinate Col. Roosevelt, that the time has come when the Presidential campaign should be made solely upon the question of party principles, and not on personalities.

"The Republican National Committee has always sought to follow this rule. The Republican managers have no quarrel with the man who makes sincere and conscientious criticism of the Republican Party, its principles and its candidates, and we feel certain that the opposing managers expect and respect counter-criticism in kind. That is true campaigning. That is what the real American voter, solicitous only for the welfare of the country instead of for the aspirations of one of the candidates for the Presidency, most greatly needs and hopes for. He waints a straightforward discussion of the real issues of the campaign, so that he may know how to cast his vote, and I make the unequivocal announcement that from now until Nov. 5 the Republican National Committee intends to confine itself to this kind of a campaign. It will deal solely with principles and will not listen to those suggesting or demanding that the campaign be conducted upon personalities. This element, we feel certain, is a minority, not at all interested in the welfare of the country, and desires only to see a 'scrap.'

"We feel that President Taft and his Administration, the Republican Party and its principles, and the Chicago Convention and its platform are thoroughly capable of withstanding honest criticism. We are concentrating all our energies to pointing out what we believe to be the basic and economic weaknesses of the principles of the Democratic and Progressive Parties. We know that the opposing managers will retaliate and we shall welcome their retaliation so long as it is confined to legitimate criticism. If such a rule is faithfully lived up to by the three parties, the public will be able to weigh the opposing arguments and cast a conscientious and matured vote. The Republican Party will welcome a result decided upon such a basis."

SAYS SOUTH WOULD SECEDE.

Minister Drives Hearers Away by an Attack on Roosevelt.

Theodore Roosevelt was denounced at a meeting of the Southern New York Baptist Association last night in the Tremont Baptist Church, Tremont and Webster Avenues, the Bronx, by the Rev. Oscar Haywood, pastor of the Collegiate Baptist Church of the Covenant, West Thirty-third Street, near Eighth Avenue.

"The Solid South, with the assistance of other States, will prevent the enthronement of Roosevelt," said Dr. Haywood. "If Theodore Roosevelt should be elected, if he should precipitate himself into office, the South would secede again from the Union."

Before Dr. Haywood could continue, many of the other ministers arose and protested. The Rev. Dr. Robert Stuart MacArthur called upon Dr. Haywood to withdraw his remarks, and Dr. Haywood refused.

"If Theodore Roosevelt is elected President, there will be no more republic. It will be Theodore or nobody," said Dr. Haywood. "I will vote for Wilson."

He concluded his remarks by [illegible]. At the conclusion of Dr. Haywood's remarks the speech-making ended, most of those present leaving [illegible].

COLONEL SPARED AT CHICAGO

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 17.—Late this afternoon Judge A. C. Backus, in the Municipal Court, ordered the clerk to record that he had increased John C. Schrank's bail from $7,500, the amount fixed in the lower court, to $15,000. He said informally if that figure was not high enough to keep the assassin in jail he would put it still higher.

The Judge later explained his action in increasing the amount of bail as intended to prevent the onslaught of a battery of moving-picture men upon Schrank, for the picture men had arranged late to-day to furnish the $7,500 bail, get Schrank out of the county jail into a crowd, and then get pictures of him before the authorities could prevent them, and after the pictures had been taken recall the bail, and have him remanded to the county jail. The Judge said that he would send the bail skyhigh, if necessary, to prevent such action, forecasting like action to-day. The picture men told the Judge that he could not put the bail too high for them eventually to get Schrank out for their pictures.

Judge Backus took this action technically in open court, but actually with no one present except himself, the District Attorney and Schrank in care of two deputies. This was done to avoid publicity and the moving picture men.

In a prolonged conversation with District Attorney W. C. Zabel to-day Schrank detailed some new phases of the case.

Schrank said that he did not want to kill Col. Roosevelt during the reception to the ex-President in the Hotel La Salle in Chicago on Saturday morning, because it would look "awful bad."

"There was so many people receiving him," Schrang said, "and I suppose the city of Chicago would like to give him a decent, respectable reception. It would look awful bad if at the reception he would get shot down."

Only three times, Schrank said, was he close enough to shoot Col. Roosevelt during all of the time he trailed the ex-President. He did not shoot at Chattanooga because his courage failed him. His examination on this point follows:

Q.—So the only three times you were within reach of him were in front of the Hotel La Salle, in Chicago, Saturday morning?

A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—And at Chattanooga Depot?

A.—At the depot.

Q.—And then in Milwaukee Monday night? Is that correct?

A.—That is correct.

Q.—And at Chattanooga it was a matter of personal courage with you; your nerve failed you?

A.—Just for a moment it failed me; yes, Sir.

Examined relative to his occupations in New York, Shrank said that while he was in the liquor business he contributed to the Police Department. On this point his examination was as follows:

Q.—Did you ever give money to the police?

A.—There is a different way of doing that. If you didn't do it willingly, of course there would be a way. They will be around one of those nice Sundays and arrest you, and, naturally, there will be two there, and they will impress a charge against you in a manner that will get you out in case you paid them. I have been doing that several times. Give each one a $5 bill or a $10 bill and they won't press the charge.

Q.—The men that came around on this mission, were they police or politicians? A.—Well, regular officers—specials.

Schrank has introduced the game of checkers among the prisoners at the county jail. This morning he became tired of writing and walked out of his cell. After mingling for a time with the other prisoners he inquired if there was any game at which they could pass the time. He was told that there had been an old deck of cards about, but that it was now gone.

"We should have a checker board," he declared. "That is a fine game." After a search Schrank and another prisoner managed to find a piece of white board. With a lead pencil they marked the black and white squares. When the work was done Schrank eyed it with satisfaction. Then with pieces of paper Schrank and Walter Stazzel, a short-time prisoner, engaged in a game of checkers. After they had played five games, of which Schrank had won four, he pushed the board away.

"You should practice on this game, my friend," he told Stazzel. "You are hardly interesting."

Schrank has a rosary with which he refuses to part. He wears it about his neck, tied with a short string. When he was first taken to the county jail he was asked to turn it over to the jailer because it was feared that he might use it in a suicide attempt. He protested vigorously, and made so great a disturbance that Sheriff Arnold permitted him to retain it.

Hour after hour on Wednesday and to-day Schrank sat in his cell, covering page after page of foolscap with closely written lines. What he is writing he does not say, and Sheriff Arnold says he does not know.

"I have not asked him," said the Sheriff. "I have no right to examine it or take it away from him unless he asks me to mail it for him."

Schrank was not at the Northwestern station when Col. Roosevelt arrived in Milwaukee. He made this declaration to Sheriff Arnold after he was asked whether or not he had contemplated shooting the ex-President as he alighted from the train.

"I did not even know at what station Roosevelt was coming in or over what road," Schrank declared. "I had no intention of going to the station. I was walking about the streets during the day."

The authorities so far have failed to find any confirmation of the assertion of Schrank that he inherited $25,000 from his New York relatives, the best they can learn being that he borrowed enough money from friends to enable him to pursue the former President. His money was nearly gone when he reached here, and it is believed that he had to make the attempt here or give up the pursuit.

"I believe Schrank is telling the truth when he says that he had no confederates; that he is not [illegible] I am now confident," said District Attorney Zabel. "The man already has been questioned fifty times or more, and always has told the same story. However, I want to go slow. I want to give any person so desiring opportunity for thorough investigation."

Col. Roosevelt, the District Attorney said, would not be summoned to appear at the trial in Milwaukee. There are a large number of witnesses who saw the shooting, and their testimony will be sufficient.

"I have sufficient testimony to prosecute Schrank, regardless of his own statements and confessions," said Mr. Zabel. "I have witnesses to the shooting, and also patrolmen who saw the revolver in his hand and can testify to his struggle to escape from his captor. Col. Roosevelt's place is in the campaign, and he should not be under subpoena to come to Milwaukee."

Souvenir hunters by the score are visiting the District Attorney or sending him letters asking for relics, such as parts of Col. Roosevelt's shirt, the gun, or any of the things found upon Schrank.

MRS. HUTT GETS DIVORCE.

Decree Granted to Wife of Artist on Grounds of Desertion.

RENO, Nev., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Edna Hutt, wife of Henry Hutt, the artist, was granted a decree of divorce in the District Court here to-day on the grounds of desertion.

The attorney for the husband objected only to testimony showing cruelty. His cross-examination of the witness established a case of desertion.

For years Mrs. Hutt said after she returned from Narragansett with her son to find her former apartments deserted, she was ready and willing to take her husband back if he would agree to mend his habits, but all overtures were refused. There remained nothing of furniture or clothing; nothing but two baby carriages in cellar which her husband had told the janitor to give to the ashman as they would no longer be needed.

While Hutt's attorney made every attempt to exclude testimony showing drunkenness or cruelty on the part of the husband, he said he was convinced that Mrs. Hutt had a clear case of desertion.

Mrs. Hutt testified that her married life was happy for three years, when her husband began drinking.

The plaintiff's attorney maintained that "constructive desertion" could be shown, and the complaint charged harsh and unkind treatment. The defense, however, fought anything except that which showed actual desertion, and was sustained.

Mrs. Hutt learned that her husband was living in his studio. She did not go there, because she knew the single room would be filled with models, and she did not want to be humiliated or insulted. She had always been one to forgive and suggest reconciliation, and thought that her husband should come to her. After two weeks she went to Attorney Herbert C. Smythe, who wrote to Hutt, and Hutt referred him to Paul Grout, but refused to meet his wife or accept any proposition of reconciliation.

Mrs. Hutt was Miss Edna Garfield Della Torre before she married Henry Hutt in New York on January 17, 1903. The famous illustrator first met his future wife, whom he has frequently declared to be more perfect in face and figure than the Venus de Milo, when she came to him looking for work as a professional model. She had previously posed for Charles Dana Gibson, A. B. Wenzel, and other well-known artists.

The first indications of a break in their romance came when, on Feb. 28, 1909, Henry Hutt was found sitting on the pavement in front of the Hotel Martinique, on Broadway, sobbing hysterically and throwing sketches into the gutter. It developed that his wife had left their home in the Stratton Arms four days previously and had not returned.

Their domestic difficulties were definitely aired in March, 1911, when Supreme Court Justice Platzek granted Mrs. Hutt alimony of $100 a month, $25 a month for the support of their seven-year-old son, and $500 counsel fees.

In her affidavits Mrs. Hutt charged that her husband had been drinking heavily since 1906. The artist asserted that his wife had a habit of throwing a brass desk set at him, and that at meals he frequently had to dodge missiles.

On Aug. 30 the artist's wife nearly collapsed in court when Judge French refused to grant the desired decree of divorce pending the production of further evidence.

FUGITIVE WITNESS CAPTURED

Wm. Cleary, Who Broke from House of Detention, Taken After a Fight.

William Cleary, one of the three men who escaped from the House of Detention on Sunday night, was arrested at 9:35 o'clock last night by Detectives Finn, Nelson, and Andrews, who had been watching the vicinity of his home at 320 East Thirty-third Street since his escape. He had been held as a witness in the case against Thomas Gannon, who is charged with the murder of Chris. Larsen on March 24.

Cleary, who was talking with a young woman when caught, shouted for help, and members of the Corcoran's Roost gang ran to his rescue and surrounded the detectives, but were kept at bay by their drawn revolvers. Cleary put up a stiff fight, but was overpowered by the detectives and taken to the East Thirty-fifth Street Station, with the cowed gang following.

The prisoner said he had been living in a Bowery lodging house since his escape, but refused to give any information as to the whereabouts of Max Kahn, the man who with "Gyp the Blood's" wife rented the flat where the Rosenthal gunmen hid, and who had escaped with Cleary.

The third fugitive, Thomas Wise, a negro, was recaptured last Monday. He said when arrested that he and Cleary and Kahn had waited in the recreation yard until the guards had been withdrawn and had then swung open a basement door, climbed to the bars of a second story window, reached the sill of a third story window, and swung themselves to the roof of the next door tenement house, from which they slid down a clothes pole into the yard.

RADOWITZ OUT ON BAIL.

Belief That Case Against Young German Nobleman Will Collapse.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—Baron Clement von Radowitz, the young German nobleman who is charged with swindling Paris tradesmen of sums aggregating over $100,000, was released on $3,000 bail to-day. It is the general impression that he is the victim of money lenders who, knowing him to be a scion of a wealthy family, took advantage of his prodigality.

It is expected that the magistrate will find that there is no case against him.

The Belted Overcoat for Men

¶ Now that the thermometer has had a sinking spell, et's talk of overcoats.

¶ Fortunately for you this season, variety is the thing in overcoatings.

¶ There are blues, browns, tans, grays and the new Cambridge cloths, and a wonderful collection of rough novelty mixtures, all in varying weaves and weights.

¶ But the big feature of this season's overcoat styles is the belted back, in any one of a half dozen variations.

¶ The belt may be sewn on plain, embellished with a button or two, divided in the center, or made in three piece effect, but to be en courant it must be belted one way or another.

¶ Particularly for Fall wear, the best bet is a garment cut a little below the knee, Raglan or square shoulders, patch or slash pockets, and an abbreviated belt which gathers the garment into a folded effect at the waist.

¶ Smart is not the word for it, nor shapely, nor swagger, for it is all of these and much more besides. It is the choicest, most exclusive Fall overcoat that ever came from the tailor's bench.

MADERO UNMOVED BY DIAZ UPRISING

TROOPS DESERT GOVERNMENT

Des Moines Ordered to Vera Cruz to Protect Americans — Washington Considers New Revolt Serious.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 17.—President Madero minimized the importance of the new rebel movement under Felix Diaz in the course of an interview to-day. He also reiterated his oft-repeated declaration that he would not resign. He said:

"Undoubtedly the news of the uprising under Felix Diaz has caused great alarm, but it should not be given more importance than it has, which in my judgment is not great.

"The discontented will take occasion again to call for my resignation from my post, but, as I have declared on other occasions, the legality of the Government is undeniable. Therefore I shall never resign before my term expires. Only death can remove me from the Presidency before that time."

The general public does not seem inclined to share the optimism of the Government, and it is considered not improbable that some part of the army ordered against Felix Diaz will join him instead of fighting against him. There was an indication of this kind to-day when a detachment of 125 men, commanded by a Captain, which was sent from Orizaba by Gen. Beltran, met a rebel outpost a short distance to the south and at once joined the rebels.

President Madero's administration, in fact, appears to have reached a critical point. The resignation of the Cabinet was demanded in the Chamber of Deputies last night by Deputy Querido Moheno, but the President of the Chamber refused to permit discussion and the motion will come up again to-day.

With Gen. Felix Diaz, a nephew of the exiled ex-President in undisputed control of Vera Cruz, Mexico's most important seaport, reports have reached here also of new uprisings in various parts of the republic, including the City of Pachuca, only fifty-five miles from the capital.

A battle between the rebels under Felix Diaz and the Government troops is expected somewhere between Vera Cruz and Cordoba. The rebellious troops, with Felix Diaz and Col. Diaz Ordaz at their head, left Vera Cruz early to-day, following the line of the Mexican Railway to meet the Government troops from Mariano and Ascarraga.

Diaz Denounces Madero.

Peace is all that Felix Diaz promises in a proclamation issued last night, copies of which have reached the capital. President Madero and his family are bitterly assailed in the document. The President is accused of being a murderous tyrant, whom Diaz calls on all, especially the army, to assist him in overthrowing. Diaz promises that once peace has been restored to the country elections will be honestly conducted. In the meantime the Provisional Government will, he says, be carried on by honest and capable men, regardless of political affiliations.

Among those composing his Provisional Cabinet is Gen. Bernardo Reyes, who is now in the military prison of the capital as the result of the failure of an attempted rebellion a year ago. He has been named Minister for War. Ex-Provisional President Francisco de la Barra has been slated for the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, while Alberto Garcia Granados, who was Minister of the Interior under de la Barra, is mentioned for the same portfolio. The Department of Communications, according to the rebel plan, is to go to Alberto Robles Gil, now Governor of Jalisco, who, it is said, may formally throw his State into rebellion as the result of a sharp altercation with President Madero, who recently demanded his resignation.

Other Towns Reported Fallen.

Jalapa and Cordoba are reported to have fallen into the power of the Diaz army. Although no confirmation of this has been received, there is reason to regard the report as true.

Vera Cruz is now completely isolated except by water. The Government has instructed the railways to withdraw all their rolling stock and to establish new terminals at Orizaba, Jalapa, and Tierra Blanca. No trains will be run beyond the Federal lines.

The total isolation of Diaz from communication will depend upon the loyalty of the gunboats, which is not considered likely to be maintained. Some of the men manning the gunboats Bravo and Morales landed yesterday at Vera Cruz and offered their services to Diaz. Commodore Azuota, however, refused to join the movement. He placed the second officers in command of the boats and had their guns trained on the city.

The Ward Line steamer due at Vera Cruz to-morrow carries some scores of American citizens who will be forced to remain in the besieged city or to return on the same steamer.

The Federal Government recognizes the importance of the capture by the rebels of a seaport, since Mexico will thus be forced to do its own patrolling in order to prevent the importation of arms, ammunition, and supplies.

SAYS MOVEMENT IS GENERAL.

All Rebels Co-operating Against Madero, Says Orozco's Agent.

EL PASO, Texas, Oct 17.—"All revolutionary elements in Mexico to-day are co-operating to one end—the downfall of Madero and his Government," declared Attorney Gomez Robelo, personal representative of the revolution of Pascual Orozco in the north of Mexico, when seen in his hiding place here. Released from jail here, and exonerated from a political charge preferred by the Mexican Government, Robelo is avoiding rearrest, but is keeping in touch with developments.

"I have evidence here," said he, producing letters, "that the revolution begun by Gen. Felix Diaz and Gen. Aguilar in the State of Vera Cruz is in conjunction with Orozco's movement in the north. The Federals will not fight against the rebels. How, then, will they fight against their brothers, the Federals who have revolted in Vera Cruz?"

Robelo says Gen. Orozco continues toward the south in the State of Coahuila and soon will be working in conjunction with Federal troops.

All remains quiet in Juarez. No movement has been made either from Juarez or Casas Grande to prevent the destruction of the Mexican Northwestern Railway by rebels. Federal troops all over the North of Mexico are resting on their arms.

CRUISER TO VERA CRUZ.

Des Moines Ordered There—Diaz Rising Deemed Serious.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The little news that reached Washington from the City of Mexico to-day confirmed previous reports of the inception of the new revolution under Gen. Felix Diaz and his capture of Vera Cruz. The cruiser Des Moines, which is due at Progreso, Yucatan, to-night, will find there orders to proceed at once to Vera Cruz, which is 450 miles from Progreso, and should be there by Saturday night. The Des Moines carries no marines, and for the present will simply cast anchor and await results.

Should Americans in Vera Cruz be in peril and appeal to Lieut. Hammond, commanding the Des Moines, every effort will be made to afford them protection. Whether other warships will be ordered to the scene of new hostilities was not decided to-day. At the State Department it was said that the only course to be pursued was to wait and see if disorders occurred in the attempt by the Mexican Government to recapture Vera Cruz.

BALKAN NATIONS PROCLAIM WAR

heard from Kiamil Pasha that public sympathy in England was on the Turkish side in the war, adding:

"I greatly appreciate the good wishes of the people, and thank them from my heart. War has been forced upon us. Turkey would never have attacked if she had been left at peace. We have grasped the sword solely to defend our territory and our just rights."

A telegram from Belgrade says that before leaving that city for the military headquarters, King Ferdinand signed a declaration of war, which will be read by the monarch himself in the presence of the troops at Starazagora, who will be blessed by ecclesiastical dignitaries and sprinkted with holy water.

BELGRADE, Oct. 17.—War against Turkey was formally declared to-night by the Servian Government. The declaration was transmitted to the Servian Minister at Constantinople this afternoon, with instructions to present it to the Porte to-morrow. The Minister will then leave Turkey immediately for Belgrade.

The great powers will also receive notification to-morrow of Servia's declaration.

Immense crowds paraded the streets, singing and cheering, after the announcement of Servia's determination to fight. The crowds are increasing hourly, and an enthusiastic war spirit prevails.

Two hundred Arnaut tribesmen were killed this morning in a battle with Servian troops on the frontier near Priepoli in the northern part of the Sanjak of Novi-Bazar. The tribesmen attacked and were repulsed by the Servians.

King Ferdinand Joining His Army.

SOFIA, Oct. 17.—King Ferdinand is on his way to the headquarters of the Bulgarian Army near the Turkish frontier.

The King's manifesto to the people proclaiming war will be published to-morrow. A special service will be held in the Cathedral, at which the Archbishop will invoke a blessing on the holy war on which the country is embarking. Similar services will be held throughout the country.

Premier Guechoff issued a statement to-day on the attitude of Turkey, saying:

"With pride which ill accords with the miserable rôle she plays in the European concert, Turkey has just declared that the identical note of the three Balkan States does not merit an answer."

The Premier characterizes this as comical in view of Lord Salisbury's definition of Turkey at the Berlin Conference as "a power dependent upon the protection of others for its existence," and adds:

"Turkey also accuses the Balkan States of being lacking in deference to the great powers. It is ridiculous that a Government which, since the Crimean war, has done nothing but trample under foot its pledges to the great powers, upon whose protection it depends, should accuse us of failure to show respect for its protectors."

ATHENS, Oct. 17.—Fighting between the Greek Army and the Turkish forces stationed along the frontier began early to-day.

A daring feat was accomplished this morning by the commanders of the Greek gunboats A and D.

At 2 o'clock they made a dash to force the Turkish blockade at the narrow entrance to the Gulf of Arta, one side of which is Turkish and the other Greek. They were observed from the Turkish fort at Prevesa, which dominates the entrance, and a heavy fire was directed on them, which they returned with spirit.

They succeeded in fighting their way through, and at 4:30 A. M. reached the Greek town of Vonitza, on the southern shore of the bay, with very little damage.

There is great jubilation over what is described as the almost miraculous feat of the two gunboats. Unnoticed by the Turkish gunners they passed within 240 yards of the Turkish fortress of Pantokrator, and then through the narrow channel between the new fortress at Prevesa and the coast batteries. They saw the Turkish troops busily engaged in completing defensive works in the full blaze of electric lights. A Turkish gunboat and destroyer are shut up in Prevesa, where they sought refuge at the beginning of the Italian war.

The Turkish Minister to Greece left Athens to-day without complying with the formalities usual in such cases and without asking for his passports.

The Governor of the National Bank announces that the cash reserves and deposits abroad are so large that there is no fear of a rise in the rate of exchange or of exceptional measures on behalf of commercial interests.

Convoying Greeks from America.

ALGIERS, Oct. 17.—An escort of four Greek destroyers is convoying the Greek steamer Macedonia, which has on board a number of Greeks, Bulgarians, and Servians, who are returning from America to join their regiments to fight against the Turks. She carries also a large cargo of ammunition.

The Macedonia arrived here last night from New York and found the four destroyers, recently purchased by Greece in England, waiting to accompany her on her voyage.

PODGORITZA, Oct. 17.—The fighting ceased this afternoon temporarily. The troops of the Montenegrin centre column are concentrating around Tushi preparatory to a general advance against Scutari. Strong bodies of Turks have been dispatched from that city against them and a great battle is imminent on ground most unfavorable to the Montenegrin Army—the marshy eastern shore of Lake Scutari.

King Nicholas has awarded to Gen. Vukotitch the highest military distinction, the Oblics Medal, for his victory at Berana.

Over 300 wounded from the northern column have been brought here, and the lack of doctors is already making itself felt. Crown Princess Militza is personally directing the work at the provisional hospitals.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 17.—A formal declaration of war against Servia and Bulgaria was published by the Turkish Government to-day.

Hostilities were opened at half past two this morning by the Turkish troops at various points on the Bulgarian and Servian frontiers.

The divisions of the Turkish army were ordered to make a simultaneous forward movement.

In giving the order for a general advance, the War Minister mentioned only that the movement was to be made against the frontiers of Bulgaria and Servia.

There is a powerful Turkish army concentrated near the Greek frontier, but this has not yet been put into motion.

All reports received here to-night indicate that serious fighting is proceeding at various points, including the district north of Gusinge, on the Montenegrin frontier.

According to official information, large numbers of Pomaks, fanatical tribes of Mussulman Bulgars, who in past times have massacred Christian Bulgarians wholesale, crossed the frontier at Kirdchali, about forty miles to the west of Mustapha Pasha, penetrating several miles into Bulgarian territory, the Bulgarians retiring.

The Ottoman Government this morning handed their passports to the Servian and Bulgarian Ministers, and they will probably depart to-morrow, as will also the Greek Minister.

A note addressed by the Turkish Government this morning to the Bulgarian and Servian Legations here said it was impossible to maintain peace any longer, although it was the ardent desire of the Porte to do so. The Government was, therefore, obliged to put an end to the missions of the Bulgarian and Servian Legations and the diplomats were invited to withdarw their passports and leave Constantinople at the earliest moment.

The note stated that the step was taken in consequence of the recent note handed to the Turkish Government by the Balkan States, which Turkey considered as constituting interference with her internal affairs. A second factor was the mobilization undertaken by Servia and Bulgaria, and the third reason was the daily skirmishes on the frontier.

The Cabinet assembled to-day to consider the note sent by Greece, which had only just been received, as the Turkish Minister at Athens refused to transmit it.

Similar action to that taken against Servia and Bulgaria will probably be taken against Greece, as the note was found to be identical with those received from Sofia and Belgrade. The Council of Ministers was still engaged to-night in debating the attitude to be taken toward Greece.

The decision of the Government to declare war is welcomed with enthusiasm by the Turkish people as the action of a strong and confident Cabinet.

Turkey Using Old War Fund.

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Turkey has withdrawn a large sum of money, reported to be $17,500,000, from Germany, according to a dispatch from Bucharest.

The money was deposited in Germany in the course of the reign of Sultan Abdul Hamid, and was earmarked exclusively for a war fund.

Germany has consented, says the correspondent, to the delivery of the money to the Ottoman Government, and the gold is now on the way from Kustendji, Rumania, to Constantinople on board the steamer Regele Carol I.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 18.—While Turkey and the Balkan States are carrying out the last formalities connected with the declaration of war, interest has been transferred to the prospects of the campaign.

Two influences will, it is expected, make the war short and sharp. The first is the approach of Winter; the second is financial pressure.

None of the belligerent States is in a position to stand the strain of prolonged military operations. Bulgaria was disappointed recently in her efforts to raise even a small loan in Paris, while Turkey has been endeavoring both in New York and Paris to borrow money, up to the present without success. The financial resources of the other States concerned are very limited.

Little is likely to be heard of the proposed European conference until some decisive action has been fought, when doubtless the European Concert will renew its efforts to bring about peace on broad lines.

The war will, it is expected, develop into a land campaign between Bulgaria and Turkey and a naval struggle between Turkey and Greece. It is believed that Turkey will concentrate her strength and attack the Bulgarians separately before the Servians can come to their aid. Much will depend on whether Turkey gains command of the sea, which would facilitate the transport of her Asiatic troops to the theatre of war.

How far preparations have gone is largely a matter of conjecture, as neither Military Attachés nor correspondents are allowed anywhere near the armies. The troops may, in fact, be ready for an immediate big battle, but military authorities do not expect one for some days.

Little is known as to how far the allied Balkan States have concerted their strategic plans. The independent action of Montenegro seems to indicate that a settled course is being followed.

The Bulgarian Cabinet was sitting last night in continuous session, but was having difficulty in communicating with Belgrade and Athens.

The news of actual fighting is indefinite and conflicting. The Turks claim a substantial victory over the Montenegrins.

The Greek people are rejoicing over their first naval victory, the forcing by two gunboats of Prevesa Strait. This feat gives the Greeks command of the Gulf of Arta and secures a supply of stores to the army in Epirus.

Greece Cannot Now Buy Cruisers.

The official declaration of war deprives Greece of the services of a Chinese cruiser she had arranged to buy at Newcastle, as she has been obliged to abandon the purchase for fear of diplomatic complications. The four destroyers which Greece purchased at Liverpool shipped naval crews at Algiers and have started for Greece, convoying the steamer Macedonia, which has on board Greek reservists from New York. These sea wasps will prove serviceable if they succeed in reaching a Greek port without being intercepted by Turkish warships.

There is an inclination among military men to think that the importance of the Montenegrin victories has been exaggerated and that much has been made of them in order to screen the struggle that is going on for the possession of the forts guarding the Turkish town of Scutari.

The Montenegrins are fighting desperately, but they neglect the commissariat service and the hospitals, which are essential in such a campaign.

MANY BANKS RAISING RATES.

France Not Likely to Let Gold Leave Country Now War Has Begun.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 18.—With the declaration of war in the Balkans the Bank of England raised its rate to 5 per cent., and the Bank of France followed suit by an advance from 3 to 3½ and the Bank of Sweden from 4½ to 5 per cent. The National Bank of Belgium increased its rate on Wednesday to 5 per cent., and it is expected that the German and Austrian official rates also soon will be advanced.

The rise in the Bank of England rate was generally expected, and that of the Bank of France rate caused no great surprise, for the situation in Europe is very similar to that of September, 1911, when every European bank rate was raised in consequence of the effect of the Morocco trouble.

There are, however, factors in the present situation which make it in some measure less alarming than was the case after the Agadir coup. Before the Balkan crisis became acute it was evident that the activity of trade throughout the world generally would affect the gold supply and make the usual Autumn financial operations of some difficulty. This fact alone probably would have been found sufficient to necessitate some increase in bank rates, and the business activity and bumper crops in the United States, together with the recent American purchases of gold here, caused an increase in the Threadneedle Street rate to be looked for.

If war in the Balkans had been averted, the Bank of France might have been expected to meet some of the Egyptian demand for gold, thus leaving the Bank of England in a better position to cope with other demands for the precious metal from India and North and South America, but with war an actuality it is unlikely that France will allow much gold to leave the country.

AMNESTY FOR TRIPOLITANS.

And Italy Will at Once Release All Prisoners of War.

ROME, Oct. 17.—As the Sultan of Turkey has issued a firman granting autonomy to the Arabs of Tripoli and Cyrenaica, the King of Italy has made public a decree according full amnesty to the inhabitants of those two provinces who have been guilty of any acts of hostility toward the Italians.

All prisoners and deported persons are to be released immediately.

The decree assures the Mussulmans complete religious liberty, with the right to continue to introduce the name of the Sultan in the public prayers. It announces that a representative of the Sultan, to be designated by him, will be recognized by the Italian Government. The pious foundations will be respected as heretofore, and there will be no interference with the relations of the Mussulmans with their religious chief, who will be known under the title of Cadi, and will be appointed by the Sheik-ul-Islam.

A clause in the decree provides that the before-mentioned representative of the Sultan "shall have charge of the interests of the Ottoman Empire and Ottoman subjects in the two provinces under the law of Feb. 25, 1912." This is the law placing the country under the sovereignty of Italy.

Article IV. promises the appointment of a commission, in which native notables will have equal representation, to draw up civil and administrative measures in accordance with liberal principles and respect for the habits and customs of the country.

TO HEAD NEW OIL COMPANY.

Dernburg Selected to Lead German Fight Against Trust.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—The American-trained ex-Colonial Secretary of Germany, Bernhard Dernburg, has been selected to lead the German fight against the Standard Oil Company. It is learned to-night that the German oil trade, on behalf of which the Government plans to establish a state monopoly of petroleum, desires that Herr Dernburg shall be made managing Director of the chartered company to be founded by an act of the Reichstag for the purpose of exterminating the Standard.

Herr Dernburg is chiefly famed in the banking and business world for his "ruthlessness," which, he says, he learned while "hustling" in Wall Street, and it is felt that a man of that quality is just the one needed to carry on the forthcoming crusade against the Rockefeller octopus. Herr Dernburg, moreover, is perhaps better posted than any other public man in Germany on American business methods, and would, according to his friends, be ideally equipped for the campaign.

The impression is growing that the passage of the Monopoly bill by the Reichstag is by no means assured. Powerful influences against it are said to be crystallizing in the ranks both of the Roman Catholic Centre and the Socialist Parties, which together would easily constitute an alliance sufficient to defeat the bill.

Bernhard Dernburg served part of his apprenticeship in the banking business in the New York offices of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. After his return to Germany he became President of the German Tredhamd Gesselleschaft, organized on the model of the American trust companies. In this position Herr Dernburg co-operated with Dr. Georg von Siemens in reorganizing the Northern Pacific Railroad Company eleven years ago.

Upon his election as leading Director of the Darmstaedter Bank Herr Dernburg introduced radical changes of policy. One of his chief tasks was the widening of the American connections of the bank, and with this object in view he visited New York at various times, arranging at the time of one visit a large loan for the Mexican Central Railroad.

He was appointed German Colonial Secretary in September, 1906, and resigned in June, 1910.

Belgian Frauds Reach $5,600,000.

Brussels, Oct. 17.—It will take a considerable length of time to determine the full extent of the railway bond forgeries charged to Nestor Wilmart, manager of the Ghent-Terneuzen Railway, but the aggregate has already reached the sum of $5,600,000. The suspension of one of the victimized banks is expected today, and it is asserted that more than 20 banks are involved. The police have found a printing office where 50,000 bonds were recently turned out. The result of the forgeries aided in rendering difficult the settlement on the Bourse, the differences payable establishing a record of $4,200,000.

indicted, and how it would tend to establish bribery and extortion, that this defendant was using his powers to oppress others, and to collect graft. But he is not charged with these things. He has been indicted only for murder, for which charge I am here to defend him and these jurors here to try him."

Mr. McIntyre cited a case in which the theft of a basket of peaches had been introduced by the prosecution as reflecting on the defendant's other actions. It was shown that the man had a bank account of between $10,000 and $15,000, and although he was convicted the decision was reversed, Judge Parker writing the decision.

McIntyre's Argument.

"If the evidence showed that money came directly or indirectly from Rosenthal," the lawyer continued, "it might furnish a motive, but the prosecution must show beyond a doubt that the money in the bank did come from Rosenthal and that Rosenthal knew it.

"There is no need for circumstantial evidence in this case. It is as if I should take a deadly weapon from my pocket and fire upon Mr. Moss and an instant later he should fall dead on the floor. That would be direct evidence against me. You would have no need to prove a motive.

"It is the same in this case. You have direct evidence here. Rose has taken the stand and sworn that Becker came to him and said he wanted Rosenthal 'croaked.' Vallon and Webber have testified to the same facts—that Becker ordered the murder and they arranged it. That is direct evidence. There is no need of circumstantial evidence.

"Now, your Honor," continued Mr. McIntyre, more and more serious and in earnest each second that he spoke, "put this evidence in, and what will it mean? It will make the jury believe that Becker is a grafter. It will make them believe that he is a bribe-taker, and it may make them believe that he is an extortioner. Would not that act to his detriment in his trial on the charge on which he has been indicted? If he has taken money unlawfully, it is another crime, and for that he can be tried, but that crime has no bearing on or relation to the crime on which he is now arraigned."

The lawyer was leaning far over the counsel table, thundering his sentences directly at Justice Goff, and the Justice, sitting back in his chair, was paying such attention to Mr. McIntyre as he had not been compelled to pay in other stages of the trial. Mr. McIntyre spoke impressively, and his voice shook as he concluded:

"The law is as old as the hills. It goes back to the time of William the Conqueror. A defendant can be tried only on the single crime alleged against him. He cannot be tried on any other. If there is a doubt in your Honor's mind, then that doubt must be given to the benefit of the defendant. I submit that there is not a precedent in all the books, or the books of the text writers, which allows the admission of such evidence. I ask that your Honor bar out such testimony."

Mr. McIntyre sat down, breathing heavily from his exertions, and in strange contrast to him Mr. Moss arose, speaking quietly and with a half smile on his lips.

Did Rosenthal Know?

"This is a circumstantial case if ever a case was such," he began. "There is nothing to bind the defendant to the case if circumstantial evidence be omitted. I have little to say to your Honor. There are only three points I desire to make. That the case is a circumstantial one, is the first. The second point is, that the case Mr. McIntyre has supported in behalf of his contention is not a true criterion."

Mr. McIntyre had referred to a case which Mr. Moss termed a bribery case, "while this, your Honor, is a trial for murder."

"The third point," continued the Assistant Prosecutor, "is that some of these accounts are joint accounts of Becker and his wife. Mrs. Becker has been a school teacher, and as such has received a certain salary. They may have made money in other ways. We cannot prove this.

"But the State does expect to show that the savings of Lieut. Becker are out of all proportion to his salary as a Lieutenant of police."

Justice Goff, at the very beginning of Mr. McIntyre's argument, had sent the jury from the court room, and when Mr. Moss had concluded he began without an instant's hesitation to give his ruling. He went over rapidly the importance of circumstantial evidence, even in a case such as this trial of Becker, and for a moment it appeared that he intended to rule in favor of Mr. Moss, but presently he declared:

"I consider the turning point of this matter to lie in the question of whether or not Rosenthal knew of Becker's bank account, and Becker knew that Rosenthal knew of it. So far the State has produced no evidence before me to show that Rosenthal knew or Becker knew he knew. In fact, the District Attorney has very frankly stated that he was unable to establish either of these premises. Could he have done this, I should have considered that Rosenthal's knowledge of Becker's account and Becker's knowledge of Rosenthal's information might have made this testimony competent as establishing a motive for the murder. Since the District Attorney cannot establish these facts, I will sustain the objection."

It was the biggest victory which Mr. McIntyre had won so far, and that Justice Goff's ruling was a blow to the prosecution was shown by the efforts which Mr. Moss made to bring out some of the facts which he had expected confidently to develop when he called Ventien to the stand. Mr. McIntyre objected to each question, however, and Justice Goff sustained him each time until finally Mr. Moss excused the witness and remarked to Justice Goff: "I shall not continue along this line."

Becker's First Victory.

Mr. Moss interposed no exception to Justice Goff's ruling, for there can be no appeal by the State from an acquittal in a murder trial, but it was clear later that the District Attorney's office disagreed with Justice Goff's ruling. It was pointed out, of course, if Becker knew Rosenthal knew he had collected large sums, and if he feared that Rosenthal's revelations would disclose the possession of this money and cut off the source of further profit to the Lieutenant, that would establish a satisfactory motive for the murder. So Justice Goff considered. But it was pointed out also that if Becker had no reason to suspect that Rosenthal knew of his bank account, nevertheless if he feared that whatever Rosenthal might tell inevitably would lead to the disclosure of his wealth and its source, then this too would be a satisfactory motive, even though Rosenthal might not have knowledge of the Lieutenant's savings or Becker knowledge of Rosenthal's information.

The argument and ruling on this point comprised the most important development of the day, aside from the fact that the prosecution brought its case to a close, and whereas, on previous days, Becker generally has been conceded to have found himself at night in a less advantageous position than that which he occupied in the morning, those who followed the course of yesterday's procedure were agreed for the first time an important point had been scored in Becker's favor.

Rose's Affidavit.

Next in importance, at least to J. W. Hart, associate counsel for Becker, was the introduction into evidence of the affidavit which Rose made in the home of Harry Pollok, and the statements of Richard C. Barter, the notary who witnessed Rose's signature, that Rose had heard read to him what he signed, and had signed it willingly, without coercion. It was on cross-examination that Mr. Hart read the affidavit into the record by asking Mr. Barter if he recognized the document. This is the document:

> In about the month of February, 1912, Rosenthal was very hard up, and told me he would be dispossessed unless he could raise some money. The following day I gave him $250, and from time to time from that date up to the time of the execution of a chattel mortgage, hereinafter referred to, I advanced him, including the $250 above referred to, between $2,000 and $3,000.
> On one occasion I paid him $600. The other payments were smaller in amount. Rosenthal's agreement with me was to pay me 25 per cent. of the profits as soon as he got his business started again. At that time he was not running, but had the place equipped and ready for business.
>
> Some time later Rosenthal said he would require $1,500 more. He first asked for $2,500, but I got him down to $1,500. He knew I did not have the money, but I told him I would try to raise it. I then went to my friend Harry Pollok, who lives at Riverside Drive and 157th Street, and asked him to lend me the money. I saw Pollok at his office in the Flatiron Building. He advised against it on the ground that my previous experiences with Rosenthal had always ended badly for me. He said: "You will lose this money."
>
> But on agreeing to be responsible to Pollok he agreed to let me have it, but advised me to get security for it. I then went to see Mr. Hibbard, in the St. Paul Building, and asked him if the loan and chattel mortgage on furniture could be arranged through some third person.
>
> I explained that there were outstanding judgments against me, and that I did not think that Rosenthal would give me the chattel mortgage on furniture. I explained to Rosenthal that I could not raise the money, but knew where he could raise it on a chattel mortgage, and asked Rosenthal to go down and see Hibbard.
>
> I never saw the chattel mortgage. I was not present when it was signed. Rosenthal told me that he had received the money from Hibbard. I think that it was within a week of the giving of the mortgage that the place at 104 West Forty-fifth Street opened for business and ran for several weeks.
>
> It was then raided and put out of business. I saw the raid from across the street. I was standing on the street with Rosenthal. Before this raid he told me he could not allow me 25 per cent., and agreed that he would give me 20 per cent. During the time the place was running and prior to the raid he paid me back over $1,400. He did not know that I advanced the $1,500 covered by the chattel mortgage.
>
> After the raid he said he would break Becker for raiding him. He said: "I'll do to him what I did to Cody and Murphy." He never claimed to me or in my presence that he gave money to Becker, nor did any one ever suggest that any payment was made to Becker. Becker had no interest in this or any other gambling house to my knowledge.
>
> Rosenthal got very angry over the raid, however, and I decided to part company with him, and I told Hibbard to satisfy the mortgage. A few days after that I asked Rosenthal if he had got his mortgage satisfied. He said: "Yes." I said: "Well, I'll tell you now that it was my money." We never spoke after that to each other.
>
> Rosenthal never made any charge against Becker, except that he wouldn't let anybody raid him and get away with it.
>
> At the present time I am sick, but I have read the foregoing and fully understand it. Never at any time did I pay or suggest the payment of any money to Lieut. Becker, nor did he ever suggest any payment to him. Any charge of that sort is absolutely false. Rosenthal never said to me, that there was any telephone conversation in Hibbard's office with Becker.
>
> JACOB ROSE.

This affidavit was attested by Richard C. Barter, New York.

Aside from this, nothing of importance was developed except the corroboration of Rose's declaration that following the murder he had telephoned to Becker at his home, told him of Rosenthal's death, commenting that it was "awful," and had begged the Lieutenant to join him downtown, and the corroboration of Mrs. Lillian Rosenthal's story of the raid on her husband's Forty-fifth Street gambling house.

Mr. Moss brought out a corroboration of the telephone call by the first two witnesses he called. The first of these was John Carney of 28 Grove Street, who was in charge of the public telephones in the basement of the Times Building on the night of last July 15, and the early morning of the following day.

He admitted in response to Mr. Moss's questions that he had no independent knowledge of connections made through his switchboard that night, but that by referring to the record of calls he could identify any one of them.

Telephone Record Shown.

"Did you make a memorandum that night?" inquired Mr. Moss, and when Carney said that he had done so Mr. Moss showed him a sheet on which calls and times were recorded, and Carney identified it as the record he had kept.

Carney testified that at 2:57 o'clock on the morning of July 16 he had called 6694 Audubon, the number of the apartment house in which Becker lived, and then Mr. Moss turned him over to Mr. Hart for cross-examination.

The latter went over the ground Mr. Moss had covered, developing no additional facts, and Mr. Moss, asking one or two questions on redirect examination, established the fact that the call had lasted three minutes. Then Carney was excused to make room for Lucius Haywood, the colored telephone boy in Lieut. Becker's apartment house.

"Was there a call for Lieut. Becker in the early morning of July 16?" asked Mr. Moss.

Haywood recalled such a call, but could not remember the time. He knew it was dark, however, and that soon after he had rung Lieut. Becker's telephone the Lieutenant had left the house.

Haywood raised a laugh by replying to Mr. Hart on cross-examination when the latter asked him where he was on July 15:

"I reckon I was sleeping."

Mr. Hart let him go when he found no way to shake his testimony, and then Mr. Moss surprised the defense by calling Mrs. Lillian Rosenberg, wife of "Lefty Louie." She was dressed in a black satin gown cut low and V-shaped in the neck. Around her neck and in her sleeves was some old lace, and on her head the rather pretty young woman wore a black velvet hat, with wide brim, which fell about her face and bright golden hair.

Little Mrs. "Lefty Louie" was palpably nervous, and cut a rather pathetic figure as she fiddled nervously with the chain of her silver mesh handbag, and occasionally tried to smile, whereupon dimples appeared in each cheek. She answered Mr. Moss's questions readily enough and afterward those of Mr. McIntyre, telling of having lived in the flat in Queens, where her husband and "Gyp the Blood" Horowitz were arrested, and of having dwelt also in the house in Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, where Sam Schepps testified he had carried messages for Rose. Previous to July 15 she had been at Rockaway Beach with her husband, and there had met "Gyp," "Whitey" Lewis, and "Dago Frank." Mr. Moss tried to have her identify a photograph presumably the same one which has been published, showing the gunmen in a group, but Justice Goff sustained Mr. McIntyre's objection, and Mr. Moss turned her over to Mr. McIntyre to cross-examine.

Little Aid from Mrs. "Lefty."

"Your husband is now indicted for murder, is he not?" Mr. McIntyre began, and the little woman, scarcely more than a girl, gulped as she answered, "Yes."

Then the lawyer questioned her as to when she had determined to become a witness for the State, and she answered:

"When my husband was arrested."

She admitted that she had communicated with her husband by letter twice since he was arrested, but she said that only in the last letter had she told him of her intention to testify for the prosecution.

"Did you say you thought by taking the witness stand you could help him out of his trouble?" demanded Mr. McIntyre, but Mrs. Rosenberg would not admit that she had.

She said she had seen Rose and Schepps at the Southern Boulevard house when they called to see about getting bail for "Big Jack" Zelig, but she could not remember whether this was when he was arrested in connection with a Chinatown shooting or when he was held for carrying a weapon, the charge on which the gangster later had Detectives Steinert and White indicted for perjury.

She did not know where her husband was on the night of July 15, but she was at her mother's home. That was about all Mr. Moss gained from the witness, and Mr. McIntyre got no more. She had heard Schepps and her husband talk together, but had not heard what they said, and so far as corroborating either the story of Rose or that of Schepps the girl wife seemed to be a failure.

She was followed on the stand by William Reilly, agent for the flat house at 2,529 Seventh Avenue, where "Dago Frank" had apartments, and Reilly identified "Dago Frank" and "Whitey" Lewis when the four gunmen had been brought into court as men he had seen entering and leaving the house. The witnesses so far had been called by the State simply to corroborate more or less unessential points in the testimony brought out on previous days, but as Reilly left the stand Mr. Moss called a witness to corroborate Mrs. Rosenthal's story of the raid on her husband's place.

Witness Admits Perjury.

He was Max Margolies, and before he left the stand, after Mr. McIntyre had completed his cross-examination, Margolies's character had been torn to shreds. He had been made to admit that he had committed perjury, and, though Mr. Moss sprang to his aid, he helped the situation little by getting from Margolies the declaration that Becker had made him perjure himself.

The youth—he is only 22—was brimming over with confidence when he took the witness stand, and under Mr. Moss's gentle handling he told of having met Becker through Charles B. Plitt, Jr., the Lieutenant's press agent, some five months ago, and afterward of having become so intimate with him that he frequented the Lieutenant's room at Police Headquarters.

There he said he had heard Becker tell James White, Joseph Shepherd, and Charles Steinert, members of his squad, in discussing with them the raid on Rosenthal's place:

"You will have to enter through the basement. You'll see three iron doors there, and, once in the basement, you'll be asked questions, and finally taken upstairs to the first floor. There you'll see a roulette wheel in the rear room, but it will be covered and there will be no play. On the next floor, however, you will see a roulette wheel and two faro layouts. Now, go and get warrants."

Margolies said, too, that Becker gave him a detailed description of the inside of the house, so that he could swear to the warrants if necessary. Mr. Moss's object was to show that Becker had instructed Margolies and his own men to commit perjury to get the warrants and that the men who swore before a Magistrate that they had gambled in Rosenthal's house actually never had been there. Margolies testified to all these points, but when Mr. McIntyre got through with him he sat on the witness stand a thoroughly discredited witness.

Mr. McIntyre brought out the fact that he had been a clerk for the Pennsylvania Railroad and had been discharged.

"You were charged with stealing money, were you not?" thundered the lawyer, and Margolies, with a fine show of indignation, which impressed the jury at the time and provided them with a reminiscent smile later on, shouted angrily, "I was not."

Mr. McIntyre took him through his other jobs with a woolen company and with a newspaper for a short time where he held some sort of clerical position, and then he reverted to his relations with Lieut. Becker. He made Margolies tell how he had gone to a poolroom in Thirty-seventh Street and later told Becker about it.

Demands His Arrest.

Becker asked him to take one of his men there, and Margolies said he took Detective Ferrick into the place, but the proprietors became alarmed and play stopped. They could get no evidence. Mr. McIntyre made a point of their failure to get evidence, for a minute later he demanded whether or not there had not been a raid made on the place on an affidavit sworn to by Margolies that he had played the races there, and Margolies had to admit it.

"Then you committed perjury!" shouted Mr. McIntyre.

"I was made to," replied Margolies hesitatingly.

"Never mind that," roared the lawyer. "Answer me yes or no. Did you commit perjury?" and Margolies in a small voice answered, "Yes."

Mr. McIntyre proceeded to establish that this had occurred in a Magistrate's Court in this borough and then he demanded that Justice Goff, having jurisdiction over the case, commit Margolies to jail for perjury. The youth paled as the lawyer shouted his demand and he was evidently in great fear.

"In view of the fact that this witness is a self-confessed perjurer," demanded Mr. McIntyre, "I ask that he be committed to the City Prison."

"The District Attorney knows his duty in this matter," responded Justice Goff, "and I will not interfere now, though I certainly should have acted had the perjury been committed before me."

Mr. Whitman promised to take care of the case as well as that of Ferrick, who, Mr. Moss brought out, on re-direct examination, had joined Margolies in making a false affidavit on which the raid was based. And Mr. McIntyre had to be content with this.

In his cross-examination he succeeded once in getting in a shot at Margolies which made the witness cringe even more than had his forceed admission that he had committed perjury. Mr. McIntyre asked him if he had ever been a stool pigeon for the police or if he had ever tried to get the job, and Margolies replied jauntily:

"I don't know what a stool pigeon means. I never looked the word up in the dictionary."

Hart Explains Affidavit.

With Margolies off the stand Mr. Moss called Richard C. Barter, the notary who accompanied John W. Hart, Becker's lawyer, to the home of Harry Pollok and there witnessed the affidavit which Rose has since declared was false, that he had loaned the $1,500 to Rosenthal which the gambler declared had come from Lieut. Becker. It was Mr. Hart who cross-examined the witness, and through this cross-examination succeeded in reading into the record Rose's affidavit and in making it appear that Rose had signed the document willingly and with full knowledge of what it contained.

Mr. Hart's questions and Mr. Barter's answers removed whatever stigma might have been considered to attach to Mr. Hart for his share in drawing up the affidavit. It appeared that he had assisted in his legal capacity in the preparation of a document which Rose had signed with a full knowledge of its contents and that further, he had advised Rose to visit the District Attorney. He brought this last fact out by asking Mr. Barter:

"Do you recall Rose saying, 'I am sorry I am sick. I want to go down to the District Attorney's office,' and my saying, 'There is no reason why you shouldn't go?'" and Mr. Barter answered that he did recall the conversation.

Barter's examination closed the morning session, and with the opening of court after luncheon, Mr. Hart tried to introduce into evidence papers in the case of Margolies and his appearance in the police court, where he swore to his false affidavit. It was for the purpose of discrediting the witness, Mr. Hart said, and Justice Goff, overruling him, said: "He has discredited himself."

Then came William Haupt, chief clerk in the office of the Register of Deeds, and after he had been identified the chattel mortgage on Rosenthal's furniture and the satisfaction piece which accompanied it, he was excused.

Schepps Recalled.

It was then that the prosecution offered Schepps and Rose to Mr. McIntyre for cross-examination, and the lawyer refused to avail himself of the opportunity, though Hart put such questions to Schepps as had been freed of objection by the prosecution. On behalf of the State it was said that this opportunity had been offered to Mr. McIntyre so that he might have no complaint afterward that his cross-examination had been curtailed. Mr. McIntyre seemed to think it was an attempt by the State to remove some reversible errors from the record and accordingly refused to fall into what he considered a trap.

It was a few minutes before 4:25 when Schepps left the witness stand, where he had been called a second time to enable the defense to question him if they found that their transcript of the Hot Springs commission differed in any way from the original document. There was found to be no difference, however, and Schepps was excused, Mr. Moss announcing then that the prosecution rested its case.

Mr. McIntyre was on his feet instantly with the request that he be allowed further to cross-examine Morris Luban, on the ground that since the other day he had discovered additional evidence to show that Luban was a convict, and that he had committed perjury on the witness stand. Justice Goff denied the motion, and Mr. McIntyre filed an affidavit covering his statement with the court, as well as an affidavit that he was unable to continue the case at the moment because of the great strain which he had been under, his poor health, and the excitement and commotion of the day in the courtroom.

He pleaded with Justice Goff to adjourn the trial until 2 o'clock to-day, but the best Justice Goff would do was to order an immediate adjournment and a resumption of the trial at 10:30 o'clock this morning, when Mr. Hart will make the opening address for the defense.

DOCTOR FOR HOROWITZ.

Gunman First Thought to Have Been Poisoned.

For a while last night it was thought that Harry Horowitz, better known as "Gyp the Blood," one of the four gunmen charged with shooting Herman Rosenthal, had possibly taken poison in his cell in the Tombs. He was found groaning, and Dr. Krida was summoned from Bellevue Hospital. The ambulance surgeon, after a close examination, said that Horowitz was not suffering from poison, but from inflammation of the stomach. Dr. Krida worked on the man for over an hour, during which time "Gyp" intimated several times that he wanted to be taken to the hospital. This was not done.

Some time Wednesday night Dr. Shea of Bellevue Hospital was called to the Tombs Prison for Hyman Liskowsky, 21 years old, of 62 Henry Street. Liskowsky was taken to the hospital and placed in the observation ward. On the card turned in by Dr. Shea at the office of the hospital the names of Frank Cirofici ("Dago Frank,") Harry Horowitz, ("Gyp the Blood,") Frank Muller, and Louis Rosenberg were written.

At the Tombs prison it was said that Horowitz had greatly improved. It was expected that he would be entirely recovered this morning. No one on duty at the Tombs last night knew how it was that the names of the gunmen came to be on the card turned in at the hospital.

FEUDIST DYNAMITES HOMES.

Explosion Badly Hurts Three in Pennsylvania—Wrecker Attempts Suicide.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Oct. 17.—Peter Messing, a carpenter, dynamited this morning the residences of William Jackson and William Bigger at Pleasant Valley, near here, cut and seriously injured three persons, and attempted suicide.

The arrival of county detectives saved Messing from rough treatment at the hands of a mob. Mrs. Mollie Scott, Mrs. Sarah Jackson, and James Martin, the wounded, were taken to the hospital with Messing, who was said to be seriously hurt.

The police said Messing's outbreak was the result of a feud which had raged for years, with Messing on one side and the Jackson and Bigger families on the other

HEDGES WOULD PUT WALDO OUT FIRST

If He's Elected Governor, He Promises He'll Shake Up the Police, and He Knows Them.

GIVES PRAISE TO THEM, TOO

The two features of the mass meeting at Carnegie Hall last night, under the auspices of the Republican Club, was the enthusiasm displayed when Job E. Hedges, the Republican candidate for Governor, said that if he were elected Governor he would remove the Police Commissioner of this city, and the other was in the appeal of all the speakers that all Republicans who had wandered from their political fold should return and leave the Progressive Party alone.

The fear that the Progressive candidates would draw mainly from the Republican Party was manifest at every turn. Republicans were begged to let the fight be the old fight between the Democrats and the Republicans, and not to permit a third party to so weaken the Republican Party as to insure the election of the Democrats.

The hall was filled with men and women, and was beautifully decorated with flags. Nearly every Republican politician in this county was present in person, or was represented by some member of his family.

Taken as a whole, the meeting was lacking in enthusiasm. The names of Lincoln, McKinley, Roosevelt, and Hughes were cheered, but the cheers were brief and thin. When Mr. Hedges appeared there was an outburst, and the audience rose and waved flags and applauded and shouted his name.

Mr. Hedges said he did not believe in a State constabulary. He said that if the Republican Party had declared for such a police force he would not have accepted the nomination.

"I believe in home rule," said he, which brought forth a burst of applause. Then he said:

"As God is my judge, if I am Governor in January and conditions exist in this city that exist to-day and human life is in jeopardy, and men and women may not go out unaccompanied and unprotected, there will be one less Police Commissioner existing in the City of New York."

A great burst of applause greeted this promise, and it was some time before Mr. Hedges could go on with his speech. Then he said:

"And we won't wait until January to study the problem. I know the police force of the City of New York as well as any man in the city not a member of it; and, man for man, it measures up in physical courage with any similar number of men in the world. And it has among its members men as despicable as any man in the world, and the force blushes for them. And if the Police Commissioner of the City of New York should call his Inspectors together and tell them to drive out of the City of New York the strong-arm men and measure the length of their night sticks after they have done it, they would drive them out.

"It is a perfectly sound proposition of Mayor Gaynor that no citizen shall be maltreated by an officer in making an arrest; but how in the name of sanity can a policeman do his duty in the City of New York in the face of a thug when, on the complaint of that thug, he is liable to jeopardize his pension?

"Policemen are human; they want to do their duty. But they haven't yet been given permission to do their duty. And if, in addition to permission, they were ordered to do their duty, not academically, not theoretically, not, maybe, according to logical analysis, but told to 'Put them out'—out they would go."

Mr. Hedges attacked Tammany Hall along the old lines and he accused Mr. Sulzer of being a Tammany Hall man from top to heel. When he began talking about some things he would do if he were elected Governor the audience followed him with interest, and he was loudly cheered when he spoke of the need of good roads. He said:

"I want to go to Albany as the representative of my party and the State, because I want to transform the highways of this State, for instance; I want to change them back to highways from highwaymen; I want those great roadways used for the benefit of the people, for whom they were planned, and the people up the State are considering very seriously and very carefully whether they shall vote the added $50,000,000 if it is to be disbursed by Tammany Hall. I want the highway system reorganized, to come back to the place where it was planned by Hughes. I want them to get back under a commission whereby from market centres there shall go out roads that shall be of use to the people."

J. Van Vechten Olcott presided at the meeting. During his introductory remarks he referred to the attack upon the life of Col. Roosevelt which, he said, all the citizens of this country greatly deplored. Mr. Olcott said the Progressive Party could not succeed, and that the issues in this campaign would have to be fought out by the Republican Party on the one side, and the Democratic Party on the other. He said that President Taft had made good, that the country was prosperous, and that he did not believe the people would turn out a good and faithful servant for one who was untried. He said Gov. Wilson knew nothing of the tariff.

John L. Bates, former Governor of Massachusetts, insisted that the fight was confined between the two old parties and asked the Republicans not to be deceived into the belief that by any chance the Progressive Party had the slightest chance of success.

The last speaker was Representative Ebenezer J. Hill of Connecticut.

The tariff came in for a good deal of mauling and the statement was made by Mr. Bates that it was better to have a tax on dinner pails than to have nothing to put in the dinner pails which he said was the case after Grover Cleveland was elected in 1892.

FEUD FACTIONS AWAIT TRIAL.

Kentucky Judge Asks Governor to Name Another in Callahan Case.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 17.—After refusing to issue a writ of habeas corpus or consider a motion for bail in the case of fifteen men indicted on the charge of complicity in the assassination of former Sheriff Ed Callahan, Judge Redwine, in the Circuit Court at Jackson, to-day sent a notification to Gov. McCreary, asking that he appoint a special Judge to try the case.

It is expected that the case will begin next Monday. Jackson is crowded with members of feud factions, but at present there are no signs of trouble.

No Blaze at Pine Beach Inn.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 17.—Fire, which afterward proved to have been a woods and swamp blaze, was seen at Island Heights from the mainland on the evening of Sept. 16. A report started that the fire was caused by the burning of the Pine Beach Inn, a well-known hotel at Island Beach, and was accepted as a fact and so telegraphed from this place. As a matter of fact, the fire was not at the inn, and the hotel property was not damaged in any way.

NEW $3,000,000 CIGAR CO.

Not Part of the New Trust Rival or the United Cigar Stores.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 17.—The British-American Cigar Stores Company of Newark filed articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State to-day. The company will have a capital of $3,000,000, and its objects are set forth in the papers "to manufacture and deal in cigars."

The incorporators of record are Frank Stucky, Herbert L. Thawless, and Richard H. Rankin.

It was denied last night by those familiar with the affairs of the United Cigars Stores Company and of the newly launched Tobacco Products Company that the $3,000,000 concern incorporated in Trenton was connected with either in any way. The American Tobacco Company already has an English representative in the British-American Tobacco Company, which, however, is an English corporation.

MOOSERS IN CITY SCHOOL.

Political Meeting Held for the First Time in Municipal Institution.

For the first time in the history of the city a public school was thrown open to a purely political gathering, when the Progressive Party held a mass meeting last night at Public School 63, in Fourth Street, near First Avenue. The school was recently opened for public meetings under the auspices of the New York Social Centre Committee, which is endeavoring to have the auditoriums of public schools given over after recitation hours to reputable public meetings in the districts where no other adequate accommodations are offered. A member of that committee, Frederick C. Howe, introduced the speakers at last night's meeting, and explained that, because the Progressive Party held sway then, it was no indication of favoritism on the Board of Education's part, as the other parties would be given the same opportunity, the Socialists to-morrow night, the Democrats on Oct. 24, and the Republicans on Oct. 28.

By a strange coincidence, though it was not spoken of by any of the speakers, this first meeting of the Progressive Party in a public school was held in the district where Schrank, the assailant of the party's head, lived for years.

The most important speaker of the evening was Dean George W. Kirchwey of the Columbia University Law School and candidate for the State Supreme Court on the Progressive ticket.

"Though as members of the Progressive Party we should not speak of men, but of issues," Mr. Kirchwey said in opening, "it is most fitting that we should here extol the hero of our cause, that man who, through his courage, fortitude, and charity to his assailant, so exemplifies the purpose of our army, the banner of which he will carry on to victory.

"All other political revolutions in history, even the French Revolution, though they pretended to be democratic in nature, were not so, since they did not seek the welfare of the lowest class, but generally of those in a middle station in life. Largely they were also to obtain good jobs for those who revolted, but we of the Progressive Party do not seek good jobs; we are giving them up to help further the cause."

After Dean Kirchwey Mrs. Belle Linden Israels, a member of the New York Social Centre Committee, outlined the Bull Moose campaign, explaining the Workingmen's Compensation act and other features.

TAFT THE TARGET OF WILSON'S SHAFTS

"A Know-Nothing, Do-Nothing Party," Governor Calls Republicans to Delaware Crowds.

"THAT GALLANT GENTLEMAN"

Thus Refers to Roosevelt, In Avoiding Attacks on Third Party—Says State Lacks a Pilot.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 17.—Abandoning his attacks upon Col. Roosevelt and the third party programme and aiming his shafts instead, at President Taft and the Republican Administration, Gov. Woodrow Wilson ended his campaign in Delaware here to-night. The Governor made five speeches and shook hands with hundreds of voters at other stops. He found large crowds everywhere, and the people were frankly anxious to hear what he had to say.

Gov. Wilson disposed of the Republican Party as the "Know-Nothing, Do-Nothing Party," which had allowed the ship of state to drift about for four years without a pilot, and then spoke of what he hoped to accomplish. He pleaded with the voters to make sure that the House of Representatives and the United States Senate were controlled by the Democrats. That was what the Republicans, satisfied that they could not elect a President, were trying to prevent, he said. And if they succeeded in controlling the Senate, it would mean that the affairs of the United States would be held where they were, at any rate for two years, if not for four years. Progress was impossible, he said, while special privilege retained its grasp on the Senate.

Gov. Wilson was somewhat handicapped by the condition of his voice, which did not carry any great distance, but the crowds only pushed and shoved closer to hear him. There was much interest shown in what he would have to say about Col. Roosevelt, and his sportsmanlike attitude in avoiding attacks on the third party platform won much admiration. The address made by ex-Senator Beveridge at Louisville last night, in which the Indianian gave to the people a message from Col. Roosevelt, seemed to give Gov. Wilson the opportunity to fight along the same old lines, but he refused to accept this cue and clung to his purpose of avoiding attacks on the Bull Moose Party.

At the start of his campaigning to-day he settled any doubt as to his attitude in that respect when he said:

Roosevelt "a Gallant Gentleman."

"I come out to fulfill the engagements of this week with a very great reluctance, because my thought is constantly of that gallant gentleman lying in the hospital at Chicago. Mr. Roosevelt did a vast deal to wake the country up to the problems that now have to be settled, and that he should have been stayed in his attempt to discuss the settlement of these questions by a hand of violence is a thing which every American must deeply deplore and feel ashamed of.

"At the same time there are these questions to be settled. There is the great life of the country to go on, and we cannot afford to have it go on without guidance. I think that the whole country must feel very deeply the shock and indignation in regard to the attack on Mr. Roosevelt. I myself have been very much saddened by it, because I have not at any time felt any personal opposition in this campaign. I have been fighting issues, and I am very sorry to see the chief spokesman of one great set of issues for a very short time, we hope, taken out of this campaign. And yet I feel justified in coming down to Deleware even at this juncture, because I am so deeply interested in this State, to which I have been so close a neighbor for nearly thirty years."

But Gov. Wilson first at Georgetown, the county seat of Sussex County, and later at Dover, the State capital, and at Wilmington, where he was greeted by big crowds, heaped ridicule and criticism upon the organization Republicans, who, he said, were clogging the wheels of progress in the country.

Huge bill boards set up by the Republican National Committee, the only evidence at hand of any activity on the part of the Taft adherents, attracted the Governor's attention. They gave the Republican Administration credit for whatever prosperity had come to the farmer in many years. They drew from the Governor this remark:

"I am sorry that the Republican Party has incorporated Providence, for that is what they are attempting to do, and I am sorry that those who wrote those posters do not know more about the history of their own country and the history of the world.

Asks What Has Taft Done.

"What we have now to do is to strip these pretenses from all those efforts on the part of the Republican Party to annex the history of the United States to their own party. Not only that, but I have been very much interested in the proposal which they make to you. They say, 'You have been prosperous, therefore'—for this is their conclusion—'elect Taft.'

"In order to do that, what has Mr. Taft done? I must frankly say to you that I do not discover that we have had any pilot during the last four years. I know from the feeling I have had that the ship of state has been wallowing in the trough of the sea, because she has not been steered in any particular direction by anybody. She has simply, with furled sails, fallen off into the trough, and there she rolls. I don't know whether the helm is strapped or not. I have not been aboard. But I would like to go on and see what the steering apparatus is, because we need somebody at the helm to determine a particular course and steer it, steer it without fear or favor, in order that we may have some definite port.

"Do you think that it will lend itself to your prosperity to have another four years of drifting? That is what you are invited to have. Do you want to do something in particular? Do you want to see another four years where Congress is simply running up against vetoes all the time whenever it tries to do anything?

"The most that can be said of the President is that he is sitting on the lid. He has sat very successfully on the lid, and nothing has got away. But with all the steam that we have in use we cannot afford to have anybody sitting on the lid much longer. We have got to have our energies released, and we have got to have them released in order to carry out a definite constructive programme."

Gov. Wilson declared that the Administration gave plenty of reasons for the feeling of discontent and should be wiped out completely and the Democratic party, the party of progress and accomplishment, put in power.

"I am not in the least afraid that we are going to have four years more of Republican do-nothingism," he said.

"You know that there was a party long ago in the United States known as the 'Know-Nothing Party.' We now have a Do-Nothing Party, and I wonder if they also know nothing. Because if they know anything I cannot see how they can consent to do nothing. They have got to be both know nothing and do nothing to be intelligent 'do-nothings.' I suppose, therefore, that this is a revival of the old Know-Nothing Party."

References of any kind to the Taft forces did not seem to arouse great interest among the Governor's hearers. He received more applause when he sounded the note of progress.

Dangerous to Stand Still.

"I warn you," he said, "that it is dangerous to stand still. I warn you that it is dangerous to attempt to block the progress of reform in America, because these great popular forces are piling, piling, piling higher and higher, and that standpat dam, the only thing that holds them, will presently break, and the higher these popular forces rise the more danger there is of an overwhelming flood.

"I do not predict trouble in the United States. I rejoice to believe that America is a singularly self-possessed Nation. It is averse to nothing so much as violent disorder. I believe that part of the sadness we now suffer from because of that atrocious assault upon Mr. Roosevelt is a feeling that there is anybody in the United States who would dare attempt to interrupt the orderly course of politics and the public affairs of this country by the violence of his own hand. We deeply resent it."

Throughout the day Gov. Wilson was accompanied by Thomas M. Monaghan, Democratic nominee for Governor of Delaware, and an out-and-out Progressive, who was apparently popular with the voters. Whenever the Governor referred to Mr. Monaghan there was applause and he took this cue to dwell to a considerable extent on the State issues. It was then that he referred to the necessity of controlling the two houses at Washington, saying:

"Do you think that the United States needs constructive statesmanship? If you do, then centre your eyes upon the control of the Legislature of Delaware, in order that you may have a voice in determining and shaping the next Senator of the United States from Delaware. The fight is more and more centred upon that seat of privilege. The House of Representatives has not been a seat of privilege. Presidents of the United States have not desired to be controlled by special interests of this country. On the contrary, I believe that the present President of the United States has desired to be free of that control, but so long as that control had its grasp upon the Senate it was absolutely impossible to accomplish anything organic, to have any kind of united teamwork in advancing the interests of the United States."

Praise for La Follette.

Speaking to-night to a large audience in the Wilmington Opera House, where he was escorted by a procession of Democratic Club members, Gov. Wilson referred to a Taft banner he had seen which bore the motto, "Better be safe than sorry," and evoked great applause by saying:

"We will never accomplish anything without trying. It is better to steal a base than hug a base. You will never get there by hugging it. I would rather be courageous and be sorry. I would rather risk my fortune than sell my liberty. Everything worth while in life was won on taking risks."

Discussing the growth of Progressive ideas, the Governor said:

"Gentlemen, I doff my hat to Bob La Follette. He walked a straight line; never wavered. I love these lonely figures. Climbing the mountain of privilege, they are not so lonely now. New Jersey was even willing to risk taking an unsophisticated school teacher and trying him out."

Acting Chairman William G. McAdoo of the Democratic National Committee joined Gov. Wilson to-night, and will finish the trip with him.

The Republican vote in Delaware is divided by three factions—the regulars, the Progressives, and the National Progressives, headed by Coleman T. duPont. The split in the Progressive Party is the cause of much ill-feeling, and all these elements are working to the benefit of the Democrats.

To-morrow the Governor will invade West Virginia and speak at Pittsburgh in the evening. He will then return to New York, arriving there at 8:23 on Saturday morning.

CARDINAL VISITS MRS. WILSON.

Makes a Short Call on the Governor's Wife and Daughter in Baltimore.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 17.—Cardinal Gibbons called this afternoon on Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who, with her daughter, Jessie, were guests of the Woman's Wilson League of Maryland, and were entertained to luncheon by Mrs. William Ellicott at her home. The Cardinal chatted with Mrs. and Miss Wilson for a few minutes, and also greeted the other guests at the luncheon, including Mrs. Charles E. Ellicott, Edwin Litchfield Turnbull, and Harry Fielding Ried, an old friend of the Wilson family.

The Cardinal expressed to Mrs. William Ellicott his regret at his inability to accept her invitation to luncheon with her visitors, and on leaving wished Mrs. Wilson and her daughter a pleasant stay in Baltimore.

President Taft to Speak Here Nov. 2.

President Taft will make at least one speech in the city before election. It will be on the night of Nov. 2, when he will attend the dinner to be given to Chairman Charles D. Hilles of the Republican National Committee by the National League of Republican Clubs, of which John Hays Hammond is President. It is planned to have all the Republican Governors in the country present. In fact, every Republican of note will be invited to attend. Where the dinner is to be held has not yet been arranged.

YOU MUST REGISTER TO VOTE.

To-day and to-morrow are the last days for registration. If you do not register you cannot vote. Registration from 7 A. M. to 10 P. M.

DIXIE CLUB FOR WILSON.

Women Vote to Help and Hear Campaign Letter from Mrs. Harriman.

The Dixie Club, an organization of women, met in the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon and unanimously voted to support Wilson and Marshall and to contribute money to the Democratic National campaign fund. Mrs. Augustus Milton Anderson presided at the meeting, and among the guests of honor were Mrs. Martin W. Littleton, Mrs. Sidney Hall, Mrs. Newton Anthony Collison, Mrs. John Sherwin, Mrs. Cone Johnson, Miss Mattie Sheridan, and Miss Lillian Robertson.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, who is ill, sent the club a campaign message that was read by Mrs. Jesse Drew Beale, Chariman of the Bureau of Speakers of the Woman's National Democratic Organization. Mrs. Harriman's message said that the question of woman's suffrage no longer admitted of academic discussion and that the people who do not believe in it do not understand it, perhaps.

"But this question," wrote Mrs. Harriman, "is overshadowed by the question, Who shall be our next President? This campaign has developed a unique phase in our political life. For the first time woman's co-operation has been sought by all of the great political parties."

Mrs. Harriman added that woman's influence could replace the symbol by the reality, and by helping to lift politics into a purer and saner atmosphere.

"The time has come," said Mrs. Harriman, "when women are to put to the men reforms which they have learned to know the need of, because women are becoming more intelligent about matters of government. The time has passed when women will discuss among themselves minor topics. Almost every woman to-day is interested in big things, and surely there is nothing bigger than making the town, the city, and the Nation a cleaner, safer, saner place to live in."

Margaret Cameron

Author of "The Pretender Person," "The Involuntary Chaperon," etc.

There is a wealth of humor in this new collection of stories—the kind of humor that starts a chuckle at the beginning and leaves you breathless at the end. Margaret Cameron has never written a dry line. Her books all teem with life and motion.

In this new one she has conceived a series of humorous situations so complicated that there seems no possible way out. Audacity, however, is the sword that cuts the Gordian knot in all of them.

It is impossible to leave any one of these tales unfinished, for the author is a natural born story-teller, with a unique talent for inventing the most laughable of plots. A corking book for curing the blues.

Holman Day

Author of "King Spruce," "The Ramrodders," etc.

Vibrant with human passions, Mr. Day's new story pictures with vivid realism the life of the settlers along the Maine-Canadian border. Neither Stevenson nor Crockett has written anything finer in similar vein. It is like a page from the best of Sir Gilbert Parker's romances of the French half-breed.

None other than a writer who has sojourned among these simple-hearted and clean-faithed folks, who has learned their ways, their nobleness, and their frailties, their reverence for authority, their loves, hates and passions, could have so adequately painted the remarkable human characters that unite in making a volume which the reader is loath to lay aside.

WILSON FORCES PLAN NATION-WIDE RALLY

A MESSAGE TO ALL OF THEM

It Will Be the Final Word from Their Standard Bearer—Parade Committee Named.

While joyful tidings of coming victory are reaching Chairman McCombs of the Democratic National Committee almost hourly from every section of the country, and while Democratic leaders from all over the land are declaring that it is all over except the shouting, there will be no letup in the Democratic campaign activities.

Between now and Election Day the East, and this State in particular, will be the battleground where all the big guns of Democracy will be brought into play.

During the closing week Speaker Champ Clark, Gov. Judson Harmon of Ohio, and Congressman Oscar Underwood, leader of the House majority, have all promised to be on hand to make the campaign in this State a thing to be long remembered.

Congressman Underwood arrived in this city yesterday in response to an invitation from Chairman McCombs. He will speak to-morrow night at Carnegie Hall from the same platform with Gov. Wilson. The addresses Gov. Wilson will deliver to-morrow evening at Carnegie Hall and the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, are likely to be his last in the campaign, with the exception of one at Madison Square Garden on Nov. 2, unless he should change his recent plans.

With the new blood that has been infused into the management of the Democratic Party with the advent of such men as Gov. Woodrow Wilson, National Chairman McCombs, Vice Chairman William G. McAdoo, and others of their type, there have come also new ideas and methods in campaigning. Some of these will be applied within the next few weeks.

One distinctive feature will be the celebration of a Wilson and Marshall Day on the afternoon of Nov. 2, the Saturday before election.

On that afternoon it is planned that in every city, town, and hamlet all Democrats who can shall assemble to listen to a special message from Gov. Wilson. All these assemblages are to coincide in time with the reading of the message by Gov. Wilson before a great audience in Madison Square Garden.

What the message will be is not known, except that it will be the last solemn word to the Democrats in the Nation from their standard bearer in the fight.

The idea of the Wilson and Marshall Day celebration originated with Vice Chairman McAdoo and Josephus Daniels, head of the publicity department of the Democratic National Committee. It was intended at first to hold the celebration on Oct. 31. For various reasons, and chiefly to have it coincide with the time fixed for the great Garden rally and the Democratic parade in this city, it was decided by Chairman McCombs that it should be postponed until the Saturday prior to election.

Word already has been received from forty-eight State Chairmen that they are in accord with the plan and are co-operating to make the celebration in their States a success by rallying the Democratic voters in every town and at every cross-roads.

In many of the larger cities it is planned to have parades and fireworks as features of the celebration. In some Southern States the leaders have announced that a general holiday will be declared and the Democrats go picnicking. In thousands of small country places, far from the populous centres, the Democratic voters will assemble around huge bonfires to listen to the final message from their leader on the eve of election. Plans have been made to arrange means by which State Chairmen will be in a position to transmit the Wilson message even to the most remote places in a very short time.

Congressman Underwood, who has been campaigning in Connecticut and New Jersey, told Chairman McCombs of the National Committee yesterday that he looked for a Democratic victory in both of these States.

"I consider the election of Gov. Wilson as certain as anything can be," said Mr. Underwood. "I delivered five speeches in Connecticut, and I am certain that not only will the National ticket get the full Democratic vote of Connecticut, but it will receive a large independent and Republican vote. So far as I could discern in Connecticut, the Republicans are about equally divided between Taft and Roosevelt. The situation is pretty nearly the same in Delaware and other States where I have been speaking. With this condition, it is as plain as can be that every doubt as to the outcome of the election is removed. Indications point to the election of a Democratic President, a Democratic House, and a Democratic Senate as well."

Chairman McCombs yesterday announced the membership of the Democratic Parade Committee. New names will be added, but at present the committee is composed as follows:

Robert Adamson, Bernard M. Baruch, George Gordon Battle, Frank Bradley, John W. Clifton, Cleveland H. Dodge, Col. W. C. Fiske, Judge Freschi, John Temple Graves, Benjamin F. Greenhut, Julius Harburger, William B. Hornblower, Joseph Johnson, William G. McAdoo, George McAneny, Matthew McConville, John H. McCooey, John A. McDermott, Herman A. Metz, John Purroy Mitchel, Frederick C. Penfield, Herman Ridder, Herman Robinson, Col. Jacob Ruppert, John L. de Saulles, C. A. Slosson, Frank W. Smith, Thomas F. Smith, Augustus Thomas, Samuel Untermyer, John B. Stanchfield, A. R. Watson, Rolla Wells, Robert M. Wood.

Chairman McCombs announced last night that he would go to Chicago on Monday for the purpose of making a round-up of the Western leaders and receiving from them first-hand information regarding the situation in their territory.

WORK AS WELL AS CONSENT.

Wilson Tells His Requirements for People's Part in Government.

Gov. Woodrow Wilson has contributed to the November issue of The Woman's Home Companion an article dealing with the functions of government. The Democratic Presidential nominee strikes the keynote of his own creed when he declares that the new conception of governmental functions is that democratic government is based not only on the consent of the governed but on the participation of all classes and interests. Only where this is true, Gov. Wilson declares, can government be responsive to the impulses of the people.

"It is an interesting circumstance that government is becoming less and less a business for politicians; that minds and energies of every kind are turning toward it as part of the general enterprise of life," writes Gov. Wilson.

"The statesman should sit down with the philanthropist, with the engineer, with the forest expert, with the student of soils and agricultural methods, with masters of technical and vocational education as well as with financiers and lawyers and manufacturers and merchants and those whose interests have usually been at the centre of policy.

"Public opinion has accumulated tremendous force in our day, not only, but it shows infinite richness and variety. Men of many occupations, of any interests, of many aspirations, contribute to it. Neighborhood meetings, city assemblies, State conventions, inter-State gatherings, National conventions, are held by people of every sort interested in every kind of occupation. Men are everywhere studying their own interests, not only from their special individual points of view, but also in conference with men following similar callings all over the country."

Gov. Wilson sanctions a wide curriculum of governmental functions; indeed, government, within the new meaning of the word, Gov. Wilson declares, "must keep house for the whole people."

TARIFF IN BLACK AND WHITE.

A large crowd at the noonday meeting in the Democratic Chamber of Tariff Horrors at Union Square yesterday got a very vivid demonstration of the relation of the tariff to ordinary wearing apparel. Former Commissioner of Accounts William Harmon Black, who delivered the noon talk, had for purposes of demonstration a living picture of tariff iniquity. It was a man dressed from head to foot in black and white. The white in each garment represented the proportion of tariff tax and the black the portion which escaped a tariff levy.

The exhibit in black and white paced to and fro in front of the platform as Mr. Black pointed the lesson of the white. His model was nearly all white. Ninety-eight per cent. of the lining in his coat was of that color; 90 per cent. of the outer side of his suit was white also. His collar and shirt were 39 per cent. black. Even the buttons were half white. The live exhibit made a big hit.

"If every one realized how much the tariff costs us," said Mr. Black, "there would be riots at home and resignations at Washington. It is the only tax laid on mankind which has for its object the stifling of competition and a consequent increase in prices."

To-day will be Women's Day at the Chamber of Tariff Horrors. The Woman's Democratic League will be in charge and the noonday talks will be made by Mrs. John S. Crosby, Mrs. Steven B. Ayres, Mrs. Eva MacDonald Valesh, Miss Grace L. Colbron, and Representative J. G. Kindred.

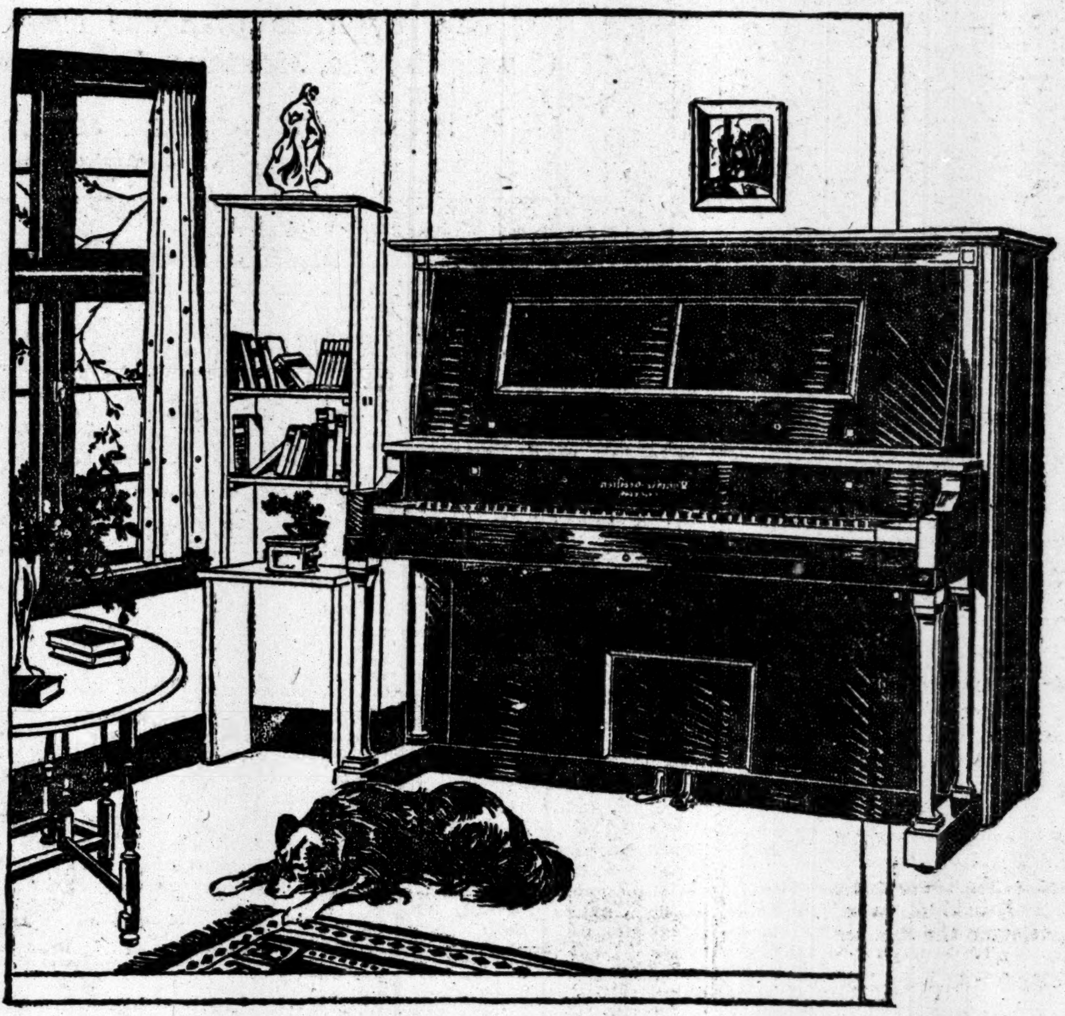
The Piano of Exquisite Tone, Combined With The Player That Gives Human Control



The Magnificent and Artistic
SOHMER-CECILIAN
That Makes a Musician of Every Music Lover

¶ Music gives the refining atmosphere of Art to every home that enjoys it. The Sohmer-Cecilian makes musicians of the entire family; so that each, in turn, may be the performer, and all may continuously enjoy the delights of perfect music.

¶ Of course, nowadays, there are many varieties of player-pianos, just as there are many kinds of pianos.

¶ The SOHMER-CECILIAN occupies a distinguished position of its own, for THREE vital reasons:

¶ SOHMER quality is of undisputed artistic excellence.

¶ Second, the marvelous powers of the Cecilian Player give such artistic and human-like control that all the perfections of the splendid Sohmer piano are brought out by the artistic interpretation given.

¶ Third—If there are members of the family who sing, the transposing device will appeal to them. One may lower or raise the pitch of a song at will almost two whole tones.

¶ The superb SOHMER-CECILIAN shown in the picture is $850, and is as infinitely superior to many other instruments priced at two hundred dollars more as the Sohmer piano is superior to the commercial pianos used in so many player-pianos.

¶ The instrument to be loved for a lifetime, because of the dignity and purity of tone—and because it makes a musician of all who wish to play it, is

1904 FUND CLEAN, ASSERTS CORTELYOU

MUNSEY GAVE OVER $118,000

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Positive testimony by George B. Cortelyou, Republican National Chairman in 1904, who contradicted the previous evidence of J. P. Morgan and denied all knowledge of any Standard Oil contributions, and some illuminating statements by Frank A. Munsey of New York and Thomas W. Lawson of Boston as to their large gifts to the Bull Moose cause provided an interesting session for the Clapp Committee to-day.

Mr. Munsey testified that his contributions to Col. Roosevelt's campaign before the first Chicago convention totaled $118,005.72. Of this more than $67.000 went to the National campaign fund, and about $50,000 to various State committees, some of whose funds have already been made public.

Mr. Lawson said he had given $100,000 toward the Roosevelt fund. As a total of $611,000 had previously been testified to as spent in behalf of the Colonel, it is evident that the total exceeded $700,000 by a considerable amount.

Mr. Lawson startled the committee with a story of a million-dollar Wall Street fund to elect a Democratic dark horse after having split the Republican Party by bringing Roosevelt into the field. His testimony was regarded as somewhat of a joke by members of the committee.

Though Mr. Cortelyou's testimony was given after Mr. Morgan's testimony had been called to his particular attention, he was scrupulous to avoid any question of veracity. He referred to two parts of Mr. Morgan's evidence, in one of which Mr. Morgan made it plain that he referred to seeing Mr. Cortelyou after the campaign in his capacity as Secretary of the Treasury, and Mr. Cortelyou suggested that Mr. Morgan might have misunderstood the question.

Senator Oliver pointed out that at least once in Mr. Morgan's testimony his reference to visits from Mr. Cortelyou must have meant during the campaign. The matter was allowed to rest at that point.

"Were you in Mr. Morgan's office during the campaign?" asked Chairman Clapp.

"Maybe once or twice, early in the campaign," said Mr. Cortelyou. "When I went to see Mr. Perkins I saw Mr. Morgan also, but I never asked him for a contribution."

"Were you present when Mr. Bliss asked him for money?" asked the Chairman.

"Never, Sir," replied Mr. Cortelyou.

Mr. Cortelyou stated that he did not know of Mr. Morgan's contribution of $100,000 to the general fund and $50,000 to the Harriman fund until Mr. Morgan gave his testimony.

Mr. Cortelyou admitted that as National Chairman he had written to E. H. Harriman with a view "partly" of getting a contribution to President Roosevelt's campaign fund. Col. Roosevelt has repeatedly denied that he ever asked Mr. Harriman for a penny, and has insisted that the so-called "Harriman fund" was raised at Mr. Harriman's own suggestion for the assistance of the State ticket.

Says Roosevelt Had No Knowledge.

Mr. Cortelyou's testimony cleared up one point, which has been bothering the committee, by apparently establishing that aside from the Harriman fund, Mr. Harriman was solicited in Col. Roosevelt's behalf. The witness was positive, however, that Col. Roosevelt knew nothing about the matter. The letter which he wrote, and which was addressed to "Mr. E. H. Hammond," Mr. Cortelyou explained, was one of nearly 200 prepared by Cornelius N. Bliss and sent out over Mr. Cortelyou's signature to men who were requested to become members of an honorary committee, the membership of which was not to be announced.

"If that committee was to have been honorary," asked Senator Paynter, "why was it considered necessary that it should be secret?"

Mr. Cortelyou replied that he had not wished to divulge his campaign plans to the enemy.

"As a matter of fact," asked Senator Paynter, "wasn't this committee formed for the purpose of inducing the members to contribute?"

"Partly that was true," said Mr. Cortelyou.

Of the Harriman fund Mr. Cortelyou said he knew nothing except a rumor that greeted him just before election day on his return to New York from Chicago. He remembered vaguely that William Loeb, Jr., secretary to President Roosevelt, asked him by telephone to help out the State Committee, and he thought he had taken up the matter with Treasurer Bliss.

"I gave orders," said Mr. Cortelyou, "that the money asked for by the State Committee should not be given. I was opposed to the State Committee having the money, and I seriously doubted that the National Committee had ever promised it the $500,000 as alleged. We had already given the State Committee $800,000."

That Standard Oil Gift.

Mr. Cortelyou repeated his testimony, given before a previous investigating committee, that he knew nothing of the contribution from Standard Oil. He vaguely remembered that Henry H. Rogers's name was mentioned during the campaign and that afterward he heard from Mr. Bliss that Mr. Rogers had contributed heavily. He was positive that he had never heard the name of John D. Archbold mentioned during the campaign, and he was equally positive that he had never called at 26 Broadway for that purpose while the campaign was on.

The alleged Standard Oil contribution was first called to his attention, he said, by letters and telegrams from President Roosevelt, directing him not to receive the contribution, or return it if received. At that time Mr. Cortelyou was passing back and forth between New York and Chicago, and that explained, he said, his delay in answering the President. The very first letter he received, however, was shown, as requested, to Mr. Bliss.

"Mr. Bliss stated that we had received no contribution from the Standard Oil," said Mr. Cortelyou. "At a later time, possibly by telephone, and certainly onec in person, I communicated Mr. Bliss's statement to the President. As to my calling on the Standard Oil personally, I know I did not do so, and I have no recollection of Mr. Bliss asking me to go with him. On other occasions I did tell Mr. Bliss that my presence was not necessary, as he represented the National committee as well as I. On the strength of what I told him Mr. Bliss thereafter made solicitations on his own responsibility."

The story that Mr. Cortelyou and Mr. Bliss called on President Roosevelt early in the campaign and received from him a slip of paper, bearing the names of possible contributors, Mr. Cortelyou said, was absolutely false. President Roosevelt, he said, was little in touch with the practical side of the campaign, and Senator Penrose's assertion that he managed the National headquarters was absolutely unfounded. Mr. Cortelyou also corrected his previous testimony which seemed to imply that the Tobacco Trust had offered a contribution. The independent tobacco people, he said, did offer $20,000, but the contribution was declined.

Mr. Cortelyou denied that he ever instructed any one to destroy the records of contributions received during the campaign. He destroyed unimportant reports, but the names of contributors were never in his possession. He said he knew nothing of the group of eight men, who, according to Judge Parker's testimony, had underwritten President Roosevelt's campaign. Some of the men named by Judge Parker, he said, were not included in the list to whom he sent invitations to join the Auxiliary Committee. He doubted if there was any group such as Mr. Parker described.

"As to the charge of blackmail, brought by Judge Parker," said Mr. Cortelyou, "I can simply state that as Secretary of Commerce and Labor I knew no facts regarding corporations that I would not have known as an average citizen. I was not in the office long, and my time was taken up entirely with organizing the new department. Even the Bureau of Corporations at that time had undertaken no investigation except a small inquiry into the Beef Trust in response to a Congressional investigation, and I knew little about that.

"As a matter of fact," added Mr. Cortelyou, "any man in the confidence of the President and the high in public office can be a scoundrel if he pleases. In the last analysis it is a question of personal character. If a man goes from public office to private life the question whether he will use improperly information gained in the one place for advantage in the other must be decided solely by what that man is."

Munsey for Secret Contributions.

Mr. Munsey, who told the committee that the $118,005.72 he contributed to the Roosevelt pre-convention fund made him look like a "piker" because it seemed so small beside the sum he had been credited with giving, caused a mild sensation by advocating secrecy of contributions. The only publicity that should obtain, he said, was the publicity of campaign expenditures. But the work the Clapp committee has been doing in unearthing campaign contributions was making it very difficult for campaigns to be operated.

"Only by arousing public interest will progress be made and popular interest will not be aroused if the Government pays the expenditures. I do not believe it would have been possible to accomplish what was accomplished for Col. Roosevelt by the use of money if the National Treasury had been tapped. His delegates to Chicago were obtained in another way."

Mr. Munsey said that in 1904 he contributed $10,000 to the Republican National campaign and in 1908 $15,000 to Mr. Taft's fund, and $1,500 for the State Republican ticket. In the recent pre-convention struggle, he gave $67,166.56 to the National campaign and about $50,000 odd to State committees. About $18,000 he contributed, he said, before there was any organization in the field for Mr. Roosevelt. It was at William L. Ward's instance that he began his contributions.

Mr. Munsey said that $15,000 of his money went to New York State. One item of $9.000 went to Massachusetts, and the further item of $10,969.44 was spent in Massachusetts for newspaper advertising.

Mr. Lawson, who described himself without a smile as "farmer and author," told the committee this afternoon several things which afterward he practically retracted. He began by saying that he knew that in 1904 Standard Oil contributed to Judge Parker's campaign and that the company practically gave its agents at the Democratic Convention carte blanche to obtain his nomination. The orders, he said, went from Mr. Rogers, who repeatedly discussed the matter with him. Later, however, Mr. Lawson admitted that he knew what he had testified to only "in a general way." Perhaps he had not seen Mr. Rogers but once, he said.

Lawson Tells of Wall Street Fund.

Mr. Lawson referred repeatedly to information he had given William J. Bryan, and the committee members laughed at the large results which Mr. Lawson attributed to the assistance rendered the Peerless Leader. In the present campaign, Mr. Lawson said, he indirectly brought about the nomination of Wilson by exposing to Mr. Bryan a million-dollar fund raised by Wall Street to deadlock the Democratic Convention and bring forward a dark horse satisfactory to the interests. Who this dark horse was the committee good naturedly refrained from asking and let the subject drop with the comment by Senator Paynter that the conspiracy had failed.

"It is almost impossible to define the sources of my information," said Mr. Lawson placidly. "Those sources are very various. I know them in a general way. They come to me through my official relations, and I have a system by which I make a point of being unable to recall a name when I think it would be improper to recall it. I get the information in part, for instance, from one secretary, who passes it through a second secretary, and so it comes to me in a way that allows me to forget the source."

"And is it on this basis that you make positive statements?" asked Senator Pomerene.

Mr. Lawson admitted that the Senator was right, "in a general way."

Mr. Lawson charged that Wall Street interests, on account of opposition to Taft, had decided, without Col. Roosevelt's knowledge, to bring the Colonel forward to split the Republican Party. The object then was to elect a suitable Democratic President, so they raised a million-dollar fund for use at Baltimore.

Efforts to induce Mr. Lawson to name his information seemed for a moment to anger him. He leaned forward and said he fully understood the object of the committee, as he had read the testimony of Mr. Morgan and others.

"I do not see why you seize on him," he shouted, "simply because I am on the side of the people, when you let Morgan's testimony go out to the country as a joke."

John C. McCall, Vice President of the New York Life Insurance Company, told the committee of the contribution of $48,700 advanced by Mr. Perkins on behalf of the company for President Roosevelt's campaign.

Tells of Detroit Corruption.

Wholesale corruption on both the Taft and Roosevelt sides in the primary fight in Detroit was charged by ex-Judge James O. Murfin. He said that he raised, with Capt. Alger, $1,500 for President Taft, and three days before the county convention offered it to John B. McKay, who managed the Taft campaign. Mr. McKay replied that he did not need the money because he had enough.

"He admitted that it was a good thing that he did have plenty of money," said Judge Murfin, "as some of the fellows on the east side had held him up for as much as $300 apiece. These were the delegates to the county convention. It was the rottenest election that Detroit has had in many years, and one side was as rotten as the other. It just happened that our side was run by skillful men, so we got the delegates."

BOTH SIDES CLOSE IN MACFARLAND CASE

Defense Decides Not to Call Woman for Whom It Is Charged He Killed His Wife.

HER LETTERS INTRODUCED

Pathetic Pleas to MacFarland Read to Show Dead Woman Was Jealous and Had Motive for Suicide.

Counsel for Allison M. MacFarland in his second trial before Chief Justice Gummere in Newark, N. J., for the murder of his wife, rested his case yesterday without calling on Miss Florence Bromley of Philadelphia to testify. The prosecution charged that it was for love of Miss Bromley that MacFarland killed his wife by giving her a dose of cyanide of potassium. The defense, on the other hand, alleged that Mrs. MacFarland discovered love letters from Miss Bromley to her husband signed "Bunny," and that this discovery led her to commit suicide.

When court reconvened for the afternoon session, Mr. McDermit, counsel for MacFarland, explained that he had intended to call Dr. Henry H. Cottell, a chemist of Philadelphia, to testify as to the attributes of cyanide of potassium, but, he said, he had decided not to do so. At the same time counsel for the defense announced that Miss Bromley was in the building.

"She is at hand," said Mr. McDermit, "and ready to go on the stand, but in light of recent developments she will not be called for the defense and is at the disposal of the Prosecutor."

Prosecutor Mott said the case of the State was closed. First Assistant Prosecutor Frederick Lehtbach then began to sum up.

Earlier in the day, the defense introduced two letters from Mrs. MacFarland which she wrote to her husband when she was living at her mother's home in Maine, and he was in Newark. In these letters, Mrs. MacFarland told of receiving letters from Miss Bromley, in which Miss Bromley implied that MacFarland had told her things reflecting on Mrs. MacFarland's character. The wife pleaded with her husband to deny these charges and to make a home for her and their children. At the end of one of her letters Mrs. MacFarland said that she thought Miss Bromley's object in writing to her was to make trouble between them so that she would consent to get a divorce from MacFarland that he might be free to marry Miss Bromley. "As long as I live you never shall be free," the letter said. "My children shall have a father as long as I am alive to take care of them."

The defense introduced these letters to show that Mrs. MacFarland was jealous of Miss Bromley, and to thus establish a motive for her suicide.

In an interview granted by her at the noon recess of court yesterday, Miss Bromley said:

"Where a man's life is at stake I consider it my duty to try to save him."

She declared that if she was called as a witness she would substantiate, so far as possible, the explanations given by MacFarland of phrases in her letters. Then she declared:

"If I thought Mr. MacFarland was guilty I would not be here. I did not think it necessary to testify at the first trial, it seemed so obvious that he was innocent."

When Prosecutor Mott concluded his summing up for the State last night it was nearly 10:30 o'clock, and Justice Gummere announced that he would charge the jury at 9:30 o'clock this morning. Prosecutor Mott talked for two hours and fifteen minutes, following the opening for the State by First Assistant Prosecutor Frederick Lehlbach and two hours and forty minutes of summing up for the defense by Mr. McDermit. The lawyer for the defense contended that MacFarland should be acquitted on the ground that the evidence proved that his wife deliberately committed suicide when she discovered that he had deceived her.

Prosecutor Mott attacked this contention by showing that in the first trial, nearly a year ago, and up to a week or two ago, the entire effort of the defense was confined to showing that Mrs. MacFarland took the poison by mistake and that the prisoner was guilty of nothing worse than carelessness in leaving it within her reach.

At one time while the Prosecutor was telling of the cyanide having lost some of its original strength before being officially tested because it was left in an open glass for twenty-four hours, MacFarland smiled and wrote this note to his counsel:

You Want to Save Half Your Clothes Money

Particularly is this so in clothes—man's great necessity.

Yet there are many men who by overlooking the Hackett-Carhart sale will be guilty of this great extravagance.

Hackett-Carhart prices today make others' twice too high. And the reason for this is simple:

It is because of the recent receivership—because the creditors accepted 50c on the dollar.

You don't have to sacrifice in order to save on this sale.

You are asked to come in and demand just as much of each suit and overcoat as you would were you to pay its full price.

Cut almost in two, this opportunity becomes an actual debt that each man owes to himself.

For, no matter what your fancy in new clothes—no matter what you might have seen and almost selected—you can duplicate it here at about one-half its price elsewhere.

Here at this Hackett-Carhart half-million dollar receivership sale you will average a one-half saving on whatever you may select.

You can be sure that the style of each garment is absolutely correct New York style, that every fabric is strictly all-wool, cold water shrunk, and tested for color and strength. Many are special weaves and exclusive designs from the world's ablest weavers.

Also, in each instance, the fabrics are of the highest standard that exists in either this country or in Europe.

And as regards the assortment:

This includes the entire Fall and Winter stocks that were in preparation before the receivership—clothes for six months ahead.

Among these are garments for Business, Dress, Travel, Motor and Storm. For all seasons of the year, and for every service.

You simply couldn't get more in clothes were you to pay the highest price asked by the highest-priced shop in town.

THE NEW SITUATION IN MEXICO.

Vera Cruz is the key of Mexico. Gen. FELIX DIAZ is a popular man with a large following, a well-trained soldier who has held aloof until now from all the revolutionary and rebellious movements which have occurred since the retirement of his uncle, PORFIRIO DIAZ, from the Presidency. It does not seem likely that a man like FELIX DIAZ would place himself at the head of a movement against the Government without assurance of strong support. The garrison of Vera Cruz has joined him, and there seems no likelihood that the naval commander at that port will resist his occupancy of the city. In a manifesto, which from the summary we have received seems needlessly severe in its characterization of President MADERO as "a murderous tyrant," Gen. DIAZ promises peace to the Mexicans and honest elections. He also names as members of his provisional Cabinet eminent and reputable men like ALBERTO GRANADOS and FRANCISCO DE LA BARRA. Mr. DE LA BARRA is now Governor of the State of Mexico, resident at Toluca. Gen. DIAZ also names Gen. BERNARDO REYES, now in prison, as his Minister of War. It is believed that his forces will soon occupy Tampico, as well as Vera Cruz, and thus control both of Mexico's important Atlantic seaports. So far as can be learned from the dispatches, not only the soldiers but the citizens of Vera Cruz have received FELIX DIAZ cordially. The Custom House has been closed and the Collector of Customs has turned over to the revolutionary leader all the funds in his possession.

Without relying upon various unconfirmed reports of the adhesion to the cause of DIAZ of the whole State of Jalisco, one of the most populous and important in the republic; of the willingness of OROZCO and ZAPATA to acknowledge the leadership of DIAZ, and of new uprisings in sympathy with his movement in Yucatan and elsewhere, it must be admitted that this is a formidable revolution and that the downfall of the Madero Government is likely.

The Administration of MADERO has now lasted a year, and early in the Summer his troops defeated OROZCO at Bachimba in a battle which should have been decisive. OROZCO has since kept going in the Far North, though he has not accomplished much. ZAPATA has continued his depredations without serious molestation in Morelos and other States near the capital, and the promises of the Administration to restore order by severe measures have not been kept. There have been rumors of the disaffection of Gen. HUERTA, the hero of Bachimba. Business has suffered, and there has been a sad lack of harmony in the National Legislature. Now, as a climax to the year of unrest, comes this well-planned revolution under reputable leadership, and with strong indications that the army will favor DIAZ.

There is some talk of impending battles, but we are inclined to believe that none will be fought. MADERO declares that only death can remove him from the Presidency before his term expires, and expresses his official opinion that the uprising is not of great importance. As the Constitutional President he could say no less at this juncture. What he may be thinking is another matter. But it is tolerably certain that there will be no more foolish talk about American intervention.

LAST DAYS OF REGISTRATION.

The registration in this city last Friday and Saturday was unsatisfactory. The total fell something like 25 per cent. below the figures of the first two days four years ago. There should have been an increase; any decrease is abnormal and must be due to indifference or sheer laziness.

To-day and to-morrow are the last two days of registration this year. The falling off shown in the figures of the first two days ought to be made up and more. There has been a very large increase in population, in the number of voters, since 1908. Why anybody should be indifferent to the result of this election passes all understanding. Every intelligent man thinks about politics, talks politics, has views, opinions, preferences. It is a fault in citizenship for any qualified voter to fail to register his name. No pretext or explanation, save absolute inability to visit the place of registration, excuses the voter's failure to get his name on the books. Too many men let the pressure of business or plans for recreation and enjoyment stand in the way of the performance of this duty. Among all the rights of a citizen nothing is more important than that of suffrage. There is something wrong with the man who will not register. No man whose name is not already on the list can vote on Nov. 5 unless he registers to-day or to-morrow.

NEUTRALIZATION EXEMPLIFIED.

During this current week Turkey has been in such danger as no American can believe will ever threaten the United States. Yet not even in that dire extremity did Turkey or Italy dare to break the neutralization of either Egypt or the Dardanelles, which were under the protection of others than Turkey. Thus KIAMIL Pasha, discussing the treaty of peace extorted from Turkey, said:

> We owe our defeat to Egypt's neutrality. If we had been able to send troops to Bengnazi across Egypt we should have conquered.

In like manner Italy did not dare to take action that would have closed the Dardanelles to commerce, or would have compelled Turkey to do so. These cases teach the lesson that no nation now can live to itself alone, not even the United States regarding Panama. It is an American canal, but is dedicated to the use of the world by contracts which the United States cannot construe for itself without outlawing itself. We have undertaken that the canal shall be "neutral," and it is not for us alone to say what neutrality means. The word has been defined by the world's practice, and we must accept the world's views under penalty of disfellowship through refusal to use that same light of reason in the construction of written engagements that our own Supreme Court discovered and displayed to an amazed Congress.

No nation by its fiat can neutralize anything. Neutralization is a matter of agreement, an arrangement whereby the right of attack is surrendered in consideration of superior advantages received. There is no such agreement possible in the case of Panama, since there is no nation with which the United States can or will make such an agreement. The United States has guaranteed to the world commercial neutrality at Panama in consideration of release from an agreement of dual defense of neutrality which had become intolerable. The situation at Panama, therefore, is a compromise, and the nearest approach to what the world regards as neutralization that the case permits. All who profit by that neutrality must both respect and cause to be respected the conditions of enjoyment by all. There is no political alliance of offense and defense possible, but the peace of Panama is defended by the same principles that preserved the privileges of commerce through the Dardanelles, and that prevented Egypt from becoming the cockpit of many armies. Panama is practically neutralized because the interest of the world is bound up in having the canal as free as the ocean.

A COLORED WILSON LEADER.

RICHARD CARROLL is a colored Baptist minister. He lives at Columbia, South Carolina. He is a native of Edgefield County, in that State, the home county of "brave old BEN TILLMAN." In the Spanish-American war he was a Chaplain in the volunteer service of the United States. He publishes a newspaper and "runs" an orphanage for colored children, and makes himself generally useful. He is a ready speaker and is in much demand.

Several weeks ago he was invited by the speakers' bureau of the Democratic Committee in New York to make campaign speeches in the West and Middle West in support of WOODROW WILSON for President. He has been denounced by some of the colored newspapers and politicians in his State for his disposition to aid in the election of a Democratic President—sickness in his family, he explains, is the only thing that has prevented his taking the stump for WILSON—and he gives in a letter to The News and Courier the reasons for the faith that is in him. First, he wishes it to be understood that he is not a Democrat, and that he has "never bothered with politics" in his life; but he is "glad all the negroes are not voting the Republican ticket," that they "are not all in the Progressive "Party, and that some of them are "helping the Democrats to win." He continues:

> Col. ROOSEVELT has advised the Southern negro to ally himself with the Southern white people. I for one am taking his advice. If Gov. WILSON, when elected President, does nothing for the negro of the South, I shall not be disappointed, for the Republican Party has done nothing for us; on the other hand, Mr. TAFT turned us over to our so-called enemies when he became President. I believe in living on friendly terms with the man who lives next door to me. When these negroes, who are criticizing me, want money, sympathy, or assistance they get it from the business men here where they live. If the negro can help Gov. WILSON to win he will not be forgotten.

The view expressed by Dr. CARROLL is the view that is held by many of his people down South, very few of whom, however, can vote. Whatever way the colored question is looked at, it presents a very knotty problem. It is gratifying to know that many colored men will vote the Democratic ticket this year. It is claimed by the Republican managers here that 80 per cent. of the negroes will vote for TAFT, and 20 per cent. for ROOSEVELT and WILSON, and about equally divided between them.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Long Words, But Not Very Hard. Col. ROOSEVELT's doctors will doubtless have to stand the usual scolding because of the use in their bulletins of several big words not in ordinary vocabularies and therefore of unknown meaning to many readers of these announcements. This will be declared an affront by some and ridiculous by others, but for it there are several excuses, the best of them, probably, being that it was pretty nearly a case of using these words or leaving uninformed the part of the public really desirous of accurate information as to the Colonel's condition and willing to take a little trouble to get it.

The alternative was to write out a more or less elaborate summary of what the latest investigations have revealed as to the composition and inhabitants of blood, and the doctors could not reasonably be expected to do that half a dozen times a day. That composition, as it happens, is most complex, and the inhabitants are not only numerous, but of many kinds, not a few of them just as much independent, separate, living individuals as are the microscopic beasts that swim about in stagnant water, preying on each other exactly as do men and the other animals called "higher."

The most indignation will probably be caused—among people with no dictionaries or an inveterate disinclination to use them—by the mention in one of the bulletins of leucocytes and polymorphonuclear neutrophiles. These are both what formerly were called white, as distinguished from red, blood corpuscles, but now, according to the classification of EHRLICH, the white corpuscles are divided into lymphocytes and leucocytes, and the latter, all characterized by a notable ameboid or locomotive power, have several subdivisions, of which the polymorphonuclear neutrophiles form one. Their name means that they are cells with nuclei with lobes not always of the same shape, and that to make them visible under the microscope they must be stained with a neutral dye, meaning a dye which is neither acid nor alkaline.

All this the words tell very clearly and briefly to anybody even slightly acquainted with the language of biology. That these cells or any others like or love to be stained with aniline colors of any kind is, of course, only a scientific joke, but on it is based a whole family of grave scientific names, understood throughout the whole scientific world—which is a great merit in a name.

Speed Is Highly Desirable. It is to be regretted that immediate disposition of the case of the man SCHRANK cannot, for several good reasons, be made. The best of them, the question whether he committed murder or only attempted, cannot for some days to come be answered with certainty, in spite of the fact that every indication, fortunately, now points to the conclusion that the crime committed is one which under the statute is the less serious.

Another reason for delay is that in a period of political excitement, and the excitement, just possibly, would in some way or degree influence the outcome of SCHRANK's trial. That reason alone, however, would hardly justify postponement of the trial to the middle of December, for in no part of the country has there been any failure to appreciate that the man is insane or anything like a demand for vengeance upon the poor wretch.

It is none the less to be deplored that he cannot be at once subjected to the formal examination he must receive and then be committed to the asylum, where he ought to have been long ago. Till that has been done he will be a subject of attention and discussion, both of which will feed his mad vanity, and, what is much worse, will have the least desirable of effects on other maniacs whose homicidal tendencies have not yet been recognized.

The sooner silence and obscurity cover him, the less likely will he be to have imitators, obsessed and compelled by the suggestive influence of his deed.

No One Error Caused the Disaster. Of all the commentators on the baseball games that determined the National championship, hardly one refrains from making the mistake of ascribing the defeat of the New York team to a single error of an individual player on the losing side. The unfortunate SNODGRASS is most often selected to bear this heavy burden, and no doubt his failure to hold that easy fly will take its permanent place in many a fanatic memory as the crime that cost us the pennant.

Nothing could be more unjust or unreasonable than this. For one thing, such a judgment utterly ignores the large fact that the decisive game was won as well as lost. Victory must have been as much due to one play as was defeat, and it is most curious that the critics are not as eager to explain the one as the other in the same way. To do so would exemplify the very general human liking to find small causes behind great effects—a liking which has probably led to as much inaccurate talk and writing as any other bad habit to which men are prone.

Those who are denouncing SNODGRASS forget that had it not been for a particularly brilliant play of his in a previous game there would have been no seventh game. A more serious blunder than that, however, lies in forgetting that another's earlier error in that seventh game is what gave SNODGRASS's muff its apparently decisive character, and that it was the later error of still another that the game was not won in spite of the one dropped fly. The latter error differed from a dozen others only in being more spectacular.

In any deep analysis of the outcome of the series the explanation of the result will be found from viewing it as a whole. Teams, not individuals, were contending, and it is as such that the real psychologists will study them. The individual errors, like the individual brillianicies, are effects, not causes, of an underlying state or condition—in this instance probably of nervous exhaustion on the one side and nervous accumulation on the other.

Luck had nothing to do with the result, for the excellent reason that there is no such thing, whatever happens having necessarily some adequate cause.

Dwellers in Glass Houses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senator Dixon, as the Bull Moose campaign manager, no doubt feels required to live up to the traditions of a campaign manager's duties in making capital out of every possible event in every possible way. But he stretches a point when he so violently assails the opponents of Mr. Roosevelt and declares that their "bitter personalities" caused the recent attack upon him.

Will Senator Dixon kindly state who introduced both bitterness and personality into this campaign? Has any Presidential candidate within the memory of the present generation been as profusely vituperative as Senator Dixon's chief?

In a word, who inaugurated this era of bad manners in politics? It is a fair question to ask. W. C. T.

MORE LIBRARY CRITICISM.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you permit me to echo the complaint against the Public Library which appears in this morning's issue? The authorities appear to be conducting the library upon a kind of modified "Newberry" plan, and complaints about the resultant discomfort to the public are resented by the whole staff. It appears to be taken for granted that readers know in advance what books they desire to consult, and that telephone or written requests will reserve the wanted books.

New Yorkers are entitled to service wholly different from that which they have been receiving, and public opinion would express itself in a somewhat different way had it not been the invariable rule of the library to ignore complaints made through the public press.

This community is entitled to the use of the library from opening until closing time. To lock up a large lot of books after 6 P. M. and all day Sundays deprives many students of opportunities to which they have quite as much right as those with leisure to consult volumes during the day. C. A. H.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was much interested in the criticisms of Kate Parsons in THE TIMES, and I would suggest that the boy who is at the desk of the magazine room be ordered to see that no person is allowed to take more than one magazine at a time, and that readers return magazines to their proper places in the rack.

I have frequently tried to get a magazine to read which I wanted, and on looking at the tables found several readers with two or three magazines in front of them besides the one they were using, thus depriving others of the chance of perusing them. I have complained at the desk about the abuse several times, but find no improvement. H. F. F.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When I first began to use the library I was doing more or less desultory reading. I had definite ideas of what books I wished, but, when they were not to be had, I contented myself with something else which happened to be there. When this repeatedly occurred I was annoyed, but tried to be philosophical about it, and excused it, as Miss Parsons did, on the plea that "everything was new."

Now, however, I feel sufficient time has passed to warrant the public in expecting good service. I have taken up a special course of reading and study for which I read certain books. And, although this necessity has been short-lived, so inadequate have been the fulfillments of my few demands that I registered a determination to keep a statistical report of the books asked for and dates when they were secured, and thus make my protest better organized.

I have asked for, or sought for, in the catalogue drawers two psychologies of which I found no traces, nor were they on the shelves under "Psychology." I asked for a volume of plays by Brieux and could not get them; a volume of Poe's essays I waited a fortnight to obtain, and so with many other important books.

I feel very much ashamed at our terrible shortage in comparison with Boston. We are making such a frightful effort to be cultured; we have spent so much to make others think we are cultured, that the failure is all the more humiliating. L. W.

DEFECTIVE FURNACES

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your report of my address on "Smoke Abatement" before the meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers on Tuesday evening you stated that I disagreed with Prof. Breckenridge in his statement that bituminous coal could be burned, under proper conditions, without smoke. On the contrary, I most positively agreed with him.

My address dealt with a scientific definition of what objectionable smoke really is, and the manner in which it is produced in improperly designed furnaces and by the improper handling of fires.

A careful study of the true cause of smoke generation has been neglected by many dealing with the smoke abatement problem, and, as a furnace expert, I was called upon to present this side of the subject.

After designing and supervising the installation of furnaces placed under many thousands of horse power of boilers in all parts of this country and in Europe, in which all kinds of fuel have been burned, I can state positively that I have had no difficulty in burning nearly every fuel I have met with, including the various grades of bituminous coal, without objectionable smoke.

With such efficient furnace conditions, the great economy following, as regards amount of fuel required for operation, has brought such a saving to the owners of these plans that they have found that it paid them well to make whatever changes were necessary to secure such smokeless conditions. There is no particular design of furnace which will secure the desired results with all kinds of fuel; thus each case needs careful study to meet the existing conditions. ALBERT A. CARY.

Col. Roosevelt's Courage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES's leading editorial article to-day is, in my opinion, magnificent. The generous meed of praise extended to Col. Roosevelt for the display of manly courage and indomitable will in going ahead in the performance of what he considered a duty, undeterred by the bullet of a would-be assassin, filled me with admiration and gratitude, and the spirit of justice that permeated the entire article compelled me to exclaim, "Bully!"

In your news columns of the same issue I read in the bulletin signed by Dr. J. B. Murphy: "Col. Roosevelt's superb physical condition, due to his outdoor exercise and habitual abstinence from liquor, and tobacco, as well as his simplicity of diet, account for the small effect produced on him during his long speech while suffering from such a severe wound." Thus is refuted another calumny uttered against the character of this great man. EDWIN G. LAWRENCE.

A Disrupted Home.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a widow—a mother of two boys. One is 6 and the other is 7 years. My financial condition was unfortunately such as to compel me to send my boys to an asylum.

They are well cared for there. That is a cheering reflection to me. But I have been thinking that society would have acted more humanely and benefited enormously, if, instead of sending the children to an asylum and the mother to the factory, it had provided material aid so that the home might be preserved in all its pristine glory, with the mother attending to the duties of the household and the care of her family. THE AUTUMN STAR.

The Autumn leaves turn brown and sere
  And drift to molder in the shade;
Down by the river's brink a fear
Creeps where the quivering rushes hear
The footsteps of the passing year
  Go slowly through the glade.

His pipes are silent; in despair
  Sits Pan amid the river reeds.
The wind blows back his unkempt hair
Across dank marshes, wild and bare;
The naiad lurks no longer there,
  Nor faun his music heeds.

Lift up thy head, god Pan, and see
  Among the stars in bright array,
The nymphs that mortal vales must flee!
The faun Capella beckons thee
To notes of wilder ecstasy—

GEOGRAPHERS END CROSS-COUNTRY TRIP

Come to New York to Open New Building of the American Society and Compare Notes.

PROGRESS ON PACIFIC COAST

The transcontinental excursion party, in which more than 100 European and American geographers and scientists have been touring the country from coast to coast for the past eight weeks under the auspices of the American Geographical Society, returned yesterday to this city to finish in a two days' celebration the trip over the United States, and include the sixtieth anniversary marking the American Geographical Society's existence and take a hand in the opening of its new home at 156th Street and Broadway. At the latter place and in the Hispanic Museum facing it, the members of the excursion were entertained yesterday afternoon, and in the evening a reception was given in their honor.

The forty-three distinguished foreign geographers and scientists and the dozen Americans who made the entire trip to the Pacific Coast and back reached this city yesterday morning, and until nightfall they were busy telling of the interesting experiences they had in the sightseeing tour. In addition to those who made the entire trip there were some seventy American geographers and scientists who joined the expedition from time to time in various localities and acted as guides and interpreters of local scenes and land formations. The returning tourists said yesterday that their trip had been replete with rich experiences that would enable them to fulfill the purposes abundantly for which the trip was undertaken—to spread abroad in foreign lands correct and first-hand information concerning conditions in the United States. Almost all the foreign visitors occupy university chairs in their home lands, and will lecture concerning their American tour and conditions they have noted.

Save for one dismal spell of rainy weather—which, oddly enough, was in the arid district of southern Arizona—the party enjoyed excellent weather.

After a luncheon for the excursionists yesterday afternoon, two hours were devoted to reading and discussing papers on geographical subjects in the Hispanic Society Building. John Greenough, Vice President of the American Geographical Society, presided at the meeting, where the following papers were read:

"The Debt of Geographical Science to American Exploration," by Emmanuel de Margerie, former President of the Geological Society of France; "The California Netherlands," by J. F. Niermeyer, Professor of Economic Geography at the University of Utrecht; "The Ancient Desert Peoples of North America and Their Relation to the Indigenous Mexican Civilization," by Dr. Eugene de Cholnoky, Vice President of the Hungarian Geographical Society; "Terms Expressing Stages of Development of Land Forms," by Dr. Fritz Jaeger, Professor of Colonial Geography at the University of Berlin; "Irrigation in the United States and in the German Colonies," by Dr. Carl Uhlig, Professor of Geography in the University of Tubingen; "Remarks Concerning the Situation and Development of Some Cities of the United States," by Dr. Fritz Nussbaum, Secretary of the Geographical Society of Berne.

In his discussion of the reclamation processes in the Sacramento Valley, Prof. Niermeyer compared the work there with that done in his own country and found great similarity between the levee building in the delta of the Sacramento and the dike building in the Rhine delta in Holland. In fact, he declared, as early as 1871, the first Holland-American Emigration Society was founded in California, and the immigrants at that time put into practice the same style of dike building they had known in their native land.

Prof. Niermeyer congratulated California on the spirit of enterprise it had shown in having converted swamp lands into fine and most fertile ground, while New York, Boston, and other Eastern cities, he said, still tolerated marshes to remain unutilized and a positive danger within a few miles of them. He criticised, however, the manner in which the levees of the "California Netherlands" were constructed. He said they were "built but not properly maintained," that the dikes were made too near the river along the Sacramento, and as a result often were undermined, so that the people there were compelled to reinforce them. He declared that until this year there was also an inexcusable dearth of legislation in California with regard to the conservation of its water resources on a systematic and organized basis.

Much interest centred in the reading by Prof. de Cholnoky of his paper on the ancient desert peoples of North America and their relation to Mexican civilization. Prof. de Cholnoky declared that never had peoples in higher stages of civilization sprung from forest or savannah regions, but that genuine civilizations had been native only to irrigated deserts or half-deserts and irrigated gardens. He mentioned as examples in point the Mesopotamic civilization, which sprung from a half-desert where cultivation was possible only through irrigation, and the Chinese civilization, which, he said, had sprung from a series of oases—irrigated gardens. In North America and South America, likewise, he said, the first civilization was developed in arid regions.

"The origin of the high civilization of the North American Indians," he said, "was in the cliff dwellings. The Pueblo architecture of Mexico and Yucatan also originated among the cliff dwellers, as did the textile industry and basket weaving, of which we saw such interesting examples in our recent excursion. It is hard, at the present day, to rival the Indian basket work, which was carried to a high degree of skill in the days of the cliff dwellers of long ago.

"Forests or the savannah types of land get their populations only through emigration from artificially irrigated lands. In many cases, it is true, this migration gave them a civilization of higher grade than the places of its earlier abode. Culture came down from the higth plains in Mexico to the forests of Yucatan, Guatemala, and other Central American lands, just as the Jewish, Greek, and Persian cultures came from the high plains of Asia. In South America, also, the same irrigated high plains were the birthplace of the Inca civilization, which later migrated to the lower forests and savannahs."

Last night the American Geographical Society tendered a reception to the members of the Transcontinental Excursion in the new building at 156th Street and Broadway. Owing to the difficulty in presenting every member of the society to each of the excursionists, the latter were furnished with blue badges, with the request that they permit members to introduce themselves.

This afternoon the long studies of the foreign visitors here will wind up with the reading of further papers on geographical topics, and to-night a dinner will be given in their honor at the Waldorf-Astoria, at which toasts will be given by both American and foreign members of the excursion.

Japan Society to Dine Mabie.

It was announced last night by Lindsay Russell, President of the Japan Society, that the dinner to be given by the society at the Hotel Astor on Oct. 22 would be in honor of Hamilton Wright Mabie, associate editor of The Outlook, who is about to depart for Japan under the auspices of the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace. The principal address of the evening will be made by Dr. Mabie, while the other speakers will be President Butler of Columbia, who will preside; Andrew Carnegie, Dr. Talcott Williams, Consul General Numano, President Finley of the City College, Dr. Henry van Dyke, and Hamilton Holt.

EDUCATION HALL DEDICATED.

ALBANY, Oct. 17.—New York's magnificent new State Education Building is now under the control of the State Board of Regents. The dedicatory ceremonies closed this afternoon when Gov. Dix, on behalf of the State, made the formal presentation.

Assembled in the handsome audience room of the building were prominent educators from all parts of this country and abroad, and, in addition, there were present Gov. Dix, former Govs. Benjamin B. Odell, Jr., and Horace White, State Commissioner of Education Draper, and members of the State Board of Regents, all of whom took part in the dedication.

After a prayer of invocation by the Right Rev. William Croswell Doane, Episcopal Bishop of Albany; Chancellor Whitelaw Reid, who has presided at all the ceremonies, briefly thanked all persons and members of institutions who had been instrumental in the erection of the building. Gov. Dix then formally presented the structure to the Regents.

It was accepted on behalf of the Regents by Vice Chancellor St. Clair McKelway. Subsequently State Commissioner of Education Draper delivered the dedicatory address, in which he placed particular emphasis upon the fact that "we dedicate a building which has been carried to an admirable and complete fruition without scandal, and within the first appropriation that was provided for it."

Former Govs. Benjamin B. Odell, Jr., and Horace White then extended informal congratulations. Letters from former Govs. Charles E. Hughes and Frank S. Black, regretting their inability to take part in the ceremonies, were read.

To-night the Governor and Mrs. Dix entertained at dinner a number of the distinguished guests who attended the dedication ceremonies.

PRESIDENT STANDS BY FREAR

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Oct. 17.—President Taft will get the election returns at his old home in Cincinnati. He will not leave Beverly until the first of next month, when he will go to Newark to attend the dedication ceremonies of the Washington Monument. From there the President will go to New York, where he will attend the complimentary banquet to be given to Charles D. Hilles, Chairman of the National Committee, and from there he will go to Cincinnati to vote and to get the election returns.

The President arrived at Parramatta this morning, making the run from Worcester, where he spent the night, in a little over three hours.

Mrs. Taft arrived home yesterday, coming direct from New York, and Miss Helen Taft came home last evening after spending the day with Miss Edith Morgan at her New York home.

The President was busy with the accumulation of mail and official business when he arrived home, but he found time to play golf soon after luncheon.

He announced to-day that when Congress meets he will send to the Senate the nomination of Walter F. Frear, to succeed himself as Governor of Hawaii. By direction of the President, and at the request of Gov. Frear, Secretary Fisher went to Hawaii immediately upon the adjournment of Congress to investigate matters growing out of a protest against the Governor's reappointment.

Secretary Fisher talked privately with many persons, and made a personal examination of the islands and their industries. He reached the conclusion that the charges against the Governor were not well founded and that his reappointment would be greatly in the interest of the islands and of the country at large.

TO LAY NEW CHAPEL'S STONE.

Bishop Greer will lay the cornerstone of the Trinity Parish Chapel of the Intercession, which is being erected in Trinity Cemetery, on Thursday, Oct. 24, at 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon. All the clergymen of the Episcopal diocese of New York, with the Trustees of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and of other bodies connected with the church, have been invited. The clergymen and lay guests are to meet at 3 o'clock in the old Church of the Intercession, Broadway and 158th Street, and from there they will proceed, led by choir and trumpeters, to the site of the new church where the exercises will take place.

The services will be in charge of the rector of Trinity Parish, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, assisted by the vicar of the chapel, the Rev. M. H. Gates. The Rev. Edmund Banks Smith, chaplain of Governors Island, will be the master of ceremonies.

The new chapel is to take the place of the old one which has been outgrown by the congregation. It is at the northwest corner of the old cemetery at Broadway and 155th Street.

SMALL SALARIES UP FIRST.

Budget Committee for Increase for First Two Police Grades.

The Budget Committee of the Board of Estimate, consisting of President Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen, Borough President McAneny, and the Controller, recommended yesterday the increase of salaries of first grade policemen from $800 to $1,000 and of second grade policemen from $900 to $1,000 a year. If the increase is granted, it will take effect Jan. 1, when the 1913 budget will be operative. It will effect 429 first grade men and 553 second grade men, and add $140,900 a year to the city budget.

Police Commissioner Waldo appeared before the committee a short time ago and made an urgent plea for the increase. The requests for increases for higher grades in the department, including Captains and Inspectors, have not yet been acted upon, and the committee has not decided what action it will take on the application for increase of salary for firemen.

ST. ANDREW'S NEW PASTOR.

Bishop Wilson Puts the Rev. Wallace H. Finch in Charge.

St. Andrew's Methodist Church, Seventy-sixth Street, near Columbus Avenue, one of the two wealthy Methodist congregations of Manhattan's west side, was yesterday assigned a new pastor by Bishop Wilson, in charge of this conference. He is the Rev. Wallace H. Finch, at present the Superintendent of the Newburg district of the New York Conference. The pulpit was vacant because of the resignation of the Rev. Dr. George C. Peck to become Secretary of the Methodist Church Extension Society in this city.

The new pastor has accepted and will enter upon his work on Nov. 1. There had been talk of consolidation of Union Methodist Church in Forty-eighth Street with St. Andrew's, but that now ceases, and St. Andrew's will go on alone.

The Last Great Indian Council.

Dr. Joseph K. Dixon, leader of the Rodman Wanamaker historical expeditions to the North American Indian, will lecture in the auditorium of the American Museum of Natural History on Thursday evening, Oct. 24, on the "Last Great Indian Council." There will also be an exhibition of Indian photographs in the West Assembly Hall. Dr. Dixon's lecture will be illustrated with colored slides and moving pictures. Dr. Dixon has studied the red man at close range, and his photographs illustrate Indian tribal life, methods of warfare, and religious rites.

Clinic Heirs Seek Estate.

The first application for letters of administration on the estate of an alien to be filed by the Chinese Consul was presented to the Surrogates' Court yesterday by Consul Liang Luen Fang. Consul Fang asked control of the estate of Fuman F Tong, who died May 31 last. Tong left a mother at Hongkong, described in the petition as "Chows," and a brother and nephew at Shanghai. The estate, the Consul said, is about $250.

'A COMPENSATED DOLLAR'

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention has been called to a letter to THE TIMES from the eminent writer on finance, Horace White. In it, while paying me high compliments, which I keenly appreciate, he raises as an objection to the plan for "a compensated dollar," recently discussed before the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce, the practical difficulty of getting an international agreement to adopt the plan. He also seems to be under the impression that the plan would not work unless every single Government in the world adopted it.

I quite agree that there are great, perhaps insuperable, obstacles in the way of getting the nations of the world to agree on this or any other plan for monetary reform. The instances which Mr. White cites are quite to the point. Nevertheless, I firmly believe that the time must ultimately come when the business world will see that a monetary unit stable in purchasing power is a necessity of civilization. Without it every monetary relation involving time, especially long time, contracts, is thrown into confusion.

I believe, however, that it will be no more desirable, and perhaps less difficult, to get a few nations to agree on some method of stabilizing purchasing power than to induce one particular nation to do so. Moreover, the plan would work even if only a few nations, or even only one, should adopt it.

If the United States alone should adopt such a plan it would simply divorce our currency from that of the rest of the world, as it was divorced during the civil war, except that the relative positions of this country and others would be the reverse of what they were then. Instead of our having an inflated and uncertain currency as compared with foreign countries, it would be the foreign countries that would suffer from inflation and uncertainty.

The only drawback to the United States would be the disturbance of our international exchanges with other countries. Our foreign trade would suffer embarrassment, while our internal commerce, which is more than one hundred times as important, would be put on a stable basis. The mint price of gold in England might remain £3 17s 10d per ounce, while our mint price sank from $18.60 per ounce to a lower figure, perhaps $15 or $14, or whatever it might be from time to time. And correspondingly there would, of course, be a change in foreign exchange. The present par of $4.87 for a pound sterling would go down in proportion to the fall in our mint price. This being the case, the fact that the mint price in America was reduced while that in other lands was unchanged would not permanently divert gold coinage to other countries.

Evidently the first effect of a lower mint price would have been to discourage minting gold in America. Instead, American holders of bullion would ship it to the London mint, (and other foreign mints not employing the adjustable seigniorage system,) where the mint price would be as high as ever, and with the proceeds so obtained buy exchange on New York. They would secure more American money by this circuitous process than by direct selling to American mints, but the resulting contraction of the American currency (or rather the arrest of its expansion) due to the diversion of gold abroad, would keep down American prices as compared with what they would otherwise be. This fact would discourage imports into the United States and encourage exports and affect sterling exchange so that the value of a pound sterling would gradually sink in American money and the value of a dollar in English shillings would rise in exact proportion to the greater weight of our dollar. When our dollar became sufficiently dear in English money there would be no further profit in taking gold to the London mint rather than the American mint. IRVING FISHER.

DINNER TO BLIND WORKMEN.

Miss Bourne Entertains Employes of Shop She Donated.

A dinner to the blind workmen in the new Bourne workshop, in East Thirty-fifth Street, which was dedicated and presented to the New York Association for the Blind on Wednesday, by Miss Emily Howland Bourne, was given by Miss Bourne in the lunchroom of the building last night. One hundred guests were present. Fifty workmen are now employed in the building, and each man was asked to invite a seeing friend as his escort. The men for the most part brought their wives or relatives. Miss Winifred Holt, head of the association, was a guest with three men blind themselves who are also workers for the blind.

These were: Eben P. Morford, President of the American Association Workers for the Blind; W. I. Scandin, President of the Brooklyn Blind Man's Club, and the civil war veteran, Gen. Jones of Binghamton, who is at the head of the most prosperous of the six branches of the New York Association. Gen. Jones, large, rugged in appearance, with white hair, is an ex-Lieutenant Governor of New York. With him the once-familiar phrase, "And Jones he pays the freight," originated.

TRY OUT NEW DANCES.

Forty Settlement Workers Practice the Four-Step and Fascination Waltz.

Forty settlement workers, including two young men and one young colored woman, toko their first lesson yesterday at Oscar Duryea's Dancing Academy in Seventy-second Street in the new fancy dances that are to supplant the demoralizing turkey trot, bunny hug, and grizzly bear among the big and little people who come within the settlements' range of influence.

The four-step and the fascination waltz were the two dances taught yesterday. The aviation glide will be taken up next time, with a rehearsal of the first dances, and the tangle two-step will come later in the five lessons in which the settlement workers will complete their education in the jolly new steps. Dancing is not an unimportant part of settlement work, for the workers are well up in the principles, and they picked up the novelties with little difficulty.

The four-step is danced to any two-step music in two-four or six-eight time. It has three slides and a step one way, three slides and a step in the other, and then four times around.

MURAL PAINTING FOR HOME.

H. A. Jacobs Gives Big Work to Sheltering Guardian Society.

In the new administration building of the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society, at Pleasantville, N. Y., there will be placed a large mural painting by A. J. Bogdanove, a young Russian-American artist.

The painting has been presented by Harry Allan Jacobs, the architect, of 322 Fifth Avenue. It is sixteen feet in length, and very nearly five feet high, and represents, in allegorical figures, the Technical Arts, Shelter, and the Domestic Arts conjoined in a manner to suggest the purpose of the society. Bogdanove, who is only 25 years old, is a student of the National Academy of Design, where he won several first prizes.

GIORGIO POLACCO ARRIVES.

New Italian Conductor for Metropolitan Was Educated in Russia.

Giorgio Polacco, the new Italian conductor of the Metropolitan Opera House, arrived yesterday on the Taormina. For a time he will conduct most of the Italian works at this theatre, as Mr. Toscanini will not be here at the beginning of the season. Later he will share the répertoire with the other conductors.

Mr. Polacco has visited this country before. Seven years ago he conducted at the Tivoli Theatre in San Francisco. It was he, in fact, that induced Luisa Tetrazzini to cross the border into this country, and she was a member of the Tivoli company when he was there. Last season he was the principal conductor of Mr. Savage's English production of "The Girl of the Golden West."

"Mr. Puccini wanted me to come as his representative," said Mr. Polacco yesterday. My musical education was gained in Russia, and I was brought up among the great Russian musicians, Rimsky-Korsakoff and Tschaikowsky. They are a sad people, the Russians; therefore their art is great. They are very musical. It is only through sorrow and suffering that art is born, I think. Look at Michael Angelo, Leonardo da Vinci, Beethoven, and Wagner. Of course, there is the case of Rossini, a light-hearted genius. His music may be pretty, but it never moves me. There is not one word to the heart in all his works, so far as I am concerned."

"How about the 'Stabat Mater?'"

"It might have been written for dance music. It is cheap and theatrical. No, I do not admire Rossini, with the exception of 'Il Barbiere,' and that does not touch my heart."

"Have you other preferences in music?"

"I am passionately fond of Dukas and Debussy, whose 'Pelléas' I have conducted. They represent one of the most broadening movements in modern art."

"Ah, any modern Italian conductor can, because all Italians are brought up on Wagner milk nowadays. They suck it in the cradle."

"What will you conduct here?"

"That depends on what Mr. Gatti-Casazza asks me to do. I have been asked to direct the first performance of 'Parsifal' at Barcelona next Spring, and that I may do. When the copyright expires 'Parsifal' is first to be sung at Monte Carlo, but that performance will be private. The Barcelona performance follows. It is a great honor for an Italian to be chosen."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Joseph M. Gaites will present "The Fight," a new play by Bayard Veiller, at the Fulton Theatre on Oct. 30.

"What Ails You?" is the title selected for the new farce by Rupert Hughes that Henry W Savage is to produce next month. The cast will include Shelly Hall, Marguerite Skirvin, Robert Fisher, Desmond Kelly, Bobby Barry, Roxane Lansing, Sidney Greenstreet, Dorothy Walters, and Alonzo Price.

Tim Murphy has been engaged by Richard Bennett for a leading role in the production of Margaret Turnbull's new play, "The Stronger Claim."

Charles Frohman has decided that the first performance of Julia Sanderson in "The Sunshine Girl" will be at the Forrest Theatre, Philadelphia, on Jan. 17.

Jules Eckert Goodman's new play, "The Point of View," will be shown for the first time in New York at four matinees at William A. Brady's Forty-eighth Street Theatre, on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Oct. 28, 29, and 30, and on Friday, Nov. 1. Later the piece will be put on at another theatre not under Mr. Brady's management. The cast will include William Morris, Howard Estabrook, George Pauncefort, Emily Stevens, Lucile Watson, Madge Kennedy, Grace Griswold, May Malloy, and Helen Campbell.

Helen Ware's first appearance in Elmer Harris's new play, "Trial Marriage," will take place at the Academy of Music, Baltimore, next Monday evening. After a week in that city Miss Ware will come to New York, opening at the Hudson Theatre on Oct. 29.

The Knickerbocker Theatre was filled last night with members of the National Machine Tool Business Association, who are now in convention in New York. The entire theatre was taken for the occasion, and every seat was occupied. The members were the guests of The American Machinist, represented by John A. Hill and Mason Britton.

The headquarters of the Actors' Fund of America, now in the Gaiety Theatre Building, will be moved about Nov. 1 to the new Longacre Building at Forty-second Street and Broadway. The new quarters will be more commodious than the old, and will permit the establishment of a reception room and reading room for the members, as well as offices for the clerical force.

SENATOR HEYBURN DIES, AFTER MESSAGE

Tells His Brother That He Has Had a Great Revelation of Future Life.

"WORN OUT IN GREAT CAUSE"

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Weldon Brinton Heyburn, United States Senator from Idaho, died at his apartments in the Wyoming House here to-night. He had been ill from heart disease ever since the adjournment of Congress, having overtaxed his strength in an all-night effort to prevent the adoption of the resolution under which a Senate committee is now investigating campaign funds. Senator Heyburn believed this inquiry unnecessary, and would result in no benefit.

Senator Heyburn retained consciousness almost to the moment of his death. Half an hour before he passed away he gave a message to his brother, Elwood Heyburn, who repeated it afterward in these words:

"Elwood, I have had a great revelation. I understand it all now. The man who stands up and tells you and me that the things we believe concerning the present and future life are not true is a fool. My father and yours, Elwood, took us by the hand and taught us these things. Standing on the threshold of eternity, he taught us concerning the life that now is and that which is to come, and we shall not be deceived. There can be no mistake. When a man stands up and addresses his God he knows what he is talking about."

A little later Senator Heyburn delivered these last words:

"I have lived my life as best I could within human limitations. I am worn out in the service of a great cause."

Weldon Brinton Heyburn, who was criticised during his term in the Senate as bitterly, probably, as any other Senator who sat there, was born in Delaware County, Penn., May 23, 1852. His father's family came over from Northumberland, England, and settled in that county in 1660, and his mother's ancestors accompanied William Penn from Kent, England. He received an academic education and was admitted to the bar shortly after reaching his majority, and practiced law ever since. At 19 years of age he went to Idaho and settled at Wallace, Shoshone County.

Senator Heyburn was a Stalwart Republican all his life, and was a candidate for Congress in 1898, and was defeated. He was elected Senator in 1902, and served continuously until his death. Senator Heyburn was a prodigious worker, and was as responsible as much as any one man for the passage of the Pure Food bill through the Senate. The Senator was uncompromising in his hatred for anything connected with the Confederacy. Several times in the Senate he opposed measures because of their connection with the civil war. In 1910 he voted against the bill providing for the loan of tents, saddles and bridles by the War Department to the Confederate Veterans at the annual reunion in Mobile. His was the only vote against the bill, and his collegues rebuked him by refusing to answer his arguments.

On another occasion Senator Heyburn was bitterly assailed and laughed at because he tried hard to have the bronze statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee removed from Statuary Hall. The Senator gave as his reason that it would open the way for a figure of Benedict Arnold if the people of Connecticut chose to present him as one of the sons of the State to be honored.

The Senator assailed the action of Gen. Lee in taking the oath of allegiance to the Confederacy at the time he was an officer in the regular army. He said that but for this and similar acts of army officers who joined the Confederacy the civil war would not have lasted more than a month. He made the point that Virginia had no part in passing the law creating Statuary Hall and declared that at that very time that State was trying to disrupt the Union.

Last year the Senator created a sensation at a reception given to Congressman T. R. Hamer at Wallace, Idaho, by stopping the orchestra while the musicians were playing "Dixie." He explained that it was a Republican meeting, and he "wanted no such tunes."

In May, 1912, Senator Heyburn stood alone in opposition to the bill revising the metal schdule of the tariff. The Democrats and Republicans were willing, but the Senator from Idaho stood firm in his opposition.

The Senator has clashed many times with the representatives of the press in the Senate. Once he called them "the joke sifters in the gallery." He was particularly severe on irreverent spectators in the galleries. The Senator was one of the hardest fighters in the Senate for bills in which he was interested, and he was the only member of the Senate who was Chairman of two big committees, Manufacturers' and Revision of the Laws of the United States.

CAPT. WM. H. HODGINS DIES.

"Big Bill" Was Retired by Bingham as "Too Fat," and Reinstated.

Police Captain William H. Hodgins, commander of the Bronx Park station, and known to his friends as "Big Bill" Hodgins, died last night at his home, 165 Tremont Avenue, the Bronx. At his bedside were his wife, two daughters, and three sons. Capt. Hodgins was appointed a policeman in 1888, and it was in 1907 that he was retired by Commissioner Bingham on the ground that he was "too fat," after an examination, in which he was made to run forty times around a table. For two years "Big Bill" fought to get back upon the force, and in April, 1910, he was ordered reinstated by Supreme Court Justice Marean of Brooklyn.

After his reinstatement he was sent to the Elizabeth Street station, and before him the warring tongs signed a peace pact. Capt. Hodgins sued Commissioner Bingham for $100,000 because his application for an Inspectorship was indorsed: "His record poor. He has not the qualifications to command; stupid."

Capt. Hodgins was born in Ireland in 1856, and left there in 1877 because of his activities as a Fenian. He is credited with having broken up the Monk Eastman and the Humpty Jackson gangs. He was the Captain of the Tenderloin station when Harry K. Thaw shot Stanford White.

Miss Leary Falsely Reported Ill.

Friends of Miss Annie Leary were very much perturbed over a report publish yesterday in a society weekly that she was lying at the point of death at her home, 1,032 Fifth Avenue, and for the greater part of the day Miss Leary was engaged in assuring anxious callers and inquirers over the telephone that she never felt better in her life. For her many benefactions to the Roman Catholic Church, Miss Leary was made a countess by Pope Leo XIII. She is always engaged in charitable work, and this week is planning a bazaar in aid of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament.

MAX SPICKER'S FUNERAL.

Temple Emanu-El Crowded with Music Lovers.

Music lovers crowded the Temple Emanu-El, Forty-third Street and Fifth Avenue, yesterday morning at the funeral services of Max Spicker, one of the foremost composers of religious music in America. In his funeral address Dr. Joseph Silverman said that Mr. Spicker's best work had been his synagogal music, and that his compositions, rendered under his supervision in the Temple Emanu-El, had made it renowned throughout the country.

The services began with a largo on the organ by William McFarlane, former organist of Temple Emanu-El, who came from Portland, Me., to attend the funeral. Prayer by Dr. H. G. Enelow followed. The choir then rendered the anthem "Why Art Thou Cast Down, My Soul?" a composition of Mr. Spicker's. A solo, "O Lord, What Is Man?" was rendered by S. Schlager, followed by the closing anthem, "O Rest in the Lord."

BOSTON HONORS RED SOX AS CHAMPIONS

Mayor Fitzgerald Greets Ball Players at Faneuil Hall Reception.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 17.—Boston fans turned out to-day to cheer the world's champion Red Sox and to witness their parade from Fenway Park to Faneuil Hall. The streets echoed with cheers, and the ancient chambers of Boston's historic library trembled under the stamping of the wildly enthusiastic fans.

The Boston players trooped to the grounds early this morning to receive individual checks for $4,028, the amount each player earned by taking the big end of the world's series prize money, each man also receiving an extra day's salary to-day from the Sox management because the final game of the series was played a day after the regular contracts for 1911 expired.

The management, however, decided that $89,000 was too much real money for the boys to carry in their pockets during a parade and so decided to pay the players off to-morrow morning. At the grounds the players found piles of telegrams awaiting them. There were congratulations, chances for business positions, and offers to place the boys "right" on the stage.

Mayor Fitzgerald, clad in his great coat in which he romped so joyously about the Polo Grounds ten days ago, was at the ball grounds early to congratulate the team. He went to the players' room, where there was a general handshaking, and then the Mayor and all others went outside while Jake Stahl told his fellow-players what he thought of them and bade them his official farewell.

Every one had a good word for Mathewson, who pitched such wonderful ball yesterday and whose masterly effort went to waste because of Snodgrass's muff and the mixup between Merkle and Meyers on Speaker's foul fly in the tenth inning.

The Giant's pitcher is receiving every credit, and the Boston fans realize that the Red Sox were very lucky to get away with the final game.

When the parade reached Faneuil Hall the crush of people was tremendous. The players scrambled out of their automobiles and finally pushed their way into Boston's most historic landmark. Mayor Fitzgerald and Speaker Walker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives spoke to the players. The Mayor did not forget the Giants either. He said:

"We want to say a word of praise for Christy Mathewson and the New York team. Any man that can give our team such a run must be next to the best in the world. I am going to write to "Mugsy" McGraw—I believe that is what he is called—and tell him so.

"I also want to say that the Boston team should have recognition from the city, and I promise that a fine silver cup be given to the player. Another thing I want to say is that the players are entitled to their share of that fifth game, which is morally theirs."

The Mayor pleaded for cheaper seats at the ball grounds. He then introduced Jake Stahl, Wagner, Wood, Bedient and other members of the team.

The players had a hard time getting away from the hall, as every one wanted to shake hands with them.

GIANTS BLAME NO ONE.

Take Defeat Philosophically and Receive Checks for $2,459.54 Each.

Players of the New York Giants had an extra pay day yesterday, when their share of the world's series receipts was divided. The smile that beamed on each player's face as he received his check was about half as broad as the players had figured when Merkle drove Red Murray home in the first half of the tenth inning at Boston on Wednesday, but it was broad, nevertheless. Even a loser's share is large when compared to what the players on seven other teams draw down after their own season closes.

The Giants' share of the purse was $59,028.96, or 40 per cent. of the $140,571.70, the players' share for the first four games. According to the ruling of the National Commission, only twenty-three New York players were eligible to take part in the games, but, as usually happens, more players share in the players' money. In the Giants' case an extra share was added, to be divided among the trainer, extra players, and others who have figured in making the season a success.

Coming down from Boston after Wednesday's game Secretary John E. Bruce of the National Commission gave Manager John McGraw a check for the full amount, and this was deposited in a local bank by the New York manager, who then issued personal checks to the players. This is the same system that was followed last season. Each share amounted to $2,459.54, about the same amount that each New York player received a year ago after losing the series to the Athletics.

There is no tendency among the players to put the loss of the series directly up to Snodgrass for his palpable error or to Merkle for his failure to catch Speaker's pop foul in the tenth inning at Boston Wednesday. All agree that a catch of either ball would have averted defeat, and all the players naturally feel chagrined that victory and an additional $80,000 should be tossed away as that game was lost, but they view the matter philosophically. The fact that neither team played very good ball during the series is pretty generally understood by the players, and as Manager McGraw has pointed out, there are at least a dozen mistakes no worse than those of Snodgrass and Merkle, which can be said to have affected the games to a considerable extent. The players making the final errors stand out more prominently than those who committed the earlier misplays, but it is not just that the last ones should get all the blame for what others helped to do.

The umpires who took part in the series—Evans and O'Loughlin from the American League and Klem and Rigler from the National League—also received their checks from the National Commission yesterday. And it was the happiest quartet of umpires ever bunched together when they filed out of the commission's rooms at the Waldorf-Astoria. When they were chosen for the series it was understood that each would receive $750 for his work, the same as has been paid to the umpires in previous series. When they appeared before the commission yesterday each umpire was handed a check calling for $1,000.

And that was not all. They were complimented as a body and individually for their fine umpiring throughout the series. At the close of the complimentary remarks from the commission Umpire Silk O'Loughlin, acting as spokesman for the officials, extended thanks for the liberality and praise. From the viewpoint of good umpiring the series just closed has proved the best in the history of these post-season games. Not a complaint of any magnitude was made by manager or player of either team and not a fine was assessed, despite the fact that the series extended much longer this year than usual, the games were very close, and more was at stake for the players than ever before. All these points were mentioned yesterday in the high compliments paid to the umpires.

Several of the players lost no time in leaving New York for their respective homes to spend the Winter and in a few days only a few of the players will remain. Herzog, Crandall, Fletcher and Becker were the first to leave, all four departing for their homes yesterday afternoon or last night. Herzog will spend the Winter at his Maryland home, Crandall goes to his home in Indiana, Fletcher to Illinois, and Becker to the Far West. Larry Doyle, Wilson, and Jeff Tesreau will leave in the next few days for short visits to their respective homes, but will return to New York next month and become members of the team which Umpire Charley Rigler is getting together for an invasion of Cuba. Last year most of the Giants played ball during the Winter, but this year only five will play. Snodgrass and Chief Meyers will get busy again as soon as they reach their Southern California homes. Both play on the same team which is managed by Snodgrass.

The 1912 squad furnishes two notable additions to the theatrical profession in the persons of Manager McGraw and Rube Marquard. Rube will be serving his second year behind the footlights and expects to "knock 'em off the benches" much better than last year. Mathewson received some vaudeville offers, and had he been fortunate in the final game of the series he could have named his own price for the engagement, but he tired of the work two years ago in his sketch with Chief Meyers, and he has bade farewell to the stage. He expects to leave New York in a few days for a hunting trip in Mexico. Red Murray and Wiltse have also arranged for hunting expeditions, but they will go after smaller game, devoting their activities to the northern part of New York State, where both reside.

Merkle will leave before the close of the week for his home in Toledo, and Devore will go to the old homestead at Terre Haute. Josh will be the baseball headliner in that city in the future, as Three-Fingered Brown is out of the major leagues. Shafer will return to California, Hartley will Winter at Osgood, Ind., and Robinson will return to his Baltimore hotel.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 17.—Jake Stahl, manager of the Boston World's Champions, may don football clothes in a few days if he listens to an appeal from the University of Illinois, where ten years ago this Fall he was captain of the eleven. Stahl has returned every year since to assist in whipping the team into shape for the homecoming game, and it is hoped that he can do so this year. The game will be played on Nov. 16 with Chicago. Stahl was asked yesterday to spend the week previous to the game here. The victory of the Red Sox over the New York Nationals was celebrated wildly by the students here.

FOGEL TRIAL ON NOV. 26.

Philadelphia Club President's Charges to be Heard by National League.

At a special meeting of the National League of Professional Base Ball Clubs at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday afternoon President Thomas J. Lynch demanded an investigation of remarks purported to have been made by Horace Fogel, President of the Philadelphia Club, impugning the integrity of himself and the umpires in games played with the Giants, and declared that either himself or Mr. Fogel should be expelled from the league.

Secretary John A. Heydler was instructed to formulate charges against Mr. Fogel on the statements made by President Lynch and to serve them on Mr. Fogel within five days. Mr. Fogel was instructed to make written reply to these charges within five days from the time of their service upon him and formal trial will be held in this city on Tuesday, Nov. 26.

Other charges against Mr. Fogel were made yesterday by William F. Brennan, one of the league umpires, and these will go along with the Lynch charges. Both President Lynch and Mr. Fogel were present at yesterday's meeting, and Umpires William F. Brennan, Charles Rigler, William Klem and Al Orth were at the hotel, but were not called in to the meeting.

The New York Club was represented by John Whalen and C. L. Sullivan; Brooklyn by President Charles H. Ebbets, who also held the proxy of Charles W. Murphy, of Chicago; Cincinnati, by President August Herrmann, who held the proxy of Barney Dreyfus, of Pittsburgh; Boston, by J. E. Gaffney; St. Louis, by L. O. Hocken, and Philadelphia by Mr. Fogel.

MATTICK CLEARS BASES.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—"Chick" Mattick of the Chicago American League team to-day kept his club in the running for the city championship by driving out a triple with the bases full in the ninth inning. When he scored a moment later on an out he brought defeat to the local National Leaguers by a score of 8 to 5. Each team has now won three games.

The spectacular finish was in keeping with the rest of the game. Zimmerman's hitting was responsible for four of the Cubs' tallies. His sacrifice fly scored Miller in the first inning, his home run brought Tinker and himself home in the fourth, and his double came in the eighth after Miller's triple had sent Goode home.

For the Sox, a wild pitch, followed by Schalk's single, sent Borton across the plate in the second inning. Then in the sixth Collins and Weaver were infected by Zimmerman's habits, and each hit a home run, Borton having doubled between these exploits. The ninth inning started with the Cubs leading, but Richie was wild, and two passes and a hit filled the bases. Lavender went in cold, and Mattick's hit followed. The score:

Interchurch Baseball Banquet.

The annual banquet of the Interchurch Baseball League of Greater New York will be held this evening at Lorber's, at Broadway and Thirty-ninth Street. Dr. John B. Buehler, President of the league, will serve as toastmaster, and the speakers' list will include Christy Mathewson and John J. McGraw. The Rev. Dr. George Egbert of the First Congregational Church of Flushing, will refer to the value of baseball in religion in the course of an address while Vechter Waring, who has followed the game for twenty-five years in New York, will speak on "The Recollections of an Old Fan." The Captains of the various teams of the league will also each have a word to say. These teams have played 100 games during the last Summer, including the league's championship series with the Brooklyn Sunday School League, which finally resulted in a draw.

Snodgrass's Error Makes Mother Ill.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—Overcome by emotion when the electrical score board at a local theatre yesterday showed Fred Snodgrass's muff of the fly which cost the New York Giants the world's championship title, Mrs. Snodgrass, mother of the New York outfielder, fainted. Mrs. Snodgrass is an ardent "fan."

Middies Aiming for Army Game Only.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 17.—With the two hardest games of the local season against Swarthmore and Pittsburgh University, the next in order for the Naval Academy, the coaches have declined to allow the squad to depart from its general methods of preparation for the final game against the Army, and have not devoted special attention to any eleven men during the week in order to win if possible. It is generally conceded that the Midshipmen are booked to lose to Swarthmore on Saturday, probably by a larger score than they lost to Lehigh last week. There was nothing in to-day's practice which indicated any notable improvement in the Navy team. Most of the time was devoted to the defense, and the regulars played a good half hour against the scrubs and then lined up against the team of the second class for another quarter of an hour. The work was spirited, but not finished by any means, and both teams made telling gains against the main eleven. Some of the veterans appear to be just a little too sure of their places, and the coaches devoted lots of attention this afternoon to some promising youngsters, among them Emerson and Kennedy at the tackles, and Harrison and Woodward at guards. Among the backs who did good work were Alexander, Nicholls, Bates, and Collins.

Hobart Drill for Rutgers Game.

GENEVA, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Hobart held its last scrimmage before the Rutgers game today, all of the 'Varsity men who will play on Saturday being in the line-up. The 'Varsity had little trouble in scoring on the scrubs, who were playing with fourteen men in the line-up, and made two touchdowns. The changes in the line-up seems to have caused an improvement and increased the team average several points. Many Hobart men have signified their intention of going to New Brunswick to see the game.

Clinton to Play Erasmus To-morrow.

At Lenox Oval, 145th Street and Lenox Avenue, to-morrow afternoon, the first big football game in the scholastic championship series of Greater New York will be between those old rivals, Erasmus Hall High School of Brooklyn and De Witt Clinton of this city. In the game between the two elevens last season the Flatbush boys came out victorious, but the Clinton lads finally won the championship of Greater New York by beating Commerce High. The game was originally scheduled for American League Park, but as a change was necessary it was decided to play at Lenox Oval, where one of the best gridirons in the city has been laid out. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

HARVARD FOOTBALL MEN DRIVEN HARD

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 17.—Seldom at mid-season have the Harvard coaches driven their football players so hard as they did this afternoon. Not a specially hard game is anticipated by Harvard when Amherst comes on Saturday, and the men were played to their limit today. There were two scrimmages. Percy Haughton first separated his 'Varsity regulars into two teams, the players being allotted as if two sides for a scrub game of baseball were being chosen. Capt. Wendell and Brickley played together on one team and Hardwick and Bradlee on the other.

There was a general intermixture of the linemen for the first time this year. The players who have been competing for the places on the 'Varsity had a chance to do things to each other. Capt. Wendell's team was beaten, 9 to 0, and the victors claimed the distinction of being known as Team A. This team scored points on a drop kick goal from the thirty-yard line by Hollister and from a touchdown that Bradlee secured on a long run.

The 'Varsity squad looked better to-day when it went into play with the freshmen, who were on their toes and gave the 'Varsity all it could do. O'Brien returned to play in his old place at right end, and Trumbull, of whom the coaches think so much for guard, was in the game with McGuire. Storer did not get into the scrimmage, and the work of Clearly at tackle was watched closely. Against the freshmen the 'Varsity scored twice. Once a fumble by the youngsters made it possible for the 'Varsity to get the ball on its twenty-yard line, and after three plays had been stopped Brickley made a drop kick field goal.

The touchdown that soon followed came on some mighty good hard football on the part of the regulars. They carried the ball steadily from midfield to the freshmen's 15-yard line, from where Wendell scored on one of his powerful rushes through the line. At the close of the scrimmage the 'Varsity was all in, for it was tired when it began to play the freshmen. Twice the freshmen had the ball on the 'Varsity's 5-yard line. Once the ball was fumbled and Felton made a tackle for a 10-yard loss, and later Mahan's try for a field goal was blocked. Several of the players took the limit of time to get their breath, but the only 'Varsity man who was hurt was H. Hardwick, who received a bruise on the thigh that may keep him out of Saturday's game with Amherst.

FORDHAM CAPTAIN BARRED.

Hinchliffe and Mulvey Disqualified for Failures in Examinations.

Capt. Hinchliffe of the Fordham University football team has been disqualified by the Faculty from further playing with the 'Varsity eleven. The Maroon Captain was declared ineligible because of his failure to pass a conditioned examination. It was also announced that Mulvey, the centre rush on the first team, would be prevented from taking part in to-morrow's game for the same reason.

Fordham's Faculty has let it be known that studies can never be considered as secondary in importance to football, and to date has prevented many of the Maroon's best men from reporting for football, besides those mentioned, Al Williams and Hamburger, being among its victims. This news and the fact that Vic McCarthy, the 'Varsity full back, was taken sick, cast a deep gloom over the Bronx collegians.

Head Coach Tom Thorpe was plainly worried when told that the eleven must face the strong Rhode Island State team to-morrow without the valuable services of its Captain. He is confident, however, that Fordham will add another victory to its already long list, and bases this confidence on the steady development of the squad, making it possible to replace the regulars with reliable men, and the fact that Sarrubbi is now in excellent condition to play.

CORNELL PROSPECTS POOR.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Cornell finished her hard football practice for the week to-day, and the team is as well prepared for the hard game expected with Penn. State as it ever will be. The best 'Varsity team that Coach Sharpe could get together considering the injuries was slammed through a hard scrimmage with the scrubs for a few minutes, the coaches paying special attention to the defense. It was grudgingly admitted by them that the team stood up under the grueling better to-day than it did yesterday when the freshmen at times played all around the big fellows.

With the exception of Capt. Butler, Underhill, Shuler, and perhaps Jess Whyte, all of the promising 'Varsity men engaged in a brief workout in the scrimmage to-day. Butler won't be able to play at all as he is still limping around with a cane, though earlier in the Fall the physicians felt confident that he would be able to play against Penn. State. Little Taber, the short but speedy sophomore who has been showing up strong at quarter back all season, directed the 'Varsity to-day, and will hold down the job against the team from Penn. O'Connor and Fritz, considered the first string half backs, showed up in good shape, and appear to be at least in fair physical condition.

R. B. Whyte got into the fray for a short time at right half, and Miller, who is the best plunging full back of the outfit, played that position. The line didn't vary much from other days. Eyrich, O'Hearne, and Nash were the ends, and Lahr and Davidson played tackles, Munns being laid off at left because of a slight hurt. Champaign, McCutcheon, and Larrow constituted the central trio.

CARLISLE, Penn., Oct. 17.—The Carlisle Indians to-day put in their last afternoon's work before the University of Pittsburgh game, in the Smoky City on Saturday. Coach Warner did not scrimmage his men as he had expected to, but gave them a thorough round of rudiments. Falling on the ball, tackling, punting, and running down under kicks took up the early part of the period. The drilling of the men through their new signals was complete and covered a large number of plays. Coach Warner has been apprised of the fact that Pittsburgh will make a strong showing, and is not allowing any detail that will improve Carlisle's team work to pass his attention. It is likely that Saturday's line-up for the braves will be much or identically the same as that against Syracuse. None of the redskins are crippled. The Indian line has been stiffened considerably by individual instruction directed at the men by Warner and the assistant coach, Lone Star.

N. Y. U. Plays Schoolboys.

Yesterday New York University lined up against Mount Vernon High School. The local collegians proved too good for their less experienced opponents and scored at will. After an hour of scrimmage Head Coach Olcott and Assistant Coaches Reilley, Henneberger, and Hulsart sent the 'Varsity against the scrubs, who did much better than the Mount Vernon boys. Much joy has been shown by the appearance of the veteran end, Wheeler, who will surely start against Wesleyan on Saturday at Ohio Field.

YALE REGULARS IDLE.

Scrimmage Shows Few of First String Men in Action at New Haven.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 17.—Yale's eleven was let out this afternoon by Head Coach Howe with thirty minutes' scrimmaging, in which most of the regulars were excused. In the half hour's signal rehearsal preceding the actual football, every regular was in his place. "Lefty" Flynn worked throughout, and Head Coach Howe said that Flynn's lameness was fast disappearing, and that the coaches feel hopeful that he will be able to play half of Saturday's battle at West Point. Both Harbison and Cooney were at left guard in the signal work, although Cooney was kept in the position throughout the scrimmaging. This place is the only position in which there is much doubt about the lineup Saturday, although chances slightly favor a return of Cooney to the position.

Coach Howe used four quarterbacks during the afternoon, starting with Tommy Cornell, proceeding to Wheeler, Dyer and Loftus. He said this evening that Cornell will be the probable selection at West Point because of the disappointing development of the quarters. Howe induced George Adee, creator of the Yale system of quarterback play, to come here to-day to try to bring order out of the chaos that exists. The quarterback play was again almost stagnant to-day.

No long gains during the afternoon were made and not a touchdown was scored. For the first ten minutes the scrubs, coached by Harry Vaughan, were driven into the regulars' ranks without making more than one first down. When the 'Varsity were given the ball they failed to make headway before practice closed. Because of the fact that only a substitute backfield was used the situation does not bear directly on the West Point game. Clarence Alcott and "Pa" Corbin joined the visiting coaches.

A squad of thirty-three players will leave here after signal work to-morrow for New York City, to remain before starting for West Point on Saturday morning. Head Coach Howe tonight lamented the muscle bruises that have handicapped the development of the eleven.

COACHES DRIVE TIGERS.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 17.—The Tiger coaches put their charges through another long scrimmage to-day, half of which included a series of exchanges of punts that kept the men racing back and forth over the field at high speed. Capt. Pendleton followed the team with the coaches, as he has done all week, and there is every reason to believe that he will remain in the Syracuse game only a few minutes. Pendleton has been in the first line-up of every football game since his arrival in Tigerland, and it is not likely that his record will be broken during his last season.

Earle Waller moved to full back to-day, his first appearance at this position, but the shift was only due to De Witt's absence. The regulars had a day off and did not show up at the field. This change, with Pendleton's absence, gave Doolittle a place at left half back and the youngster made several consistent gains on outside tackle plays. Waller gained on every try, but was not as sensational as at half back.

The first half hour of scrimmage today was offensive entirely for the 'Varsity and two touchdowns resulted, both of them coming as the result of quarterback runs by Emmons. Stewart Baker, who alternated between quarter back and end in the latter part of the drill, showed good speed in covering kicks. Although Pendleton will probably start the Syracuse game at half back, it is very likely that Baker and Emmons are merely filling in until Pendleton's hand is in good shape again.

Shenk and Ed Trenkman did not appear at the field and W. Swart and Penfield substituted respectively for them at left guard and right tackle. Trenkman is laid up with a sore back and Shenk has an injured hand that has been giving him considerable trouble. Andrews and Wight had the call at the wings to-day, but Wight was later succeeded by Fred Trenkman, who has had little work this week. Most of the men have stood up well under the stiff scrimmages of the week, however, and it is probable that the entire first string will be in line on Saturday.

There were nineteen coaches following the 'Varsity this afternoon, the new arrivals including Garry Cochran, Bill Brainard, and Parke H. Davis. Joe Duff, last year's All-American guard, also came over from the freshmen field to give the forwards some tips.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 17.—The Syracuse University football team left tonight for New York, where they will practice to-morrow in preparation for their game on Saturday with Princeton at Princeton.

NEW BOXING CLUB OPENS.

The best bout at the first series of the Forty-fourth Street Boxing Club last night was reserved until the last, which was a substitute go for the supposed star attraction, which was called off because of a crossing of the wires between the management and one of the fighters. Peter Curley of Buffalo and Ed Shevlin of Chicago took the places of those who slipped up, and put up the only real battle of the evening, with the honors going to Curley after ten hard rounds.

Shevlin got in effective work from the seventh round on, and at times had his man on the run, but he was unable to follow up his advantage, and his opponent inclined to hold his own at the end. The beaten man was possessed of a slashing good right, which when he whipped it over stung his ultimate conqueror, but failed to stop him.

The innovation of having the referee outside the ring, after the English fashion, which was put into effect, failed to meet with the approbation of boxers or spectators. The arbiter, Young Corbett, was perched up on a chair just outside the ropes, and seemed to enjoy the show from the most comfortable and conspicuous seat in the place, but he didn't appear to be very useful, as his orders were scarcely heard by the contestants, who went right along and held on and fought until they forced each other off.

The noise created during the progress of the bouts militated against Corbett being heard, and the men, used to being pulled apart when infringing upon the rules, kept at their old tricks until the spectators yelled to such an extent as to make them hear.

Youthful Billiardist Wins.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Welker Cochran, the 13-year-old billiard player from Manson, Iowa, scored his fourth successive victory last night in the Class A 18.2 tournament here, defeating Kent 175 to 94. Cochran averaged 9 13-18 without a cipher and had a high run of 37.

Georgetown Wins Easily.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 17.—Georgetown University football team to-day defeated the Agricultural and Mechanical College team here by the score of 48 to 0.

Mrs. D. C. Arnold Captures Chief Net Prize in Westfield Tournament.

For the last time this season the members of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association visited a New Jersey course yesterday for the purpose of competing in a one-day tournament. About forty of the fair wielders of driver and iron visited Westfield, and the principal winner of the day proved to be Mrs. D. C. Arnold of the home organization, whose card of 91, 9—82 won the chief net prize. Mrs. H. R. Stockton of Plainfield had 88, 5—83, but as her score won the gross prize the second net fell to Mrs. C. J. S. Fraser of Cranford, who had 93, 9—84. The results were unusually close.

As for the special prizes, a special award was put up for the competitor making the greatest number of holes made in strokes under par. Mrs. Fraser was the winner with four such holes. Mrs. Stockton's score of ten in the approaching and putting contest was sufficient to win for her.

There was also a driving competition in which prizes were offered for the woman making the best average and for the best single drive. Mrs. N. P. Rogers of Baltusrol had the best average distance, 152 yards, while the best single effort was Mrs. Arnold's drive of 163 yards—fine distance for a woman. The scores:

ADVERTISERS PLAY GOLF.

Advertising golfers held their fourth tournament of the season over the links of the Knollwood Country Club yesterday, and, as usual, a variety of prizes were offered. The entire day was devoted to golf, there being foursomes both morning and afternoon, but in conjunction with the latter there was also an individual competition, in which E. C. Johnson led Class A with 83, 5—78; E. M. Alexander showed the way in Class B with 87, 8—79, and T. C. Fogel headed the third division with 94, 16—78. Louis A. Hamilton with 77 won the gross prize.

The results in the foursomes were close, the early competition resulting in a tie between D. M. Parker and J. H. Hawley with 72 and J. A. Ford and Hartley Davis with the same total. On the play-off Parker and Hawley were the winners. In the other best ball competition E. E. Calkins and L. M. Williams were the winners with 71.

There were about fifty players to tee up in this tournament, which is the last of the season. Previously this season the Apawamis, Oakland, and Fox Hills links have been visited by the members of the Metropolitan Advertising Golf Association. The foursomes scores follow:

Syracuse Buys Two Cornell Boats.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Cornell has sold to Syracuse University two rowing shells to help the Orange partially rebuild its navy, which was wiped out by a storm several weeks ago. Coaches Ten Eyck of Syracuse and Courtney and Hoyle of Cornell looked over the old shells which the Ithacans had in their possession and the 1906 and 1907 boats, both of which swept Cornell crews to victory at Poughkeepsie, were selected by the Syracuse men. Both of them were in good shape. Cornell builds at least one new shell every year and so has quite a supply in the boathouse.

Burke Best in Roller Race.

Harry Burke of Bridgeport, starting from scratch, easily won the two-mile professional roller-skating race at the Metropolitan Roller Skating Rink last night in 6:19 1-5. J. M. Clark of this city, also starting from scratch, was second, and Harry Yale of Bridgeport, another scratch man, was third.

AUTO ROUTE TO WEST POINT.

Good Macadam Roads for Motorists Driving to the Football Game.

The annual football game between Yale and the military cadets at West Point to-morrow will attract a big crowd, and many will motor to the game from New York. For the benefit of the automobilists who will make the trip the touring department of the Automobile Club of America has issued the following touring directions:

The shortest route furnishing the maximum of good roads and a large percentage of macadam follows: From Columbus Circle by way of Broadway to the 130th Street ferry. Leaving the ferry at Edgewater, the route follows the main road up Fort Lee Hill to Englewood. Follow the trolley line to Tenafly station. Near the foot of the hill is a sharp curve.

At the sign of Demarest-Nyack turn to the right and pass Demarest station. Closter is the next town, sixteen miles from New York. The road then runs through Norwood and Northvale and on to Tappan. In succession, Sparkill, Piedmont, and Grand View are passed, and the road runs direct to Nyack. After crossing the railroad, the tourists will continue on to Congers, Haverstraw, and West Haverstraw station.

A good road runs to Stony Point and Tomkpins Cover. After reaching the bottom of the hill, the route passes the Sutter Clubhouse and on through Jones Point, where there is a dangerous descent, to Fort Montgomery, and thence by the main road to the monument at West Point.

Some rough stretches will be found on this route. Taken as a whole, however, this route will be found very satisfactory.

BRIGHTON BEACH ENTRIES.

Forty-seven Cars Will Start in Several Events To-morrow.

Entries for the automobile race meet to be held at the Brighton Beach track to-morrow closed last night with forty-seven entries nominated on the list. Never has a field of such good drivers been seen at Brighton Beach. Some of the events have ten and twelve cars nominated, and on a mile track this means the warmest sort of competition.

Caleb Bragg, the victor in the Grand Prize race at Milwaukee, will drive an exhibition with his Fiat car, and Ralph K. Mulford, winner of last year's Vanderbilt Cup, will drive an exhibition with the National car which won the 500-mile race at Indianapolis.

Among the drivers and cars entered in competition in addition to the above-mentioned drivers are Spencer E. Wishart, Mercedes and Mercer; Ray Howard, Buick "Bug" and Pope "Hummer"; Mort Roberts, Mason; Harry Endicott, Mason; Neil Whalen, National; Bill Chandler, E. M. F.; Dave Lewis, Stutz; Armour Ferguson, Mercer; P. S. Meland, Mercer and G. J. G.; Steve Casey, Herreshoff; F. E. Wood, Flanders; Gene Hogan, Borgdoll; J. B. Quinlan, Correja; Ernest Meyer, Hupmobile; A. Bincent Cole, and others. The races will start at 2:30 o'clock.

BANTAMS AT GARDEN A. C.

Coulon and Williams Primed for Their Battle To-night.

Everything is in readiness for the boxing bout between Johnny Coulon, the world's bantamweight title holder, and Kid Williams, the Baltimore sensation, in Madison Square Garden to-night. The weight, 116 pounds ringside, is easy for both boys almost at any time, as they are rarely found out of condition.

Coulon appears to be in particularly fine fettle, for, as he admits, Williams is likely to prove the hardest kind of an opponent. Coulon practically finished his hard training in Chicago, as he only reached this city yesterday. According to report, he has been using up his corps of sparring partners in a manner that speaks volumes for his hitting ability. Unlike many first-class boxers, Coulon packs a wallop that has sent scores of bantams to dreamland, and it is because of this combination of skill and strength that his admirers regard him as well-night invincible in his class.

Thus far, with rare exceptions, bantams have failed to make even a creditable showing against the champion. They look alike to Coulon, but then the "champ" has not had a Williams to contend with. On the other hand, Williams has never boxed Coulon. When this little fighting machine from Baltimore cuts loose with his rapid-fire attack he will find himself opposed to one who knows the game from beginning to end, but a defensive battle makes no progress against the Kid, consequently if Coulon expects to emerge from the fray with flying colors he will have to beat the other fellow to the punch.

Two other ten-round bouts of local flavor will be served up by the management of the Garden A. C. In one, Joe Stine and Al McCoy, both of whom claim to be the best 142-pounders in the greater city, will box for the welterweight championship of Greater New York. McCoy, who is clever, is able to point with pride to a long string of victories. In the other contest Young Solzberg and Billy Fitzsimmons, two of the best bantams in these parts, will try for the local title in their class. Both are fast and aggressive.

N. Y. U. Sophs Turn Freshmen.

In a dual track meet held yesterday on Ohio Field the New York University freshmen were beaten by the sophomores by the score of 45 to 36. The 1915 men showed a better-balanced team than did the freshmen. For 1915 Smythe, Many, Ball, and Kohlenberger scored heavily, while 1916 depended on Waugh and Lente, both local high school champions from Stuyvesant High, for most of their points. The summaries:

100-Yard Dash.—Won by W. Smythe, 1915; second, E. Waugh, 1916; third, W. Many, 1915. Time—0:10 3-5.

Irving School Beats Hackley.

The Irving and Hackley Schools of Tarrytown, N. Y., clashed yesterday in the first football game of their season on the Irving grounds, Irving being victorious by a score of 19 to 0. Anderson, at full back, and Bachelor played a star game for Irving, making a number of spectacular runs, while the best work for the defeated eleven was shown by Richardson and Wilson. The teams will play again in two weeks.

Australian Cricketers Here Again.

The victorious Australian cricket team which came over here some weeks since and played with All-New York and others, returned yesterday from Bermuda, where they gave a drubbing in a series of games to the team representing those islands. The last score was 66 to 102 in favor of the visiting team.

HORSES ON FRENCH TURF DISQUALIFIED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—A sensation in racing circles was caused by the report of Prof. Kauffmann to the French Jockey Club to-day wherein three horses, which won recent events, were disqualified on account of doping. Prof. Kauffmann made an analysis of the saliva of several race horses. In a great majority of cases he found no traces of stimulants or drugs; five or six cases were doubtful, while in three cases stimulants undoubtedly were administered. The stewards thereupon decided to disqualify three horses, Mobels, Bonbon, and Rose, and Trainer Tirlot, whose horse won the Coupe d'Or at Maisons Lafitte; Michel Lazards of Hallebard, trainer for Shields, who won the Prix Saint Angela at Letrembay, and Wadworth Rogers of Palo Alto, trainer for W. Flatman, who won the Prix Saint Simon at Aremblay. No decision was made regarding the trainers whose personal responsibility was not proved. It is probable the committee will alter the rules in order to fix the responsibility for future cases.

DIRECTOR JAY FAST.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 17.—The championship stallion stake, pacing division for foals of 1909 and the Kentucky stake for 3-year-old trotters, were the principal races on the programme of the Grand Circuit meeting here to-day.

The stallion stake was a two-horse race between John G. Cecil's colt Ward Dillon and A. J. Clark's colt Director Jay. The former won the first heat, but Director Jay came strong in the second and third heats and proved an easy victor.

The Kentucky stake was taken in straight heats by Princess Todd. The result was never in doubt in either heat.

It was announced that the meeting had been the most successful and most largely attended of any on the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association track and that the management, in recognition of the patronage would throw open the gates to the public to-morrow without charge for admission. COLUMBIA SPORTS DEFICIT.

Twelve of Fifteen Athletic Teams Fail to Pay Expenses.

Twelve of Columbia's fifteen athletic teams faced deficits last year, according to the financial statement of the association, which was announced yesterday. The 'Varsity basket ball, freshman basket ball, and 'Varsity rifle teams were the only organizations that came out on the credit side of the ledger, with a total surplus of $707.54.

The crew ran up a deficit of more than $5,000, while the track team went into the hole to the extent of $1,520. Swimming and water polo lost $536 and soccer $322. The hockey team, which played a championship game all through the season, lost $495, and it cost $476 to bring the fencing team out all square. The total deficit of the teams made up by the association is $8,903.46.

The receipts of the association in the form of membership dues from the alumni, members of the Faculty, and students amounted to more than $7,500. The University appropriated $2,500 and $513.33 was received as interest from the football fund, which was left when football was abolished at Columbia in 1905.

The total disbursements were $13,065.34. The soccer team has a reserve fund of $93.36 and the rowing club has a balance of $44.95. The athletic association has a balance of $310.65.

Huking Billiard Victor.

In last night's game of the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at Keeney's, in Brooklyn, John Huking successfully conceded a five-point handicap to Edward Milkman and won by the score of 35 to 30. Huking had to make thirty-five points, while Milkman was playing at thirty. Both contestants made the high run of three and the game required sixty-five innings. This evening Charles Otis will endeavor to make forty points before Charles Worcester can tally twenty-eight.

WAGE DOLLAR SHOW LATEST IN CAMPAIGN

FREE TRADE IS THE THEME

Now the Republicans are to have a campaign Chamber of Horrors. It will be opened at noon to-day at 41 Union Square, and will be known as "The Wage Dollar Exhibit." It is planned to offset the "Tariff Exhibit" of the Wilson Tariff League, a few doors away, and is being conducted by the Republican National Committee. The principal theme of the Democratic Chamber of Horrors is that a low tariff, or free trade, would reduce the price of many commodities sold in this country. The Republican institution will answer this argument by seeking to show that competition with foreign workmen would mean lower wages and less work. Everything in the new Chamber of Horrors has a direct bearing on this proposition.

Over the front entrance there is a "Wage Dollar" sign. It is an enormous wooden dollar with a generous chink missing, indicating the cut that the Republicans say they are sure would be made in wages under free trade. Then there is a window exhibit with a comparison of wages paid in all countries which is intended to convince the workman that the same low wages will prevail here if the Democrats get into power. In the same window there is a "protection wall against starvation wages." A factory and an American home is seen beyond it and Gov. Wilson, in college President's garb with a book entitled, "My Theories" under one arm and a key labeled "Free Trade" in his hand is making toward a door in the wall. This is the caption:

"The Democratic Party stands for unrestricted foreign competition. Dr. Wilson holds the Free Trade Key. Will you vote to unlock the door?"

It is inside, however, that the big horrors are on view. There is a sawmill scene showing the free trade buzzsaw cutting the tariff, which is a board, and showing that the cutting can be done without spliting the wage dollar in halves. There is a life-sized wax figure of Gov. Wilson at the helm of the Ship of State "bound for nowhere under ful sail." He is guiding the vessel from a log book of theory, and a compass whose only directions are "Disaster Rocks," "Starvation Point," "Radical Reef," and "Panic Shoals." Gov. Wilson's description of the panic days of 1893 and 1897 as culled from his "History of the American People" are emblazoned on the walls.

Then there is a four-room apartment along the lines of the one in the Democratic exhibit. The rooms contain American-made furniture purchased in the open market. A label on each article shows the cost price, the weekly wage of the American worker who produces it, and the weekly wage of the foreigner who makes similar articles. The implication avowedly intended is that the American workman cannot be brought into competition with the foreigner without suffering a reduction in wages.

Col. Roosevelt is not neglected, but he is dealt with in cartoons. Both he and Gov. Wilson are called "The Promising Candidates," and quotations from their speeches are freely used as wall decorations.

"The Wage Dollar" exhibit will be open daily except Sundays from 10 A. M. until 10 P. M. Speakers will discuss the issues of the campaign, and there will be music.

THREE HELD FOR EXTORTION.

Giuseppi Gaspari, veterinary of 2,156 Prospect Avenue; Nicola Brunori, a physician of 585 Morris Avenue, and Giulio Corozzi, another doctor of 333 East 150th Street, were locked up late last night in the Morrisania Police Station charged by Vito Pittaro, a druggist of 590 Morris Avenue, with extortion. The men were arrested in the rear room of Pittaro's drug store, where, it was charged, they had gone to arrange for the payment of money to the Iron Hand Society.

According to Pittaro he had known the prisoners some six years. Early this month, he told the police, he received a Black Hand letter demanding $5,000 under threat of having his three-year-old child kidnapped or his place blown up. On Oct. 6, he said, the three prisoners called upon him, and asked him whether he had received letters signed "The Iron Hand." He said they had, and they confessed that they, too, had received such letters. Soon after their call he received another letter threatening him with death because he had talked too much. Two days after he received that letter, he charged, Dr. Brunori called, and declared that he knew the men of "The Iron Hand," but that they wanted money. The druggist said he could not give $5,000, and there was much discussion as to what sum he could pay.

The next move, he charged, came two days later, when Gaspari delivered to him another threatening letter. This letter, Gaspari explained, had been handed to him just outside the store. After this Pittaro informed the police and arranged with the three prisoners to compromise the case and have the money delivered to "The Iron Hand."

The detectives late last night hid in the cellar of the drug store. When the three men arrived Pittaro handed them $200 in marked bills. In the station house the police said they found the marked money in Gaspari's shoe.

HELD FOR $200,000 THEFT.

HAVANA, Oct. 17.—Francisco Mayos, who had charge of the vaults of the National Bank of Cuba, was arrested to-day by order of Judge Pinero in connection with the investigation into the disappearance of a package containing $200,000. This package was supposed to have been sent on Sept. 27 by registered mail to the National Park Bank of New York.

Mayos was arrested on evidence of the secret police that he was implicated with the bank messenger, Antonio Ayala, also under arrest, and a woman clerk in the vault department, yet at liberty.

The police charge that they substituted for the package containing the money a similar package containing valueless printed matter, addressed to the bank in New York, which they registered in the Havana Post Office.

TECHNICAL MARRIAGE PROOF.

Court Finds Evidence in Woman's Change of Name in Her Church.

The fact that a woman changed her name at the church of which she had been a member from girlhood was the controlling factor yesterday in the decision of Referee John F. O'Ryan in holding that Frank J. Searing was the husband of Sophia Searing, also known as Fulton. The decision, if approved by the Surrogates' Court will give Searing a [illegible]000 estate.

Searing was able to show that he had rented apartments and lived with the woman at various addresses as a respectable married couple, but he had lost proof of the marriage. When the records of the Jane Street Methodist Church were searched, it appeared that she had gone there and had had the name of Searing substituted for her maiden name of Fulton on the church records. During the latter years of her life she separated from Searing and adopted her maiden name.

HEDGES SPEAKS AT COLUMBIA

Before a large audience of Columbia students in Earl Hall yesterday afternoon, Job E. Hedges, Republican candidate for Governor, assailed the State and Presidential candidates of the opposing parties. Mr. Hedges spoke under the auspices of the Columbia Republican Club, but student members of all parties attended. Prof. Thaddeus T. Terry of the Columbia Law School, of which Mr. Hedges is a graduate, introduced the speaker.

Mr. Hedges first took up Gov. Wilson, whose tariff proposals he ridiculed. He said the result of his becoming President would be that at the end of his term there would not be two Democrats on speaking terms. He then expressed his regret at the shooting of Col. Roosevelt. One of the great things accomplished by Mr. Roosevelt in his seven-year incumbency was to make people think constantly of political problems, Mr. Hedges said. He declared, though, that Col. Roosevelt should stop there and not insist upon every one's thinking just as the Colonel wanted him to. In his speech Mr. Hedges said:

"I have a different point of view from my friend, Mr. Straus, who says if he goes to Albany he is going to devote his time to crushing the bosses. And he thinks he would. Now, if I am going to be in Albany, I am not going to devote one single minute of that time to the bosses—I am going to give all my time to being Governor, and if the bosses don't like it they can go in another room and talk it over. It cost us $10,000,000 to get mad two years ago. Elect me and you can save that; it will only cost you $10,000 a year. I have to differ from my friend, Mr. Sulzer. He says that Tammany Hall is the Democracy of the State of New York, that Tammany Hall is the Democratic Party, and that it needs no defense. I do not think it needs defense half as much as it needs bail."

NOTHING TO DO BUT FISH.

Dr. H. A. Lawton of Warren, Ohio, and Miami, Fla., who doesn't have to work, and so has plenty of time for fishing and getting rid of the gout, has arrived at the Hotel Astor from Cleveland. He is making an overland Lake-to-Coast and Gulf fishing excursion, and is doing it "de luxe," as he described it. Dr. Lawton is the man who sent a couple of Englishmen out to fish for tarpon with snuff at Miami about two years ago, and what time he can spare from fishing he spends in thinking up practical jokes to play on unsuspecting visitors to the Florida fishing grounds. When it comes to a fish story, the Doctor can play a tuneful lyre with the rest of them, as he acknowledges, and when he heads north he invariably brings along a tale of a remarkable catch, with complications.

This time he is headed south, and he expects to fish in every stream of size between Baltimore and the Florida line. He is traveling in a new $7,000 automobile of next year's model, in which he made the journey from Cleveland, and besides a supply of bait sufficient for the journey to Miami he has a chef, a chauffeur, a $200 lunch basket, which keeps coffee and a selected menu hot for a couple of days, and contains all sorts of portable tableware. The basket also contains a stove, for emergencies, and on the outside of the car is a case containing fifteen fishing rods of assorted sizes.

"I expect to get to Miami in twenty-one days from now," said Dr. Lawton. "Of course I shall make frequent stops, because I am thinking out the final chapters of a book I am going to write about fishing all over the United States. I have everything on my car except a tent, and I expect to arrange my itinerary so that I shall be within reach of a hotel at night.

"Just made arrangements for a New York firm to fit out my den in my house at Miami. Everything in it will be fish, to match my trophies. I have already named it 'Liars' Paradise,' and I hope to entertain there many of the best fishermen in the country."

WILSON AND THE TRUSTS.

He Couldn't Prosecute Them as Republican Legislature Withheld Power.

United States Senator James A. O'Gorman, acting on authority as spokesman for Gov. Woodrow Wilson replied yesterday to the charge made by Senator Beveridge in his Louisville speech on Wednesday night to the effect that Gov. Wilson was remiss in prosecuting the Standard Oil and the Tobacco Trust as New Jersey Corporations. Gov. Wilson sent a telegram to Senator O'Gorman yesterday in which he authorized him to say that what made such prosecution impossible was the failure of the Republican Legislature of New Jersey to revise the corporation laws of the State.

"Gov. Wilson in his inaugural address and also on three other occasions has demanded that the Legislature of New Jersey revise the corporation laws, in order that he and the proper officials might have the powers of prosecution and dissolution which they now lack," said Senator O'Gorman.

"Senator Beveridge has forgotten that in 1911 the Senate of New Jersey had a Republican majority. The Republican majority of the New Jersey Legislature was so busily trying to destroy Woodrow Wilson's progressive legislation that it had no time to respond to his repeated demands that the corporation laws of New Jersey be made effective to prosecute and dissolve the trusts."

LET STUDENTS VOTE--SULZER

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Congressman William Sulzer, the Democratic nominee for Governor, has indorsed the proposition of Attorney General Carmody that students be permitted to vote. He wires to the Cornell Sun as follows:

"I agree with Attorney General Carmody regarding amendment to our constitution allowing college students to vote under similar arrangements as those prescribed by law for the soldiers of our country. I think the Attorney General has the right solution."

Hard Campaign for Sulzer.

With William Sulzer and Martin H. Glynn, Democratic candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor, on a stumping tour through the Hudson River counties, in the course of which they are to deliver twenty speeches, the Democratic State Committee yesterday made public the plans for a second tour for these candidates, which will begin on Monday, last nine days, and cover practically all the rest of the State. It was said it was the hardest speaking programme ever prepared for a Democratic candidate for Governor.

Columbia Progressive Clubs Unite.

At a meeting held last evening in the Claremont Progressive Club, 550 West 113th Street, the three Progressive clubs at Columbia University combined. Alfred J. Grimm was elected President, John Fitz-Randolph, First Vice President; Miss Freda Kirchwey, daughter of Dean Kirchwey, second Vice President; Charles McCarthy, Secretary, and Harold Weis, Treasurer. The organization will hold street meetings three times a week, beginning on Monday night, when Gifford Pinchot will be the speaker.

ALIENS ON REGISTER.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 17.—It is asserted that there will be allegations in the courts that 3,000 registrations in Hamilton County are invalid, being those of non-residents or non-citizens. The latter charge will relate to about 2,800, who, it is said, have been allowed to vote on first papers or on no papers. A sub-committee of the Democratic Executive Committee makes the charges. The matter was brought to a focus with the filing of petitions in court asking that ten registrations be stricken out.

The report of the committee, of which Attorney Black is Chairman, shows an average of 19 naturalized voters to a precinct, or a total of 12,035 in the twenty-six city precincts. The report further shows that of this total only 3,163, or 26.2 per cent., are recorded as naturalized in Hamilton County; that 2,445, or 20.4 per cent., are not recorded as naturalized, and that 260, or 2.1 per cent., have only taken out first papers and have never been fully naturalized.

YOU MUST REGISTER TO VOTE.

To-day and to-morrow are the last days for registration. If you do not register you cannot vote. Registration from 7 A. M. to 10 P. M.

INDORSE TAFT, BUT NOT STATE TICKET

Republican County Chairmen in Pennsylvania Pledge Support to President.

WOULD OUST SECEDERS

State Chairman Called Upon to Purge Committee of Members Against the President.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—President Taft was indorsed for re-election at a meeting of the Republican County Chairmen of Pennsylvania, held this afternoon, but no mention of the Republican candidates for State Treasurer and Auditor General on the Republican State ticket was made in the resolution adopted.

Another resolution called upon Henry G. Wasson, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, to purge that body of members not supporting the Republican National ticket. If Mr. Wasson was unwilling to reorganize the State Committee, a sub-committee, appointed at to-day's meeting, was authorized to appeal to Chairman Hilles of the Republican National Committee to bring about the desired end.

The Republican State Committee is controlled by those opposed to the leadership of United State Senator Boies Penrose, and it is said that many of them are followers of former State Senator William Flinn, who is supporting Col. Roosevelt for the Presidency on the Washington Party ticket in this State. The candidates for State Treasurer and for Auditor General are also said to be followers of Mr. Flinn.

The County Chairmen were called together by David H. Lane, Chairman of the Republican City Committee of Philadelphia, to start a vigorous campaign in city and State in the interest of Mr. Taft and Mr. Sherman. It was announced that sixty of the sixty-seven Republican County Chairmen in Pennsylvania attended the meeting.

ONE CASE, TWO SURROGATES.

Inquiry Ordered to Establish How Both Decided.

The first thing on the calendar before Surrogate Cohalan this morning is an inquiry into one of the most remarkable episodes in the history of the court. Last Wednesday morning the front page of The Law Journal was covered with a lengthy decision by Surrogate Fowler on the accounting of Charles J. Bauerdorf as executor of the estate of Kilian Heintz, who died May 7, 1892. The decision held that "issue" in Heintz's will meant all descendants and that nephews and nieces should share the same as sisters and brothers.

Later in the day some one called Surrogate Cohalan's attention to the decision. He recollected that he had passed on the acocunting and rendered a decision in August. It was identically the same as the decision made by Surrogate Fowler, though not couched in so many words.

It was not long before the two Surrogates were in communication. Surrogate Fowler issued an order summoning counsel to appear before him. Later in the day he withdrew it and Surrogate Cohalan issued an order for the apearance of counsel before the call of to-day's motion calendar.

If it should appear that there was any desire to override Surrogate Cohalan's decision surreptitiously, or to trifle with Surrogate Fowler, contempt proceedings are likely. The Law Journal mentioned Hugo H. Ritterbusch, Richard H. Bruno, and Leon Lewin as counsel in the case when it printed the second decision, and gave the name of Jacob E. Solomon as special guardian.

An unsuccessful effort was made to learn from the secretaries of the two Surrogates how such a situation could arise without all counsel joining in it and what possible objection victorious counsel could have in a new hearing. Counsel would not discuss the case in advance of to-day's inquiry.

PULMOTOR SAVES HER LIFE.

Two Tanks of Oxyge Used to Resuscitate Gas Victim.

The pulmotor, a machine for stimulating respiration and supplying oxygen to the lungs, now being demonstrated at the Electrical Show in the Grand Central Palace, was used last night to save the life of a woman unconscious from gas.

The patient was Sarah Cangiolasi of 98 East Houston Street. She was found unconscious in her room and taken to Gouverneur Hospital. After working over her for some time Dr. Brunett telephoned to the show for the pulmotor. The machine was in operation an hour and a half, and two tanks of compressed oxygen were used up before the doctors pronounced the woman out of danger.

LIP READING IN COURT.

Witness Answers Questions and Wins Damage Suit.

Lip-reading was employed yesterday in Judge Donnelly's part of the City Court in the trial of the suit of Charles Van Valkenberg Smillie against Gerald Hall Grey for damages to the furnishings of a house rented by the plaintiff to the defendant.

Mrs. Helen Sheldon Smillie, the mother of the plaintiff, is entirely deaf and when on the stand grasped the questions put to her by the attorneys, the court and, in one instance, by a juror, by reading her inquisitors' lips.

As a result, largely, of her descriptions of the damage to the property, the jury returned a verdict for Mrs. Smillie's son. The amount agreed upon was $175.

Andreas Dippel, general manager of the Chicago-Philadelphia Opera Company, announced yesterday that he has engaged Tarquinia Tarquini, the Italian soprano, who "created" the title rôle of "Conchita" in Milan and also in London this Summer, and who has just been performing the work in San Francisco, to sing Zandonai's opera in Chicago, Philadelphia, and New York this Winter. The opera is based upon Pierre Louys's famous romance, "La Femme et le Pantin."

ADMITS ROBBING MORGAN, JR.

Burglar Wh. Got $4,500 in Silver and Cut Glass Pleads Guilty.

John Bernauer of 420 East 135th Street was arraigned before Judge Swann in General Sessions yesterday and pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary in the second degree, and admitted that he had entered the home of J. P. Morgan, Jr., at 231 Madison Avenue on Jan. 26 last and stolen $4,500 worth of silver and cut glass. Bernauer was indicted four times for burglary and grand larceny, the other indictments against him charging that he robbed the homes of Frederick Gallatin, Jr., at 123 East Thirty-ninth Street on Jan. 23; William D. Guthrie, 28 Park Avenue, on Feb. 5, and Dr. Irving S. Balcom's home at 176th Street and Webster Avenue on Aug. 4. The articles stolen by the defendant are said to total about $15,000 worth of silver and jewelry. He will be sentenced next Tuesday.

PAUL RENAUD CONVICTED.

Paul Renaud, who says he is a traveling salesman for a French company, was convicted of unlawful entry before the Justices of Special Sessions yesterday, and remanded to the Tombs until Oct. 24 for sentence.

Renaud was arrested on Monday night on a charge of entering the apartment of Eugene Walter, the playwright, at the Algonquin Hotel. Mrs. Walter, better known as Charlotte Walker, was the principal witness against Renaud. She said that she was awakened by a noise in her room, and saw a man standing by her bed. She said:

"It was terrible, because I had just awakened from a sound sleep. I screamed. Of course, your Honor, every one thought I was crazy, I was so frightened I couldn't see the man's face, only his back, as he turned and fled out of the window and up the fire escape. It isn't a pleasant thing, your Honor, to send a man to prison. It's perfectly terrible."

Eugene Walter was then called, and corroborated his wife's story. Mrs. Donald Brian was also present, but did not testify. Renaud in his own defense said that he had only been in the country three days before he was arrested, and that he had gone out on the fire escape at the Algonquin, where he was a guest, to see what the noise was about. He denied that he had entered Mrs. Walter's rooms.

SENATOR PERCY'S AUTO BACK

A $7,500 touring car owned by State Senator Walker Percy of Birmingham, Ala., which was stolen from in front of the Vanderbilt Hotel nearly three weeks ago, was recovered yesterday morning in a garage at 250 West 54th Street. Fred Goodman, owner of the garage, was arrested, charged with receiving stolen property, but this charge was dismissed by Magistrate Barlow in the Jefferson Market Court for lack of evidence.

Senator Percy, a brother of Senator Leroy C. Percy of Mississippi, with his wife, sister, and brother-in-law, arrived in New York about midnight on Sept. 30. They drove directly to the Vanderbilt Hotel, where the party alighted. The chauffeur and the starter carried the luggage into the hotel, and when the chauffeur returned the automobile was gone.

Senator Percy notified Police Headquarters and employed private detectives. Through THE TIMES he offered a reward of $400 for the return of the car, $150 of which was offered for the conviction of the thief. The machine was a seven-passenger touring car with the initials "W. P." on the side doors. In making his offer of a reward Senator Percy was able to give a minute description by which it was possible to identify the auto. The license number, when stolen, was "Ala—827."

Frank B. Moody, a broker of 55 Wall Street, was made the defendant yesterday in a breach of promise suit brought by Miss Emmy Reich, who demands $100,000 for his alleged failure to make good his agreement.

Miss Reich alleges that Mr. Moody met her in May, 1908, in Berlin, Germany, and promised to marry her immediately upon her arrival in this country. But, the complaint continues, when she came to America expecting to become a bride she found that Mr. Moody was already married and that he had been at the time of his alleged promise to her.

G. G. BAYNE IN COURT.

Contempt Charges Against Seaboard National Bank Head Withdrawn.

Argument as to whether Samuel G. Bayne, President of the Seaboard National Bank, shall be compelled to produce his books and testify in the litigation over the control of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, was heard by Justice Greenbaum in the Supreme Court yesterday. He had before him motions by Samuel Untermyer to that effect, and that Mr. Bayne and his attorney, Herman Aaron, be punished for contempt of court and a motion by Mr. Aaron that the subpoena served on Mr. Bayne be set aside.

Mr. Untermyer was not disposed to press the contempt charges, but Mr. Aaron insisted that he was ready to argue that question, and wanted it settled. Mr. Untermyer then withdrew the contempt charges against both Mr. Aaron and Mr. Bayne.

In support of his own motion Mr. Aaron argued that the Missouri court had erred in holding that testimony as to an alleged conspiracy to continue the oil monopoly in general was germane to the issue in the Waters-Pierce litigation and that its decision was not binding on the New York courts. Justice Greenbaum will announce his decision later.

RUMOR OF A BANK MERGER

When Wall Street heard yesterday that the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company property, an old five-story structure at 50 Wall Street, had been sold to an unnamed buyer, the story was revived which has cropped up from time to time recently that the old Bank of New York, next door, would soon be absorbed by one of the Street's younger institutions, and named the Mechanics' and Metals National Bank.

The Mechanics' and Metals National Bank's needing larger quarters gave color to the rumor that it was the purchaser of the property. This, with the adjoining corner, occupied for a century by the Bank of New York, N. B. A., would make a fine site for a new skyscraper, and it would be the most natural thing in the world for interests having in mind the absorption of the older bank to acquire the adjoining property with an eye to future possibilities.

Officials of the Bank of New York, N. B. A., denied positively that there was any prospect of their institution, one of the oldest in the country, losing its identity. A high officer of the Mechanics' and Metals National Bank said last night his institution had as yet made no definite plans for new quarters. He denied that it had been the purchaser of 50 Wall Street, and said that he had not heard of any prospective absorption of the Bank of New York, N. B. A., by the Mechanics' and Metals National.

PIERRE LOTI SAILS AWAY.

Pierre Loti, the French writer, naval captain, and traveler, left these shores for France yesterday on the Provence, confident that his play, "The Daughter of Heaven," will be a success when it gets into full swing. His last day was spent at the Century Theatre giving advice and seeing that everything was working smoothly.

"New York is a delightful city," he said, "for the vigorous people who love noise and the continuous hum of its streets. For me it is not. I have been treated most courteously everywhere in this country, but I do not think that I shall ever visit America again. I am going to Paris and then to my estates for a few days, and afterward I will sail for Stamboul on the silent Bosporus, where I have leased an old Turkish mansion under the shade of the great tomb of the Sultan Achmet.

"There I can rest under the orange trees in the old-fashioned Moorish courtyard and have nothing to disturb my thoughts save the rippling of the fountain and the singing of my pet Persian bulbuls in their aviary which I had sent to me from Bagdad.

"I should be sorry if the Turks were driven away from Stamboul, because that is now the only haven of rest left for those who are tired of the ever rushing world and wish to be left alone, like myself, to dream of the past."

M. Loti added that he regretted not being able to accept the kind invitation he received from Admiral Osterhaus to visit the flagship Connecticut, but it was owing to pressure of business, he said. The French author also enjoyed his visit to the Washington Irving Girls' High School in Brooklyn, and was pleased and surprised, he said, to find that so many of the pupils could converse with him in French.

Just as it was time for the Provence to pull out twenty Western railroad men arrived in taxicabs from the Grand Central Station, where they had been landed by the Twentieth Century Limited at 9:45 A. M., and the hour for sailing was 10 o'clock. They caught the steamer with their hand baggage, but had to leave their trunks to be sent on by the Chicago, sailing for Havre to-morrow.

STILL FIGHTING CEMETERY.

Injunction the Latest Bar to Invasion of Wheatley Hills.

Wealthy residents of North Hempstead, L. I., especially those of the fashionable Wheatley Hills section, up in arms over the action taken by the Board of Supervisors in having granted permission to the Repose Mausoleum Company of Brooklyn to establish a cemetery on the I. U. Willets farm at Herricks, near Great Neck, applauded yesterday William R. Grace, son of the former Mayor of New York, and Mrs. Janet Grace, wife of Joseph P. Grace, who obtained a temporary injunction from Supreme Court Justice Townsend Scudder against the cemetery corporation and the Board of Supervisors of Nassau County, which restrained them from erecting a mausoleum at Herricks. A hearing will be held before Justice Scudder at Mineola Saturday, when an effort will be made to have the injunction made permanent.

The Board of Supervisors three weeks ago granted to an agent for the Repose Mausoleum Company permission to go ahead with the project. The proposed cemetery would cover an area of 216 acres in the fashionable section adjoining the Summer homes of Payne Whitney, William F. Sheehan, William R. Grace, and Supreme Court Justice F. K. Pendleton.

In the action brought before Justice Scudder, it was contended that the Supervisors exceeded their authority when they granted the application, as it was granted in the name of an individual which, lawyers point out, is against the law.

BROKE DOWN TITANIC BARS.

Elizabeth H. Natsch, widow of one of the Titanic victims, or her attorney, was ordered yesterday by Judge Hand to show cause on Oct. 25 why she should not be punished for contempt of court for having pressed a claim against the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, Limited, which owns the White Star Line, contrary to the orders of the court.

This order was made by the court in the admiralty proceedings for limitation of liability in connection with claims which arose from the Titanic disaster. The court issued a monition that no suits or legal proceedings of any sort in connection with the Titanic disaster should be begun or prosecuted till the limitation of liability proceedings had been finished, Jan. 14 being the return day fixed for the monition.

Nevertheless, according to the complaint of Chauncey I. Clark, an attorney in the office of Butlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, proctors for the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, Mrs. Natsch, an executrix under the will of Charles Natsch, brought suit in the Supreme Court of the State for $75,000 damages for the death of her husband. A. Leonard Brougham, Mr. Clark declared, was Mrs. Natsch's attorney, and knew the monition had been issued.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Of paramount importance among yesterday's events in the financial markets were the increases in their minimum rates of discount made by the Bank of England and the Bank of France. But these increases had been expected and neither in the foreign markets nor here were they reflected by any pronounced movement in the stock markets. The other chief event of the day so far as our own market was concerned was the increase in the Amalgamated Copper Company's dividend from 4 per cent. to 6 per cent. a year. This, too, had been thoroughly anticipated so that it exerted no influence upon the market except to impel dealings in the stock of that company to an extent which made it the most active issue of the day. These events thus generally anticipated left the market largely under the influence of technical factors such as those involved in the process of absorbing the large amount of stock recently placed on the market much of which, according to market precedent, was likely to be resold so soon as conditions permitted. The advance which took place on Wednesday made possible a considerable amount of such secondary liquidation, and the decline which occurred in many of the leading stocks yesterday seemed readily explainable on this ground.

The increase in the Bank of England's rate from 4 per cent. to 5 per cent., brought it to as high a rate as any fixed since the Fall of 1907, but in two of the intervening years the bank rate went to 5 per cent. in October. The 3½ per cent. rate fixed by the Bank of France is no higher than the rate which prevailed at this season last year, and is under the maximum rate of 4 per cent., established in 1907, but it is, nevertheless, an unusual rate for the Bank of France whose minimum rate of discount for the seven years prior to 1907 stood unchanged at 3 per cent. That the advances made in London and Paris are symptomatic of general conditions in the world's discount markets, is emphasized by the fact that the Bank of Belgium as well as the National Bank of Sweden have likewise advanced their rates this week. The Balkan situation comes as a contributing factor, but active trade plays so large a part in the price which is being paid for money that the advance in rates is an indication of prosperous conditions more than it is of uneasiness on account of the hostilitie in Southeastern Europe.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 3@5 per cent., with the last loan at 3 per cent. Most of the day's loans were made at 4¾ per cent.

The money rates were 5½@5¾ per cent. for sixty days to four months, 5¼@5½ per cent. for five and six months.

New York Clearing House statement: Exchanges, $386,983,337; balances, $16,037,292; Sub-Treasury debit balance, $190,547.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 4⅝ per cent. for short bills and 4¾ per cent. for three months' bills; Paris, 3⅝ per cent., and Berlin, 4⅝ per cent. Money was 3 per cent. in London and 3 per cent. in Berlin.

The Paris check rate on London was 25f 20 centimes, and the Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 50 pfennigs.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Some of the best trading on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was done in the half hour before business began elsewhere in Wall Street, the sales on the 9:30 o'clock opening call totaling 5,350 shares, distributed among twenty-two different stocks. For a time after the call business was active but the volume gradually lessened, with a disposition manifesting itself in the afternoon to wait for the dividend action of the Amalgamated Copper directors. Opening quotations at 9:30 o'clock reflected some irregularity compared with Wednesday's closings, but the majority of the changes were at declines.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The story emanating from San Francisco yesterday to the effect that the Harriman interests had found a way out of the Pacific Mail puzzle was not taken seriously in financial circles. According to the story the Southern Pacific would distribute its holdings of Pacific Mail stock among its own shareholders on a pro rata basis. The recipients were to be required to dispose of a certain portion of their stock with the idea of scattering the Pacific Mail shares far and wide. In the meantime, presumably, the Harriman Directors and their associates were to buy up the shares as they were scattered, so that, while the Southern Pacific would no longer have any stock interest in the steamship company, the Harriman Directors would exercise control. Under the law, the Pacific Mail cannot use the Panama Canal on the same terms as independent lines while it is owned by a railroad.

An Early Sale Probable.

The man who will arrange for the disposal of the steamship line when the proper time comes said yesterday that the San Francisco scheme was a marvel of ingenuity, but he intimated that it had not occurred to the Southern Pacific Directors. In another quarter it was said that R. P. Schwerin, General Manager of the Pacific Mail, had left New York yesterday afternoon after participating in several conferences concerning the disposition of the steamship interests, and that arrangements were under way for the forming of a new company to buy all of the Southern Pacific's steamship interests. A controlling interest in the new holding company, according to this report, will be held by interests closely identified with the Southern Pacific, so that, while the Pacific Mail will be free from the taint of railroad ownership, it will be operated indirectly for the benefit of the Harriman lines. Wall Street is inclined to look for some such solution of the problem.

Gains by Tobacco Stocks.

All of the tobacco stocks except American and George W. Helme Company made new high records in yesterday's trading on the Stock Exchange. American Tobacco had been strong recently, and so was not entitled to such an advance, but it closed the day with a gain of ⅞. American Snuff sold up four points to 197, while George W. Helme advanced 5 points to 194. P. Lorillard scored an advance of 7½ points, making a new high record at 209½. It had previously sold at 207¾. Weyman-Bruton had the biggest gain of any issue on the list. It sold at 275, an advance of 25 points. There had not been a sale of this issue since Sept. 9. Liggett & Myers sold up ⅞ to 222¾.

Amalgamated a 6 Per Cent. Stock.

The Amalgamated Copper dividend was moved from 4 per cent. per annum up to 6 per cent. at yesterday's meeting. The increase had been pretty well discounted, but shortly before the time for the meeting some of the traders lost part of their confidence, with the result that Copper sold 1¼ points below Wednesday's last price. It was then said that the increase would amount to but 1 per cent. instead of 2. Amalgamated was the most active stock on the list yesterday, with sales of more than 100,000 shares. The issue is now paying within 1 per cent. of its rate in 1906 and 1907, when the metal was selling for from 5 to 7 cents more per pound than it is to-day.

Low-Priced Stocks Popular.

There has been an unusual amount of activity in some of the low-priced issues lately. Corn Products and National Enameling & Stamping have been prominent in the trading in the past few days. Up to yesterday, interest had centred in the industrials, but a shift to the low-priced rails was made when Peoria & Eastern, a subsidiary of the Big Four, began to be quoted frequently. With sales of 3,000 shares this issue was more active than it had been for months past. It closed at 17¾ with a gain of 2¾ points for the day. A few weeks ago this stock sold at 13½.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

On the Metal Exchange yesterday trading continued quiet, with the tone about steady. Copper was unchanged. Lead was higher in the asking price, 400,000 pounds East St. Louis, November delivery, selling at 4.92½. Tin was easier.

Heavy Trading in Tobacco Issues, but Market Narrows After Opening on Curb.

Trading in United Cigar Stores on the Curb yesterday began with a strong and active market, but there was a reaction later. The opening was wide and was reported at 108½@109. The transactions of 12,000 shares recorded were at prices ranging between 108⅝ and 109⅝. The close was at the low level. British-American sold off from the opening at 24⅛ to 23⅞, but recovered to 24⅜ and closed within ⅛ of the top. The rest of the industrial list moved narrowly. Price movements in the mining list were narrow and confined to the small fractions. In the bond list General Electric new 5s sold $99,000 between 101⅞ and 102, the close being at 101⅞, which was ⅛ point above the opening.

Transactions reported were:

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Bank of England Rate Raised to 5 Per Cent.—Prices Relapse on Berlin Exchange.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 18.—The Times says in its City article to-day:

"In accordance with general expectations, the Bank of England rate was raised yesterday to 5 per cent. London clearing bankers and discount houses advanced their deposit rates by 1 per cent.

"Money was in good supply, at 3 per cent. for day-to-day advances, and 3¼ and 3½ per cent., for short fixtures.

"Discount rates were not much changed, but the tone of the market was easier. Several leading continental exchanges were firmer.

"As the rise in the bank rate was fully expected, the announcement of the decision of the Bank Court had practically no effect on the stock markets. At the opening the tone was firm in most departments, reflecting the previous day's further recovery on the Berlin Börse, where large buyers found very little stock offering. In Paris operators were favorably impressed by the conclusion of peace between Italy and Turkey, while the St. Petersburg Bourse rallied, owing to the inspired statement predicting the localization of the Balkan conflict.

"On the whole business was very quiet, and the tone after midday became rather undecided, a certain amount of profit-taking being in progress. Steady advices came to hand from most of the Continental centres, although the rise in the bank rate induced a certain amount of French selling of mining shares.

"Gilt-edged securities closed firm. Canadian Pacific and American railroad securities were finally below the highest points reached, while the Mexican railway group was depressed by the morning's news from Mexico City. Other foreign railway stocks showed strength. Foreign Government securities held their prices well."

PARIS, Oct. 17.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Prices relapsed on the Boerse to-day on the commencement of hostilities on the Bulgarian and Servian frontiers.

Y., Oct. 17.—Unless the Tobacco Products Corporation, which was incorporated under the laws of New York on Sept. 13 last, with $1,000 capital, dissolves its corporate existence, the Tobacco Products Corporation, incorporated yesterday under the laws of Virginia, with a capital of $50,000,000, cannot do business in this State.

The Directors and stockholders of the New York corporation are Howard K. Wood, H. O. Coughlin, and Thomas K. Mallaby of 34 Nassau Street, each subscribing to one of the 100 shares. The certificate was filed by the United States Corporation Company of 34 Nassau Street. It is believed at the Secretary of State's office that the certificate incorporating the company was filed by interests in the Virginia Corporation to protect the corporate title in this State until such time as the big cigarette combination could get the necessary papers in shape to enable it to do business in this State. These papers must be filed with the Secretary of State, but not until the present New York corporation is dissolved.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 17.—The Tobacco Products Corporation, capitalized at $50,000,000, obtained a charter here today. The Directors named are Joseph A. Bennett, Thomas Cochran, Jr., J. Horace Harding, Francis L. Hine, Seward Prosser, Daniel G. Reid, John D. Ryan, Roberts Walker, and J. du Pratt White.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The St. Louis, Rocky Mountain & Pacific Company announces the election of the former Vice President, J. Van Houten, to the Presidency to succeed the late Henry Koehler, Jr.

A committee, composed of A. B. Moran, Henry N. Curtis, and George F. Morgan, requests the stockholders of the Central Park, North & East River Railroad Company to attend a meeting to be held in Room 618, 25 Broad Street, at 3 o'clock, Oct. 21, to take prompt action to protect their interests.

The Guaranty Trust Company announced total deposits Thursday morning amounting to $189,301,171. This includes the deposits of the Standard Trust Company, which was merged with the larger company on Oct. 16. Until the completion of the new Guaranty Trust Building at 140 Broadway, early in the coming year, the business of the Standard Trust Company will be continued at 25 Broad Street.

FINDS OCEAN FREIGHT AS BAD AS THE TARIFF

NO LIMIT IN THEIR CHARGES

M. Kirchberger of M. Kirchberger & Co., importers, of 274-280 Second Avenue, made public yesterday a cable message he had just received from Hamburg announcing that freight rates would be 25 cents a cubic meter higher next year. In a letter to The Evening Journal Mr. Kirchberger writes:

"This present advance is an increase of 16 2-3 per cent. over former rates. It raises the ocean freight on commodities which enter the poorest household, common lamp shades and chimneys, from 25 to 30 per cent. of the foreign value. Of course, as in the case of duties, this increase is added to the price, and is ultimately paid by the consumer. My object in writing this is to call attention to this method of treating the American public, which is even worse than the tariff. The steamship companies, owned either by foreigners or by American stockholders, who invariably are well taken care of by our tariff, have absolutely no scruple to go the limit."

Mr. Kirchberger speaks of the lack of some Governmental supervision of steamship rates, for he declares that having smashed competition the lines are now dictating the amount of tribute that the consumer should pay.

Men interested in the steamship business declared yesterday that no attempt was being made to dictate to either the consumers or the shippers, but the general advance in freight rates was not only the result of supply and demand, but with the coming of prosperity there had come an increase in operating expenses which made an advance necessary.

A man interested in one of the English lines declared that the advance in freight rates, as affecting this port, was in sympathy with a general advance all over the world—an advance which was not confined to any particular country. There was a scarcity of ships and there was no reason why the carriers should not share in the improved demand. He said:

"Outside of the demand there is an increase in wages, both on shipboard and along shore, and an increase in the cost of coal and provisions. The answer that is unassailable is that one can take the dividends of the transatlantic lines for the last ten or twenty years, and they will not be found excessive. Take the line I represent. It has not one dollar of water in the whole of its stock, and its accounts are honestly kept. In ten or twelve years my company has not averaged 6 per cent. a year. The advance in freight rates is a necessity. All the American lines, including those running coastwise, have participated in it."

One freight man said that he wished there was some international body to correspond to the Inter-State Commerce Commission, for if there was, he said, the fairness of present rates would be a matter of record. In England there was an outcry against excessive ocean rates, and a commission investigated and found the rates were not excessive.

"If," said he, "it was the intention to raise the freight rates so as to offset any reduction in tariff, that raise would be so out of all proportion that there would be a storm, and if the rates held everybody would go into the steamship business, but they couldn't hold because there would be no market for the goods, and therefore no freight to carry."

While the speaker said that the fundamental principle upon which rates were fixed was supply and demand, the steamship combination did place the rates where they thought they would hold. Rates to the Continent were fixed, he said, by the North German Lloyd, the Holland-America, te Hamburg-American, and the Red Star Lines. It was the German lines, he pointed out, who were the last to raise rates.

"Freight rates have gone up in the last two years in some cases even 400 per cent.," he said. "I predict that there will be a decided drop by July, and the lines will beg for freight. Just now, however, there is more freight to handle than there are bottoms for it.

"One used to be able to get a charter for 6 shillings a ton. Now 12 to 18 shillings is the price. Some time ago we wanted a small sailing vessel to carry coal to Mexico. We offered $3.50 a ton, a fair price, but it was refused. The vessel could make more money in a shorter run, and besides, there was no chance of a return cargo from Mexico. So you see it is merely a matter of pressure of business."

HAVE SEEN MIDDLE WEST

Four hundred business men who represented fifty-eight countries at the fifth International Congress of Chambers of Commerce and Industrial Associations, held three weeks ago in Boston, arrived in this city yesterday, having completed a tour which extended as far west as Chicago. They will remain here until Saturday and will be entertained by a committee composed of members of twelve of the business organizations in the city.

The foreign delegates arrived on three special trains, which were provided for them by the Boston Chamber of Commerce when they left Boston on Sept. 30. They had been entertained in Worcester, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati, Dayton, Pittsburgh, Washington, and Philadelphia. Their tour was conducted by a committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, composed of John H. Fahey, Chairman; J. Randolph Coolidge, Edward A. Filene, H. H. Davenport, Robert J. Bottomly, Dr. Albert C. Bonaschi of the Italian Chamber of Commerce, and David Montt, Delegate of Santiago, Chile.

About forty members of the New York Reception Committee met the visitors at the Pennsylvania station and escorted them to their hotels, leaving them with the understanding that headquarters would be at the Astor.

In the afternoon the delegates were taken for an automobile tour from Washington Square up Riverside Drive to 156th Street, returning by Morningside Park East and Central Park to Fifth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street.

"We left Boston with a party of 416 persons," said Mr. Fahey, "and we took them nearly 2,000 miles without a mishap. In some cities it was hard to find hotel accommodations, but that was the only inconvenience. Not one of the delegates was left at any place, with the exception of fifteen men who decided themselves to stay over in Washington. We haven't lost one piece of baggage so far, although an average of twenty-five tons was moved at every point. The cost of the tour will run up to about $50,000."

Louis Canon-Legrand, President of the Chamber of Commerce and Industry of Mons, Belgium, and President of the Permanent Committee of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce, who, with Mrs. Canon-Legrand, is at the Waldorf-Astoria, told a TIMES reporter of his impressions of this country and its development since his first visit nineteen years ago.

"In the first place," said Mr. Canon-Legrand, "I want to say that we have been royally welcomed and given wonderful entertainment everywhere. I find there have been marvelous developments in your commerce and industry. We have visited many of the big industrial concerns in the West and Middle West, and one thing that has struck us more forcibly than anything else is the close relation between employer and employe. We have noted the many safety devices in the factories for the protection of the life and limb of the workman, and we have also seen how the welfare of whole communities of employes is looked after by their employers in the way of comfortable houses and sanitary surroundings."

Another delegate who noted a similar transformation commercially and industrially in this country since he visited America twenty-five years ago, was Fred Thonemann of Melbourne, Australia. Mr. Thonemann was particularly interested in President Taft's plan to finance the farmer in the cultivation and harvesting of his crops.

"We do that in Australia," said Mr. Thonemann, "through savings banks controlled by seven Commissioners free of any political affiliations. The institutions receive deposits from the people, limiting each depositor to $1,200. The total now is over $100,000,000. Farmers can obtain loans at from 4 to 4½ per cent. interest per annum, and they may pay off the interest at the rate of 1½ per cent. The last parliamentary report showed that there was not a single amount overdue."

Mr. Thonemann, who owns one ranch comprising 1,400 square miles, on which he has 30,000 head of cattle, said that in a few years the United States would be buying beef from Australia. Beef on the hoofs sells there, he said, for from $5 to $5.50 a hundredweight, as compared to $10 and over in the United States.

"There is still unoccupied 1,000 square miles of land," said Mr. Thonemann, "which can be obtained on a lease for a tenure of thirty years or more for 13s., or $3.12 a square mile per annum."

This morning the delegates will go for a sail around the harbor on the Hendrick Hudson, leaving the pier at East River and Twenty-fourth Street at 9:30 o'clock. Returning at 1 o'clock they will be guests at luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce Building, 65 Liberty Street. At 4:30 o'clock they will be escorted to the building of the United Engineering Societies, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, where addresses of welcome will be delivered, among them one by Mayor Gaynor, it is expected. The visitors are being entertained here by the following organizations:

ATTACKS NEWSPAPER LAW.

Morning Telegraph Suit Follows Another to Supreme Court.

Another suit to test the constitutionality of the rider to the Post Office Appropriation act ordering the newspapers to supply facts about their ownership, circulation, &c., was started yesterday in the Federal District Court. As in the suit brought last week by the Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin Company, a demurrer was sustained against the plaintiff in such a way as to bring the matter up to the Supreme Court of the United States immediately.

This suit was brought by the Lewis Publishing Company, publisher of The Morning Telegraph. It is directed against Postmaster E. M. Morgan, and asks the court to restrain him from enforcing the Post Office act's rider. The grounds on which the injunction are sought are that the law is illegal and void and in violation of the Constitution of the United States.

As soon as the papers were filed District Attorney Wise, as counsel for Postmaster Morgan, interposed a demurrer on the plea that sufficient reasons had not been shown for declaring the law unconstitutional in a court of first instance. The demurrer was brought before Judge Hand, who sustained it, but granted leave to appeal. The Lewis Publishing Company will, it is understood, take the matter immediately to the Supreme Court.

Louisiana and Arkansas Report.

The annual report of the Louisiana & Arkansas Railway Company for the year ended June 30 shows operating revenue of $1,495,110, an increase of $62,472, or 4.36 per cent. over the previous year. Operating expenses increased by 5.88 per cent. Income after taxes was $487,440.

Gross corporate income was $525,901, which was $10,370 less than in 1911. The balance of $217,608 carried forward to profit and loss showed a decline of 18.60 per cent.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday upheld a protest by the Beyer & Pretsfelder Company on brass mesh bags, which had been assessed for duty at 85 per cent. ad valorem under the personal adornment provision of the Tariff act of 1909. The firm contended for 45 per cent. on "manufactures of metal." Collector Loeb admitted error. Judge Sharretts rendered the decision.

Abraham & Straus also obtained duty at 60 per cent. ad valorem on beaded bags returned at 85 per cent., basing their claim on Paragraph 421 of the present law.

The board overruled protests by B. Illfelder & Co. and others on small mirrors in cases with toilet accessories, taxed at 45 per cent. as "mirrors," and for which they asked 35 per cent. as toys.

The board also took unfavorable action on pleas for lower duty by Scheuer & Co., Quong Yee Ko, and others on bracelets, fob chains, and similar articles assessed at 60 per cent. as jewelry under the act of 1909. Judge Sharretts ruled against all these claims.

SILK MARKET MORE ACTIVE.

Continual improvement is reported in the silk market. Jobbers who have been in this market selecting merchandise for the new season have bought well despite the advanced prices named by most of the leading houses, and the road business turned in speaks well for the confidence felt in retail circles. While buyers do not agree with the ideas of the manufacturers on the prize question, they are accepting advances with better grace since the movement has become more widespread. Duplicate business in Fall merchandise is good, and spot and mail orders keep up well considering the advanced stage of the season. The Fall demand in the jobbing houses shows unmistakable signs of slowing up, and one of the largest distributors in the market yesterday reported the first really quiet day of the season.

The Fall ribbon demand is broadening slowly, and the small Spring business done so far is said to give promise of a better season than last year.

Practically all the principal houses have now named advances ranging from 5 to 7½ per cent. over previous levels.

RAW SILKS GENERALLY FIRM.

Advices from Milan say that the trouble in the Balkans is not affecting the Italian raw silk market. On the other hand prices are still going up. There is a fairly active demand for American account, and the principal sellers are booked several months ahead.

The Yokohama market is quiet after the heavy trading of the last week. Offerings are light, prices steady, and further advances are predicted for the near future. Shipments to America in the last week aggregate 5,000 bales. There has been a sharp advance in Canton following an increased demand from both European and American manufacturers. The scarcity of short-reeled silk makes American business difficult. The Shanghai market is reported very firm. Tsatlee silks and steam filatures are in good repute, and the demand for tussahs is improving.

The local market has been active, but at the moment is quieter because of the high prices asked at primary points. The domestic mills are not well covered, however, and active buying is expected to begin again shortly.

MILLINERY DUPLICATES GOOD

An excellent duplicate Fall business is reported in millinery circles. From all accounts the retail demand is unusually good this year, and this condition is reflected in the repeat business received by the local wholesalers.

The call for hatters' plush in both erect and flat pile effects is a prominent factor in the present demand. These materials are scarce, however, and a good part of the call for them is diverted to beaver as a result. Velvet hats are in good repute, and Tam o'Shanters are meeting a demand little short of remarkable. Turban effects and toques in fur, velvet and plush are moving better since cool weather has arrived.

Ostrich is the predominating factor in practically all kinds of trimming schemes, and bands and plumes, especially the latter in two-tone, are particularly popular. Imitation aigrettes, bands and wings are also in good demand where dressy effects are required.

QUEENS FREIGHT TERMINAL.

The Eastern District Terminal Company of 129 Front Street, this city, announced plans yesterday for the development of the land at the foot of Thirteenth Street and the East River, which the company recently purchased from the Gillies estate for $400,000. According to the officers of the company the property will be converted into a freight terminal for merchants and manufacturers.

It will be called the Queensboro Terminal, and will have connections with the New York Central, West Shore, Erie, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, New York, Ontario & Western, Lehigh Valley, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Philadelphia & Reading, Baltimore & Ohio, Central Vermont, and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railways, the Metropolitan Steamship Company, the Maine Steamship Company, Old Dominion Steamship Company, Ocean Steamship Company of Savannah, Clyde Steamship Company, Mallory Steamship Company, Southern Pacific Company, the People's Line, the Citizen's Line, Murray's Line, and the Manhattan Navigation Company.

When the terminal is completed it will be possible for manufacturers in Long Island City to get shipments direct from any of these lines without reloading, and cars loaded in Long Island City will be transferred direct to their destination.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Cable advices received by H. L. Gwalter & Co., 487 Broadway, place the sixth crop of Chinese raw silk, one of the principal crops of the season, at 6,000 to 7,000 bales, against 14,000 bales in 1910 and 12,000 in 1909. The 1911 sixth crop was also a small one.

According to Willett & Gray, the movement of sugar at the four United States ports for the week, figures in tons, was as follows: Receipts, 30,363, against 35,360 last week and 42,857 last year; meltings, 30,000, against 33,000 and 33,000; stock, 97,211, compared with 96,850 and 79,879.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

The continuance of the demand for chinchillas is a pleasing feature to sellers of women's coatings. In popular-priced grades, gray, navy, and brown are the most-wanted colors.

Stocks in the hands of manufacturers of women's wear are lighter at the moment than for some time. In almost every instance the orders now received have to be made up, which, naturally, retards deliveries to a considerable extent.

The announcement by the leading factor in the carpet and rug trade that there would be no auction this year of left-over Fall stocks came as welcome news to makers of floor coverings generally, and at the same time plainly indicated the strength of the primary market. Last year several thousand bales of rugs and yards of piece goods were disposed of under the hammer.

The vogue for short skirts that has been so general in this country for the last two years has enabled manufacturers of women's shoes to vary the styles of their products considerably. It is also said to have had an appreciable effect on retail business through the desire of the average better class consumer to have her shoes harmonize with the rest of her costume.

BUSINESS TOPICS.

The Merchandise Man.

Wholesalers of textiles and other commodities whose business dealing bring them in contact with the larger department stores, together with certain members of the trade press, have taken great delight in the last year or so in kicking the merchandise man's dog around. The merchandise man is the official watch dog of the treasury, placed between the devil and the deep sea to see that the store pays the required profit on the owner's investment. To wholesalers, however, he is a direct descendant of the Fallen One, with cloven hoof and other trimmings. By them he is regarded as the destroyer of profits; the dragon before the cave of greater prosperity. Many and great are the commercial sins laid at his door. To the non-predjudiced eye the average merchandise man is of normal appearance. His lot cannot be a happy one. Rumor has it that his buyers are usually ragging him for larger appropriations; fact knows that wholesalers have little regard for him. In a sense he has taken the position of the merchant of former times. He is eager to gain every advantage he can. In this he is accused of frequent misuse of his power, of demanding abnormal concessions through his buyers on many occasions under pain of loss of future business. Be that as it may. Were he not a necessity he would not exist, but as a hireling he must bear the ill-will that could not be shown the man higher up.

Publicity and Returned Merchandise.

While it cannot be said that the illegitimate return of merchandise has been directly or generally minimized by the publicity that has been given the practice in the last few months, according to a prominent New York knit goods wholesaler, the number of returns has shown an appreciable decrease in his particular case of late. Publicity cannot stop this evil alone. It can help some, but active warfare by wholesalers of the same or associated lines is imperative to minimize it to the least possible degree.

CONTEST WITH INTERBORO.

City Will Know Why It Runs Bridges from Its Stations to Stores.

Borough President McAneny wrote yesterday to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to bring to a settlement the dispute which has arisen between the city and the company as to the right of the company to maintain overhead bridges from its elevated railroads to department stores and office buildings.

The city does not object to the existence of these bridges, but considers that the railroad company should pay for the privilege of erecting and maintaining them, as others do who have bridges crossing the public streets.

Mr. McAneny's letter reports that in accordance with the resolution of the Board of Estimate of Sept. 19, he has been directed as Borough President of Manhattan to remove these bridges at the expense of the company unless it performs the work itself before Nov. 1. He also calls attention to the resolution of the board, dated May 23, in which the railroad company was requested to present petitions for the right to maintain the structures in question.

When the matter came before the Board of Estimate in September it was intimated that the railroad company was likely to seek an injunction against any action on the part of Borough President McAneny in order to test the legal powers conferred on it by the original franchises of the elevated roads.

ORDER THE BRONX SUBWAY.

A difference of opinion between two of the Public Service Commissioners was carried yesterday before the Board of Estimate for a decision. The commission recently sent to the board a request for $2,253,600 to construct a subway under the Southern Boulevard in the Bronx from 138th Street to 147th Street.

Commissioner Maltbie voted in the commission against a subway for this section on the ground that an elevated railroad, which would cost only $790,000, would suffice, and yesterday when the request of the commission came before the Board of Estimate he appeared to back up his opinion. Commissioner Eustis was present on the other hand to support the views of the majority of the commission.

The Board of Estimate adjourned to the office of the Mayor for a further consideration of the matter, and there agreed to grant the Southern Boulevard a subway.

The beginning of work on the two Bay Ridge sections of the Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, Subway is to be the occasion of a local celebration. The contractor, the Degnon Contracting Company, is willing to start in next week, so on Saturday, Oct. 26, a grandstand will be erected in Fourth Avenue, between Bay Ridge Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street, and the first spadeful of earth will be ceremoniously raised. Before this is done the local associations will hold a parade, and after it is finished there will be a luncheon at the Ridge Club.

TYPEFOUNDERS PICKING UP.

The annual report of the American Typefounders Company for the year ended Aug. 31 shows net profits of $333,530. There was added to surplus after the payment of $140,000 in dividends on the $2,000,000 preferred stock, and $160,000 in dividends on the $4,000,000 common stock, $33,530. This brought the total surplus at the close of the fiscal year up to $843,798.

President Nelson reports that, although sales in the early months of the fiscal year showed a small falling off, during the last two months of the year they showed a material increase. The same increase was shown in September, which began the new fiscal year.

ERROR IN GIANT SUN DIAL.

After a year's work in the preparation of the huge granite ball sun dial, a memorial to Columbia University from the class of 1885, it has been found that its diameter is in error by half an inch. Corrections for this will have to be made by intricate mathematical calculations, that Prof. Harold Jacoby is preparing to make, so that it will mark absolutely accurate sun time.

In regard to the dial, Dr. Jacoby said yesterday:

"The error can be compensated by varying the positions of the lines to be engraved upon the bronze plates, the location of which has already been determined. This correction or calibration will require experimental work after the plates are in position and may postpone for some time the final completion of the instrument."

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

The report recently issued by the Mannesmann Tube Works, Dusseldorf, Germany, disclosed a net profit of $1,205,000, against $912,000 last year, and proposed a dividend of 13½ per cent., against 12½ per cent. The present capital is $7,855,000, against $7,140,000. The turnover of the German works of the undertaking during the year is given as $12,500,000.

The total sea-borne commerce of the Madras, India, Presidency for March, 1912, amounted to $12,690,338, an increase of more than 43 per cent. over the corresponding month in 1911. The total American share was $401,150, an increase of over 112 per cent. in imports.

A new bi-monthly line of steamers will be run between the Italian ports of Genoa and Naples and the Brazilian ports of Rio de Janeiro and Santos, (with alternate calls at Bahai and Pernambuco.) A five-year convention has been signed by representatives of Italy, Brazil, the State of Sao Paulo, and four Italian steamship companies.

SEPTEMBER FARM EXPORTS.

Declining Totals of Meat and Dairy Products Still Shown.

The Government statement of agricultural exports, during September, made public from Washington yesterday, shows a decline of over nine millions of dollars in their value. There was a good increase in the amount of wheat reported, which indicates a probable large outflow of the big crop yields as fast as they reach the markets, wheat being the first harvested. Our shipments of corn, very little of which could have been from this year's yield, fell off sharply. Exports of cattle and of fresh meats also declined. Mineral oils were exported in increased volume. The month's total of agricultural exports was, however, only $88,879,458, against $97,480,781 a year ago. The exports for nine months are still ahead of last year's but every recent month has shown a drop in the lead.

Totals of the exports by groups, with some of the principal ones in detail, were as follows:

Domestic Staples All Lower—Coffee Strengthens on Foreign Demand.

Wheat declined, under the heavy movement and liquidation by disappointed holders. Corn was lower, with continued fine weather and slow cash demand. Oats weakened on large receipts and were affected by the decline in other grains. Provisions were lower, with speculative liquidation active. Cottonseed oil eased on liquidation. Cotton showed strength at the start, due to heavy rains in parts of Texas and a firm foreign market, but reacted. Hedge pressure continues, although spot inquiry showed a slight improvement. Coffee was higher, with European buying noted.

WHEAT.

Wheat declined ¾ to 1c a bushel, closing at the low point. The decline came in the last hour and seemed to be due to disappointed selling by early buyers and to the forcing out of considerable long wheat on stop orders. The early market was firm, largely due to the war excitement and the outbreak of hostilities in the Balkans. The Liverpool market was relatively firm and this exerted quite a little early influence. The Paris market was relatively firm early, but turned weak later. The Berlin and Antwerp markets were lower and Budapest showed quite a sharp decline, notwithstanding the war excitement. This was construed as indicating lessened apprehension of any extended influence of the hostilities on the market and also was looked upon as expressive of confidence in the localizing of the trouble. The market was fairly steady until after midday. Commission house selling developed in considerable volume and the nearby deliveries showed most weakness. This was looked upon as reflecting the hedge pressure and the tendency to widen out the December-May difference in all markets. The pressure on the December was due to the cash situation, rather disappointing demand, and the enormous receipts. The interior receipts for the day were double last year, and for the week so far have been slightly more than double last year. The receipts have also gained 1,000,000 bushels in four days over last week. Against this there has been a material increase in the interior shipments, which for the four days have been over three times as much as last year. Export demand was not greatly stimulated by the decline and export sales of 16 loads were reported Duluth wheat via outports. Canadian wheat was reported offered at quite a low level and the demand is restricted by the high ocean freights and difficulty of getting additional room. No. 2 red was quoted at $1.05½, free on board; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.01; No. 1 Northern Spring, 98⅝c; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.01.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—The corn market was fairly active and, influenced in part by the weakness in wheat, declined ½c to ⅝c and closed at the low points. Weather conditions were excellent, and the corn is curing under favorable conditions. The movement of old corn is still comparatively moderate, but the demand is also somewhat limited, due to the cheapness of other feedstuffs. There has yet developed very little evidence of hedge pressure on account of the anticipated movement of the new corn. Cash corn was nominal, with export grade quoted at 59c, December to March, free on board. Spot No. 2 was quoted at 73c nominal in elevator for No. 2.

OATS.—Prices were fairly steady during the morning, but, affected by the heaviness in corn and wheat and a rather disappointing cash demand, prices weakened the last hour and closed at the low point, with near positions showing most weakness. Cash oats were quiet. The receipts are heavy at Western points, and this brings constant selling into the market, but, on the other hand, interior shipments continue much in excess of a year ago, which results in rather slow accumulation in stocks in store. Cash oats were quiet, with No. 3 white quoted at 38½c; No. 4 white, 37c, and white clipped, 37c to 40½c.

PROVISIONS.

Speculative liquidation developed in considerable volume, and prices declined steadily, with final quotations at the low of the day. Considerable stop-loss selling developed, while receipts of hogs were fairly liberal and demand for cash product was quiet.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Most of the list was at fair declines. There was evidence of liquidation by tired holders. Crude pressure was also a factor, although it was stated that mills were not anxious sellers at the lower basis. Prompt-shipment southeast crude was quoted at 4.80@4.87; valley, 4.87@4.94, and Texas crude at 4.74@4.80. The future market is on a parity permitting satisfactory hedging operations. Near deliveries were relatively steady, particularly October. There were no tenders, as there is again a premium of several points being paid for spot oil. Consuming advices are rather conflicting, but in the main suggest that the demand for the better descriptions of oil is fair, with consumers buying only limited quantities at a time.

COTTON.

Overnight advances of from 8 to 12 points scored just at the outset proved to be about the high levels for the day. As usual, there was a gradual increase of offerings, inspired by the relatively small gains, and a sagging tendency of prices developed. Sentiment remains bearish as an average, but it is noticeable that, as the list recedes, there is more or less short covering, and some investment business is seemingly predicated upon the supposition that the market has declined sufficiently for the present, rather than on the theory that prevailing weather conditions are adverse. There is undoubtedly less apprehension concerning the frost date, which is probably indicative of a curtailed short interest, inasmuch as there is little disposition to formulate crop ideas pending the weather of the next two weeks or so.

Cordill's report on the crop east of the Mississippi was bullishly interpreted, but was not wholly unexpected, in view of his observations recently. He claims that the crop in Mississippi is very short, that Alabama has a moderate crop in some parts and a very spotted to poor one in others; Tennessee is credited with an average crop, while Georgia is said to be poor on the whole; South Carolina relatively better than Georgia, and North Carolina better than Georgia. Other advices from the Central Western and Western areas, however, are uniformly favorable, and the increased crop in these sections will partly reduce the shortage in the area lying east of the river.

Liverpool showed a fair degree of strength yesterday, said to be due to some extent to the receipt of unfavorable weather reports from Texas. It developed that there were very heavy rains in the southeastern part of that State and some windstorms, but it was generally agreed that most of the cotton grown in the districts where precipitation was liberal had already been secured. Arkansas and Louisiana also had more or less rain, while there were light frosts in sections of North Carolina, but temperatures were not detrimental, and it was thought that the precipitation in the belt, apart from exceptional localities in Texas, was not very injurious.

Spot interests continue their antagonistic attitude toward the price list, and while admission is made of a moderate inquiry for trade account, the volume of hedge pressure is large enough in the aggregate to satisfy the inquiry. Assertions were made of an improved spot inquiry at the South, but nothing extraordinary was mentioned. The movement of cotton is substantial, with yesterday's port receipts estimated at 75,000 bales, against 79,000 bales last year, while to-day's port movement is figured at 65,000 bales, against 75,000 bales last year. Into sight figures for the week are estimated at 650,000 to 660,000 bales, against 570,000 bales last week, and 640,000 reported for this week last year.

It has come to light that the dry goods markets are displaying less activity, influenced to a degree by the drop in the values of raw material. The political situation in this country and the Balkan disturbance have also exerted unfavorable effect, but opinions as to the future are in the main exceedingly hopeful.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

The Daily Consular and Trade Report notes the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding them may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to:

9,721. SILK HOSIERY.—An American Consular officer in South America reports that a local firm is interested in the importation of silk hosiery, especially the finer grades. Purchases are made through the European office, to which correspondence should be sent.

9,722. CANNED GOODS, DRIED FRUITS, AND FOODSTUFFS.—The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is in receipt of a communication from an American forwarding company stating that one of its representatives will leave shortly for Europe and would like to secure new agencies for packers of canned goods, dried fruits, and other lines of foodstuffs.

9,723. AGENCY IN INDIA.—An American Consul in India reports that a local corporation, recently organized, composed of some well-known local business men, has requested to have its name placed before American importers and exporters and to have made known its willingness to undertake commissions for the sale or purchase of merchandise. The corporation states that it will shortly establish branches throughout the country.

9,724. CARRIAGE TRIMMING MACHINES AND VAN AXLES.—A report from an American Consular officer states that a firm of merchants trading with South Africa is desirous of ascertaining the names of American manufacturers of carriage trimming machines and van axles.

9,725. TOBACCO MACHINERY AND PUBLICATIONS.—A number of requests have been received at an American Consulate in South Africa for catalogues of tobacco manufacturing machinery, especially of twisting machinery for dealing with twisted plug tobacco. The Consular officer submitting the report writes that duplicate sets of catalogues and trade literature for his files will be appreciated. Requests have also been received for the names of American publications dealing with tobacco interests generally and carrying advertisements of American implements and machinery connected with the cultivation and manufacture of tobacco.

9,726. FURNITURE, ELECTRICAL SPECIALTIES, STATIONERS' SUPPLIES, &c.—A business man in a South American country informs an American consular officer that he is desirous of representing American manufacturers of furniture, electrical specialties, stationers' supplies, and sanitary specialties. Correspondence should be in English.

9,727. APPLES.—An American consular officer reports that owing to the short apple crop this year in a foreign country a splendid opportunity is offered American growers and shippers. Apples have been and are now being imported from other countries, including the United States. Imports of American apples in 1910 amounted to $80,000 and in 1911 to $61,000. This year, in the opinion of the consular officer, a little effort on the part of exporters should double these amounts, as American apples are considered superior to all others and are in constant demand. A list of commission agents and wholesale dealers to whom exporters should write accompanied the report and can be obtained upon application to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

9,728. MACHINERY FOR REMOVING BARK AND MAKING REED PRODUCTS.—A report from an American consular officer states that a resident of a Latin-American country wishes to purchase machinery for removing the bark from reeds and machinery for the manufacture of reed products, and would like to hear from American firms able to supply the same. Correspondence should be in Spanish.

9,729. AGENCY IN PORTUGAL.—A business firm in Portugal informs an American consular officer that it is anxious to represent American firms desiring agents in that country. The firm would also like to arrange forwarding and distributing agencies for American concerns. This company is also in the export business, handling wines, fruits, olives, cork, &c., and would like to extend its business in the United States. Correspondence should be in English.

DENMARK BIDDING FOR AMERICAN TRADE

NEW SHIPS TO COME HERE

Our Goods Preferred and Our Tourists Generally Find an Interesting Country.

If American manufacturers and tourists could see Copenhagen with the same enthusiastic eyes that Edward D. Winslow, the American Consul General at the Danish capital, casts upon it, there would be a tremendous rush of Yankee goods and dollars to the Baltic between now and next Summer. Mr. Winslow has just arrived at the Belmont from his post, and yesterday he boosted Copenhagen to the level of the top story of that hotel.

"Copenhagen," said Mr. Winslow, "occupies the same position with regard to northern Europe that London does to the whole of Europe. It is the clearing house for the various Scandinavian countries.

"During the last five years there has been established a large, free harbor, so that an American merchant who wishes to distribute goods in the Scandinavian countries, Finland, or the Baltic provinces of Russia, or even the Baltic cities of Germany, finds this free harbor a great convenience and a very cheap place in which to keep a stock of goods in case he should have an emergency order.

"Germany, at the present time, is the most aggressive competitor of the United States in northern Europe, due, probably, not only to the nearness of its manufactories to the market, but to the terms their exporters give their customers, and which have militated to a large extent against the American exporter. But if American manufacturers would appoint agents and use the free harbor, no duties need be paid nor any goods delivered until sales had been made to the satisfaction of the purchasers. The Danish market in itself cannot be called large, but Copenhagen is the centre for the Scandinavian countries, where a market exists for about 13,000,000 people.

"There is no prejudice against American goods. In fact, they are preferred. There is no duty on our grains. The tariff system is deep-seated in all the Scandinavian countries, and Sweden has lately increased the duty on many imported articles, for one thing compelling the International Harvester Company to set up a twine plant to avoid payment of duties. The Scandinavian people say that the tariff wall is protecting their home industries, and they point with pride to the factories existing to-day that were undreamed of ten years ago.

"Denmark has large textile manufactories and cotton spinning and electrical works, which last, by the way, have made inquiries about American insulated wire, clothing factories, and boot and shoe factories, the latter using almost exclusively American machinery.

New Ships for our Trade.

"The country has come much into the limelight during the last twelve months on account of the building there of the largest motor ship afloat, equipped with Diessel motors, and burning crude petroleum. These, it has been demonstrated, can be built successfully up to 8,000 or 9,000 tons. Four of them are now plying between Copenhagen and Siam, and one was recently sold to the Hamburg-American Line.

"Communications with this country are about to be improved. The Scandinavian-American Line is building a new 12,000 ton steamship for the New York service which will make the journey between Christiania and this port in eight days instead of the ten now required. Then Norway is establishing a direct line to New York, beginning with two steamers. These will be in operation by the close of this year, between Christiania and Bergen, and this port.

"American corn is imported very largely, but lately a new article of commerce has been coming from India. This is a three-cornered pea, which is called the 'gram.' It could be cultivated extensively in the United States. The Danish cattlemen say it has the same properties as our corn, and it can be obtained at a cheaper figure. I sent a sample to the Agricultural Department. Only 60,000 bushels have been imported so far, and this quantity as an experiment. It yields one-third more to the acre than corn.

"It may not be generally known, but Denmark now supplies the United States with high-class garden seeds, and seeds for sugar beets. I am told that the sugar beets grown on American soil do not produce seeds that can be planted with satisfactory results. Then Denmark sends us large quantities of raw hides and small quantities of her National drink, 'braendwin,' some cordials, and large quantities of flint pebbles, which are used in the manufacture of cement, and considerable salt and dried fish. This last item has increased tremendously since the price of food began to mount over here.

Have Welcome for Tourists.

"Denmark buys from us tanned leather, oils, lubricants, all sorts of manufacturing machinery, boots and shoes, collars, cuffs and shirts, all sorts of canned goods, and wheat flour and cotton. The Danish people like American goods, and they like American people, and I think American tourists ought to take in Denmark more in their visits to northern Europe. They will find their time will be well occupied. They will find a glorious Summer climate, people anxious to please, and all speaking English. Why, I have even seen advertisements in English in the Danish papers. The American tourist is welcome there. Copenhagen is a little Paris, and it has a miniature Coney Island right on the sea, where American amusement attractions may be found.

"In the capital there has just been completed and opened one of the finest railway stations in Europe. There is quite an American colony, numbering sixty to seventy persons. The roads in the country are superb for automobiling. We had quite a good number of American tourists last Summer, and big American yachts like those of Robert Tod and Howard Gould paid us visits.

"The visit of the American squadron is still talked about. We have just had a visit from a British squadron of super-dreadnoughts, and when they got away, the Russian Baltic fleet, comprising fifty-six vessels, came in.

"There is one criticism I frequently hear made by Danish people about the United States. They think we are derelict in our duty because we do not make better provision for our old and infirm of both sexes. In their country all the aged and infirm receive pensions from the Government, and they cannot understand why we make no such provision. They say that only the young count over here, and that when a man gets to be fifty there is nothing left for him to do.

"Of course manufacturers and exporters in the United States can always get information about trade conditions in any part of the world from our State Department. Many letters of inquiry come to me asking for information which the State Department could furnish immediately. When such a letter comes that requires an answer that would be of wide interest, I always make my reply through the State Department."

Mr. Winslow is leaving shortly for Chicago, where he will spend the month of November.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Wall Street came prominently to the front in the realty market yesterday with a $1,500,000 deal involving the old five-story structure at 50 Wall Street, adjoining the Bank of New York on the northeast corner of Wall and William Streets. The property has been owned for eleven years by the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company, since 1901, when it was bought from the Trustees of the old Royal Insurance Company for $1,000,000. It adjoins the old building occupied by the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company at 52 Wall Street, running through to Pine.

The plot has been in the market for some time at an asking price of $1,500,000. The Wall Street frontage is 49.1 by 120.1 deep, abutting in the rear the Kuhn, Loeb & Co. building on the corner of William and Pine Streets.

Horace S. Ely & Co. are the agents for the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company's properties on Wall Street, but they refused, in deference to their clients, to discuss the sale, and the trust company would make no statement. Rumor in realty and financial circules was to the effect that the Bank of New York was the buyer, for the purpose of rounding out a larger plot for a big building. This rumor, however, was positively denied by the cashier, who said that the Bank of New York was not interested in the sale at all. He had heard, he said, that the plot had been sold some time ago. Whoever the buyer is, an important structural improvement for that section of Wall Street is looked for.

At $1,500,000 for the parcel the average per square foot would be about $268, making a new record for Wall Street property east of William.

Investors Buying Tenements.

Henry C. Glaser has purchased from the Friedman Construction Company for investment the five-story double flat, on plot 41 by 100, at 56 East 122d Street, betwen Madison and Park Avenues. The buyer gave in part payment the plot, 26.1 by 180, on the east side of Webster Avenue running through to Brooke Avenue, situated 26.6 feet south of St. Paul Place.

An investor has purchased from Mrs. Annie Joyce 175 Avenue C, a five-story tenement, on lot 23.8 by 65, adjoining the southwest corner of Eleventh Street. The seller acquired the property last February at an auction.

Herman Frankfort has sold for Mrs. Lina Strauss to Theodore Yankauer, the tenement property known as 438 West Thirty-seventh Street, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues.

The Provident Loan Buys.

The building at 180 East Seventy-second Street, now occupied by the Lenox Hill branch of the Security Bank, has been sold in consequence of the liquidation of the Nineteenth Ward Bank. The buyers, the Provident Loan Association, it is understood, will open a branch on the site.

Bronx.

Bronx Borough realty proved an important factor in yesterday's market, the largest transaction being the sale of the block front on the north side of 189th Street, between Park and Third Avenues, by John C. Wellwood. The plot fronts 166.5 feet on 183d Street, 112.2 feet on Park Avenue and 137 feet on Third Avenue, and comprises the southerly portion of the triangular block bounded by 183d Street, Park and Third Avenues.

The two apartment houses, 1,547 and 1,551 Southern Boulevard, reported sold on Tuesday by Alexander Selkin for the Reville-Siesel Company, were given in exchange.

John F. Fetzer has sold for Benjamin Beneson the five-story new law flat, 366 and 368 East 158th Street, to an investor for cash. The same broker has sold for Mrs. Boerner a plot, 50 by 100, on Thireot Avenue to an investor for cash.

Brennig & Jaeger have sold for M. Stettler the five-story corner flat, with stores, 481 St. Ann's Avenue, on a lot 25 by 99.4, to Auguste S. Knecht.

$450,000 Bronx Lease.

James F. Meehan has leased through Arthur Weyl & Co. to the American Co-operative Society, for a period of twenty years at an aggregate rental of $450,000, the entire ground floor of the community building he is erecting at the northwest corner of 163d Street and Southern Boulevard, (as well as part of upper floors which lessees will use as executive offices.) The American Co-operative Societies will occupy the premises as one of the largest pure food stores and markets in New York City. The community building, of which this lease forms a part, is being built by Mr. Meehan at a cost of over $1,000,000. Part of this building has already been leased as a large theatre to the Cecil Spooner and Charles E. Blaney interests.

Brooklyn.

A big deal in Flatbush which will lead to building improvements on the property for business purposes has been made by George N. To-morrow is the Day and the ONLY day that you will be able to get any one of these choice 88 plots that I have been instructed by the Woodmere Realty Company to sell at ABSOLUTE AUCTION TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER WITHOUT RESERVE.

Never before in such a high-class development as Woodmere, or in any other development of equal class, has there been offered to the public,—at their own price—plots overlooking a Bay with the splendid surroundings that Woodmere possesses.

If you will, quietly consider this opportunity—and attend this sale and succeed in purchasing a plot of 5 lots, to cost as low as $3,000, or $600 per lot, under the terms of sale, you will only need 20 per cent., or $600, to take title and secure a deed to this property—the mortgage will run for three years, and in the meantime every bit of development that goes on in or around Woodmere—every new house that goes up—every new member of the golf club is just helping and adding to the value of your purchase.

TO-MORROW is the day—the sale is ABSOLUTE and WITHOUT RESERVE, and takes place at Woodmere, L. I., at 2:30 P. M., RAIN OR SHINE.

A SUGGESTION.—Take the train from Pennsylvania Terminal, Thirty-third Street, at 12:26 P. M., 12:30 P. M., 1:28 P. M., 2:00 P. M., or at the Flatbush Avenue Station, Brooklyn, at 12:30 P. M., 1.25 P. M., 1:30 P. M., 2:07 P. M.

MOOSERS ASSAILED FOR PARTY EMBLEM

Members of the Loyal Order of Moose are aroused over what they term a deliberate attempt by the Progressive, or Bull Moose, Party to make political capital out of their organization. This order comprises more than 250 lodges from coast to coast, and has an enrollment of nearly 250,000 members.

It is charged that because of the similarity of names between the fraternal order and the third term party leaders of the latter adopted emblem buttons exactly like one of the emblems worn in the lapels of the coats of Loyal Moose members. The Bull Moose button is worn in exactly the same manner.

This move of the Bull Moosers is attributed to a shrewd endeavor to make the layman believe that the wearer of the emblem of the Loyal Order of Moose is a supporter of Roosevelt. Instead of accomplishing their purpose, however, the Bull Moosers succeeded only in creating havoc in the lodges of the Loyal Order of Moose all over the United States, it is said.

As a result the "Howdy, Pap" and the secret grip of the lodge will go by the wayside, and it will be another year, when the supreme lodge meets in July, 1913, before a new grip can be devised. Then it will be nearly another year before all the members will have fallen into the new order of things. All this, it is explained, because members of the organization, deceived by the similarity in the buttons, have innocently exposed to outsiders one of its secrets by giving the hand of fellowship to a supposed brother. A supreme lodge official yesterday said:

"I believe that the trick of the imitation of one of the buttons recognized, though not the official emblem, by all lodges, should get full publicity that the layman may learn not to confound a moose with a third-termer. In some cases I have noted on my trip East the imitation was carried to a most reprehensible degree. The unofficial button of the Loyal Order of Moose is that of a moose head, and on the neck are the letters P. A. P., standing for purity, aid, progress.

"The third termers in some cases went so far as to have inscribed on the necks of the mooseheads they have distributed in many sections the letters 'P. P.,' implying, of course, Progressive Party.

"With the double imitation, is it any wonder that even lodge members have been deceived and have unwittingly 'given the grip' to non-members? But do you think that bit of trickery will in any wise aid the third-term cause, even with outsiders, when they, like the Moose, see into it?

"As individuals, many of our lodge members in every city have endeavored to dissuade outsiders from wearing these buttons and are beginning themselves to discard the unofficial button.

"Two months ago several prominent Moose lodge men sent individual protests to the Progressive Party leaders against further issuance of moosehead buttons. It was promised in each case that no more would be issued.

"Then came the worst action of all undertaken to confound Moose with Bull Moose. Less than two months ago the third-term party had stricken off thousands of round lapel buttons with a blue background and a gilded moosehead in the centre. These were distributed all over the East in every city except Baltimore. About the same time a subsidiary Moose lodge was formed in Highlandtown, a suburb of Baltimore. As the newly made 'Paps' filed out of the hall two individuals, later proved not to be members of any Moose lodge, passed out these buttons, calling out, 'Get your Moose buttons here; they are free.' The same day similar buttons had been scattered over Baltimore proper.

"Well, of course these new members 'fell,' and proudly wore the third-term buttons as symbols of sacred vows taken in lodge assembled.

Quality Advertisements

Unscrupulous men often publish misleading and fraudulent advertising. These must be weeded out. The Want advertisements in THE NEW YORK TIMES are necessarily fewer when compared with other large papers, but their quality has brought the highest grade of advertising to its columns, and it is quality, not quantity, that The Times seeks.

The type used for "Wants" is called agate. By counting seven words to the line in small type, or four words if set in capitals, you may readily estimate what your advertisement will cost you by consulting the following table:

FAKE MURDER TALE PUZZLES THE POLICE

GRAND JURY STARTS INQUIRY

In an attempt to determine who was responsible for the stories circulated for the last four weeks that a young girl employe of Abraham & Straus was murdered in the department store of that firm in Brooklyn and her body concealed in a locker, the Kings County Grand Jury continued yesterday its investigation begun the day before at the request of the firm.

Before asking the District Attorney to investigate the case, the firm had tried every means, with the aid of the police, to get at the origin of the unfounded rumor. Several men and women employes of the firm testified before the Grand Jury, and so did some of the store managers. District Attorney James C. Cropsey, who has taken charge in person of this inquiry before the Grand Jury, would say nothing about the progress of the investigation. The Grand Jury devoted practically all of yesterday to the case.

The firm of Abraham & Straus is giving all the aid in its power to the authorities in an effort to get at the battom of the matter. Besides the testimony of the employes, who, it was thought, might throw some light on the origin of the reports, the records of the concern were opened to prove that no employe was missing or unaccouned for.

> For two weeks we have done everything possible to run down the origin of a preposterous and utterly unfounded rumor that some one had been murdered, or a body discovered in a locker in this store. We have opened our store to the investigations of police, Coroner, and State Labor Department, and requested the authorities to help us to find out who started the slander, or why it was started, all without result.
> After a thorough investigation on our own account, we found that no one was unaccountably missing from our staff of employes, that no one had been assaulted and that no body-finding and nothing upon which to base in the slightest way the story of finding a body had occurred here at any time. All we could discover was that some one telephoned the newspapers and followed this up with anonymous letters.
>
> We have not been able to find who started the slander, and can find no motive for such maliciousness. The police, Coroner, and others have been investigating the rumor night and day until every authority in the city knows the thing to be absolutely false.
>
> The anonymous letter writing continues, however, and we believed, in justice to all concerned, the District Attorney should be asked to investigate the matter. How his investigation will proceed is a matter for him to decide.
> Every one who has investigated the story realizes that the details given in the anonymous letters proves the whole slander to be merely malicious, or the work, as some believe, of an insane person. It is extraordinary that so preposterous a story should have gained credence with no foundation—but in justice to every one, we have asked the District Attorney to take the matter up and make a thorough investigation.

Among the witnesses who appeared before the Grand Jury were Coroner Alexander Rooney, who made an investigation and decided that the report of a murder was entirely unfounded; Capt. John Coughlan, in charge of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, who had come to the same conclusion as the Coroner after an exhaustive investigation by detectives in his bureau; Capt. John O'Connor of the Adams Street Station, Police Inspector Patrick Harkins, Charles Parr, General Superintendent of the store, and Harry Klein, head of a news bureau in Manhattan, who informed the newspapers of the report.

DENIES CHASE DIVORCE.

Court Mentions Suspicion of Collusion in Ball Player's Suit.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum returned the referee's report of Alvin Untermyer of 37 Wall Street yesterday, in which it was recommended that Mrs. Nellie H. Chase receive a divorce from her husband, Hal Chase, the first baseman of the New York American Baseball team. Justice Greenbaum declared that the testimony submitted was open to doubt and recommended the finding of more corroborative evidence before the decree should be granted.

Harold M. Chase brought an action for divorce against his wife several months ago and she answered in a counter-suit. It was largely upon the testimony of the corespondent named by Mrs. Chase that Mr. Untermyer based his recommendation. Justice Greenbaum set forth in his memorandum that the testimony of Hal Chase had made the referee suspicious of collusion and connivance.

TO COURT IN AN AMBULANCE.

Invalid Confesses to Perjury in Railroad Accident Suit.

Robert J. Jamieson, before William E. Jacobs, a Commissioner of Deeds in this city, last Winter swore to an affidavit that he had been in a wreck on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad on Aug. 27, 1911, between Saybrook Junction and Middletown, Conn. He declared he had suffered injuries which resulted in the paralysis of his right side. Jamieson used the affidavit in a suit which he brought against the railroad company, for $75,000. Before the case was tried, Jamieson admitted that he had not been in the accident.

The case was dropped, and it was ascertained at Bellevue Hospital that he was suffering from a nervous disorder.

District Attorney Whitman obtained an indictment for perjury in the first degree against Jamieson and the case was set for trial yesterday before Justice Blanchard. A Bellevue Hospital ambulance brought the prisoner to court and, propped up between two attendants and an ambulance surgeon, Jamieson pleaded guilty to perjury. Justice Blanchard reserved sentence.

CLOTHING, FURNISHINGS AND HATS FOR MEN, BOYS AND CHILDREN

Who's Paying Freight

Of course we make a profit on what we sell, but we don't ask you to pay the freight both ways.
We make our clothing in our own Work Rooms and sell it directly to you.
If we were buying our goods from some other manufacturer we would, of course, have to pay him a profit and charge you a profit on a profit.
Parents will be interested in knowing that this same policy applies to our Boys' and Children's Clothing as well as to the Men's. We show novelties for Young Folks that cannot be found elsewhere.

Our Birthdays

Copyright Hart, Schaffner & Marx

TO-day brings our Anniversary, to-day marks the successful completion of another year in our business. Our store at Broadway and 29th St. has seen five years of steady growth and our newest building at 246-248 West 125th St. is just two years old. But, after all, our success means nothing to you---and had we nothing to talk about except ourselves this advertisement would be a silly waste of good money. But we have, and what we have to say will interest you. For we decided some time ago to make our Birthdays mean something to you. Our manufacturers have contributed too, and the result---extra values that are way out of the ordinary. For instance, some

$25, $28, $30 and $35 Hart, Schaffner & Marx Suits are $19.50

These suits are a special lot, all brand new. They should be $25, $28, $30 and $35. But, as we said, we wanted to make this event important,---hence the price $19.50.

$22.50 and $25 Fall and Winter Overcoats $19.50

Mighty attractive garments these, in black and oxford as well as fancy cloths—and a mighty seasonable offer coming as it does just as cold weather is beginning.
Lots more good things here waiting for you, waiting to help make our Birthdays memorable for you. Come and see us to-day.

Why Not Have the Best There Is when You Can Have It At a Moderate Price?
There is no corset on a par with a Redfern, not even one costing from two to three times the price of a Redfern.
Redfern Corsets
are conceded by Fashion creators at home and abroad to excel in design and wearing qualities all other corsets—they are in fact the inspiration for corset designers everywhere—not only are they accurate in shape, but in appearance are dainty, with material soft and beautiful—chiffon-like in quality—that fits with the softness of kid.
The trimming, which is so necessary a part of the corset daintiness for underdressing, is in perfect keeping with the most exquisite lingerie.
